TARIFF BASED ON VALUE HERE HELD IN FAVOR

Removal of International Difficulties Predicted Under Such Plan.

REPORT ON MEASURE RELEASED BY SMOOT

Explanations of Changes in Bill Are Given in 80-Page Document.

COMMITTEE IS YET TO ACT FORMALLY

Domestic Price Plan Said to Offer More Ease in Administration.

(Associated Press.)

Removal of all international difficulties in the administration of the American tariff law would be attained, in the opinion of Republican members of the Senate finance committee, by enactment of the proposed substitution of domestic for foreign value as a basis for levying ad valorem duties.

This statement, along with hundreds of others in explanation of the changes in the rate and administrative sections of the House tariff bill proposed by the majority of the finance committee, was contained in an 80-page printed report on the measure made public yesterday by Chairman Smoot.

Although formal action must yet be taken by the full committee before the bill is reported to the Senate Wednesday, this was anticipated in the prefeace of the document which said the committee on finance "reports favorably" on the House measure with amendments, and "recommends that the bill do pass."

Inequalities Eliminated.

In recommending adoption of the new section directing the Tariff Commission to convert the bill's ad valorem rates into equivalent percentage duties based on "domestic value," and report to Congress on or before January 1, 1932, the report said such value would be more effective in that all possible international difficulties would be removed, all necessary investigations would be made in the United States, and present inequalities between high and low cost foreign countries eliminated.

The domestic value would be the same as the definition in the present law of United States value, which is the freely offered wholesale price of the imported or similar merchandise in the American markets, except that no deductions would be made for transportation costs, commissions, profits, duty and other expenses.

"It is believed that the elimination of these deductions," the report said, "will greatly simplify administration. Obviously, if the conversion is properly made, the elimination of the deductions will not result in any change in the amount of duty to be collected."

Cost Data Uncertain.

Asserting the ascertainment of costs of production had been impossible in many instances and had taken so long in others that necessary readjustments have been denied for two or three years, the report said the proposed new provision allowing the tariff commission and the President to consider differences in competitive conditions between foreign and domestic articles would permit more speedy adjustments and result in rate changes conforming "more nearly to the acknowledged policy of the Congress."

In including transportation costs as one of the factors in "competitive conditions," the report said these costs should be calculated to the principal port of importation instead of the principal domestic market.

"Any other solution," it added, "would deny to domestic articles the ability to compete in the markets along the coastal areas of our most populous States."

Lack of Understanding.

The proposal to eliminate the new House provision making appraising officers' decisions on value final and subject only to appeal to the Treasury instead of the customs courts was prompted, the report said, by a belief that all international difficulties in such cases were based on a lack of understanding and an "unwarranted misapprehension as to the necessity for customs investigation abroad and the results to be ccomplished by them."

Many appraisers' decisions that foreign values could not be ascertained have been reversed by the courts by reason of the introduction of evidence not presented to the appraisers and which the Treasury has no opportunity to check, and the House bill attempted to meet this situation by placing responsibility directly upon the importer to produce satisfactory evidence of foreign values.

Since the passage of the bill by

Firemen Parade Before 150,000 And Stage Labor Day Mardi Gras

Upper—The United States Marine Band leading the parade on Pennsylvania avenue, which marked Washington's celebration of Labor Day. Lower—Reviewing the parade, left to right: District Commissioner Sidney Taliaferro, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Joseph Burkhart, aid to the governor; Odell S. Smith, of the Washington Board of Trade; George S. Watson, chief of the Washington Fire Department; Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the District Fire Department, marshal of the parade, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, officer in charge of public buildings and public parks.

Costume Prizes Awarded For Original Ideas On Attire.

Although tired and weary from the long day of activities, the holiday throng followed the Labor Day celebrations to conclusion last night by trooping to the Sylvan Theater to witness the Mardi Gras, band and drum corps contests.

The mammoth crowd, which overflowed the Washington Monument amphitheater, was both thrilled and amused by these contests. The brightly uniformed band and drum corps were roundly applauded. Each competitor had its host of admirers, but the spectacular and musical performances of all were given applause.

Bands and drum corps occupied the stage alternately, thus providing a varied musical program, while the Mardi Gras contestants paraded before the stage in their grotesque, comical and amusing costumes.

Confusion in Announcement.

Some confusion occurred when a mixup was made in the selection of the winning bands. The announcer stated that the Boys' Independent Band of Washington had won first prize, and his announcement was greeted with wild applause. But, after a lengthy consultation with the judges, a mistake was admitted, and the Coatsville, Pa., Band was declared winner of the first prize, while second prize was awarded to the Westminster, Va., band. The prizes were $225 in gold and a gold baton, and $125 in silver and a silver baton, respectively.

The enthusiastic supporters of the Boys Independent Band were bitterly disappointed and vehemently protest against the change in the award.

FEDERAL WORKERS OPEN CONVENTION

STEWARD IS APPLAUDED

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 2.—A salary differential or bonus for Government employes whose work is hazardous or involves great sacrifices was advocated here today by Ismar Baruch, civil service member of the Personnel Classification Board.

Baruch was the principal speaker at the opening session of the biennial convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and devoted most of his address to an explanation of what the board has done in classifying the thousands of employes in the field service.

Talking about his proposed salary differential, Baruch said he would award it, for example, to the physicist who is obliged to go aloft in an airplane to gather scientific data, the lighthouse keeper who is away from civilization for months at a time, and the scientist who risks his life experimenting with deadly germs, gases or chemicals. Washington has many of this latter type of Government workers.

Explains Activities of Board.

Baruch told of the survey that is being made by the Personnel Classification Board to determine what wages private business is paying for work similar to that done in the Government service, and to determine further how these wages compare with those paid by Uncle Sam.

On one thing, however, Baruch was forced to sidestep, and that was the

Procession Well Ordered And Vivid With Color And Variety.

They call it Labor Day, but there was no thought of toil in the minds of almost 150,000 spectators who lined Pennsylvania avenue yesterday to view the annual parade of the District firemen and their guests from seven different States, nor of the additional thousands who packed the stands at American League Park to watch the firemen and policemen cross bats in their annual baseball contest, nor again of the other thousands who congregated at the Sylvan Theater in the evening for the Mardi Gras with which the smoke eaters brought their day to a close.

There may have been a more picturesque and colorful column to travel the pavements of Procession Pathway in the past, but if there was, it must have been back in the nebulous past before permanent records were invented. And if Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the District Fire Department, who engineered the whole pageant, isn't all puffed with pride today it isn't because he hasn't a perfect right to be.

For once, the weather man listened to reason and kept the clouds under lock and key, giving the sun plenty of room to sling his rays at random all over the Capital. President Hoover may have had a cooler time chasing trout in the Rapidan rapids, but that's the only advantage he gained by being out of the city, and those who were wise and stayed in Washington to welcome the visiting firemen are satisfied they had the better time.

Parade Is on Time.

There was none of the customary confusion and delay that so frequently mars the start of a parade. In fact, the column started moving from the Peace Monument on Pennsylvania avenue a few minutes before 10:45, the scheduled zero hour, and by 12:30 the last of the 4,000 or more marchers had passed every given point along the line of march, and the crowds had dispersed to move on to American League Park for the baby carriage contest and the baseball game.

A reverberating roar of cheering burst from thousands of throats as the parade column swung up the avenue, headed by a police escort, Sergt Bargagni, parade marshal, and the United States Marine Band in full parade uniform.

There were six divisions in the parade, with Maryland, headed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, leading, followed by volunteer and regular firemen, civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations, floats, bands, drum corps, and women's auxiliaries, from New Jersey, Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and even as far distant as Charlotte, N. C. And down near the tail-end came Harry Kendall Thaw, still the playboy of the Charles Rouse Volunteer Fire Company of Winchester, Va.

The parade committee strove for contrast in arranging its line-up. It accomplished its aim. There was, up

Record Commercial Plane Out Speeds Service Ships

Trim Lines of New Monoplane Enable It to Beat Fastest Army and Navy Craft at National Air Race Meet.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The call for speed and more speed in commercial aviation was answered at the national air races today by a trim little monoplane that ran away from the fastest planes of the Army and Navy and set up what officials said was a world's record for commercial plane speed.

Douglas Davis, of Atlanta, Ga., raced the little Travelair monoplane five laps around a ten-mile course at an average speed of 194.69 miles an hour, despite the fact that he lost valuable seconds in repeating a pylon turn on which he had fouled.

On one lap of the race Davis pushed the plane up to a speed of 208.69 miles an hour. His slowest lap was the one on which he had to repeat the turn around the pylon. He averaged 174.46 on that leg.

The victory of the commercial plane was a tribute to clean design, for its power plant, a Wright Whirlwind 300-horsepower engine, was from 100 to 200 horsepower less than those of some of the other planes against which it competed.

Lieut. R. G. Breene, Army Air Corps flier of Wright Field, flying a special Curtiss Hawk pursuit plane, powered with a Wasp air-cooled engine, was second, with an average speed of 186.84 for the 50-mile race. A Lockheed Vega, flown by Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, Calif., was third, with an average speed of 163.44 miles an

COAST YOUTH LEADS JONES BY A STROKE

Champion, With 70 Card, Trails Gibson Dunlap In U. S. Amateur.

LONG PUTT ON 18TH DETERMINES LEADER

Von Elm Among Leaders With 75 as Difficult Course Takes Heavy Toll.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Pebble Beach, Calif., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The far west signalized its pretentious welcome to the national amateur golf championship today by sending forth a 21-year-old youth to beat the king of them all, Bobby Jones, at his own par cracking game.

Unheralded and unsung, Gibson Dunlap, a smooth-hitting junior in the University of California at Los Angeles, stepped out boldly over the hazardous, seaside Pebble Beach links and took the lead for the first 18 holes of the two-day, 36 hole qualifying test with a sensational 69, three under par and a new competitive record for the course.

To make it all the more spectacular, the curly-haired youth who learned his game in Chicago before transplanting it to southern California, followed on the heels of Jones all the way and beat the great Georgian by a single stroke with a dramatic birdie on the treacherous 540-yard home hole.

Takes Lead by Long Putt.

Jones, followed throughout by a tremendous gallery that numbered close to 10,000 by the time he finished, came back in 34, two under par, for a total of 70, sinking a good 10-foot putt himself on the eighteenth for his "bird." The ovation for the champion had hardly died down, however, when young Dunlap came striding up, pitching confidently to the green and then ramming home an 18-foot putt that gave him the lead. This stroke was the climax of an exhibition of putting skill worthy of Jones himself at his best.

Jones is the monarch of golf, hailed as the one and only as enthusiastically by Californians as he ever has been acclaimed by his fellow Georgians. He gave the big gallery today all or most of the stuff it anticipated but Dunlap furnished the main thrill, not only because it was so unexpected but because a comparative novice and a California entry to boot had displayed the courage as well as shotmaking ability to outdazzle the chief dazzler.

The scoreboard watchers began to take notice when Dunlap went out in 34, two under par, and they realized a big chase was on when the youngster started back at the same fast clip.

Jones Gets "Break" on 17th.

Jones out in 36, warmed up as he bagged birdies on the ninth and tenth, to get a good start on the homeward trip. From there on, the champion was never in trouble. He had three-putted the eighth, for his only mistake on any green, but he was keeping consistently out of trouble. The only "break" he got came at the 218-yard seventeenth, nestling out on the ocean's edge, where his spoon shot from the tee hit a spectator's back and bounded to the green This saved a par three for the Georgian, whose wallop appeared headed for the ocean and a two-stroke penalty until it hit the human target.

Dunlap began putting extraordinarily on the second green, where, after getting home on this 480-yard layout over a screen of traps with two fine wood shots, he rammed home a 40-footer for an eagle three. He sank a twelve-footer on the tenth and a 30-footer on the thirteenth for another birdie, then another of fifteen feet on the seventeenth to get his par three after being off the line from the tee. There isn't a tougher finishing hole on any course than the 540-yard eighteenth, strung along an abrupt drop into the ocean, inviting any stray hook. And here's how Dunlap himself tells the story.

"I was just going on the eighteenth tee when I heard Jones had finished with a 70, so I belted one down past the trees, trying so hard for distance that I pushed the ball into the rough. It was not a good lie, but I caught the spoon shot well and stuck it up close to the green. I sure got a kick out of that shot and was confident then I would at least tie Bobby. I was lucky enough to get down the long putt for a birdie.

"Tomorrow? Well, I'll just hit 'em around again."

Tomorrow, the final eighteen holes of the qualifying competition may see another tussle between Jones and

Macdonald Predicts Disarmament Accord

Dr. J. Gustavo Guerrero Elected President at League Session.

Geneva, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Attending the opening of the tenth annual assembly of the League of Nations here today, Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, discussed in a press conference with optimism and appreciation American participation in the world movement for peace.

The head of the British Labor government announced his expectation that favorable progress of Anglo-American conversations on naval disarmament would be such as to overcome all difficulties and reach an agreement.

He said that the great American Republic was a friend of all good causes, whether connected with the league or not, and told journalists representing more than a score of countries that the United States would never do anything to interfere with the purposes of the league.

In his current conversations with

DR. J. GUSTAVO GUERRERO.

ZEPPELIN'S AVERAGE IS 77 MILES AN HOUR

Dirigible Has Spent Good Portion of Voyage in Dodging Storms.

ROUND-WORLD MARK LIKELY TO FALL YET

Triumphal Arch Erected at Friedrichshafen While News Is Awaited.

The Graf Zeppelin, which is making a long reach toward the Rock of Gibraltar, was heard from at 9 p. m. (Eastern Standard time), last night when the radio operator of the Reading Railway Station in Philadelphia, Pa., picked up a message giving the ship's position at that time as 21.10 west longitude and 36.50 north latitude.

This position is estimated as about 620 miles west of Gibraltar.

The Graf has been dodging thunderstorms through much of her voyage to her home port of Friedrichshafen. Unlike her previous trips, the ship has been very sparing of her radio announcements of position, and her neglect in this matter has given rise to rumors of positions which placed her away north of her actual course.

The French marine ministry notified all radio stations and lighthouses to keep a sharp watch at daybreak, with the expectation that the Graf would cross the French coast line at about that time somewhere between Bordeaux and Nantes. Should the present speed be maintained, the ship will cross France by daylight today and land in her home port of Friedrichshafen tomorrow night.

Averages 77 Miles Per Hour.

The positions indicated by the latest dispatches show that the ship has made about 2,400 miles in slightly less than 31 hours after leaving Lakehurst. This would mean an average speed of about 77 miles an hour. The first part of the flight had been made at about 95 miles an hour.

Speeding over smooth seas with her 22 passengers, the dirigible made rapid progress before favorable winds in the early hours of the journey, which began at 8:18 Sunday morning. With her five powerful engines tearing off 80 miles an hour, it looked as though she would reach the Azores by noon. Evidently she lost several hours during the stormy hours of the night.

Whether or not Capt. Ernst Lehmann beats the record set by Dr. Hugo Eckener in crossing the Atlantic, the chances are all in favor of his reducing the Zeppelin's round-the-world record of 21 days 7 hours 34 minutes from Lakehurst to Lakehurst. She need only make the trip to Friedrichshafen in 82 hours to do this.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Department announced last night that a message intercepted from the Graf Zeppelin gave the ship's position at 7 p. m., Eastern standard time, at 35.32 north latitude and 26.40 west longtitude.

The position indicates that the dirigible was about 920 miles due west of Gibraltar.

It was the first position report picked up by the Navy since 11 p. m. last night, and shows that the Zeppelin is taking a course considerably south of that followed on the first leg of its around-the-world flight.

Horta, Azores, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Up to 11:30 (8:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) the Graf Zeppelin was not reported sighted from any point in this island group. The weather was overcast with a drizzle of rain.

The radio signals of the dirigible were heard from 3:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) on, and their

Two New Attacks in North and One Against Greek Colony Mar Calm.

ZIONIST MILITIA URGED

Jerusalem, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Arab attacks on two Jewish colonies in the Tiberias district in the northeast, both of which were repulsed by the inhabitants, were the only occurrences today to break the newly regained calm in Palestine.

One attack was on Hittin, colony of Orthodox Jews, and the other directed against Mizpah, where the farm of Lord Melchett, British Zionist leader, is situated.

It was rumored that Bedouin movements had been observed around Beersheba, far south of any place where the Arab-Jewish conflict has yet been waged.

High Commissioner Chancellor today received representatives of the Jewish National Council, who demanded creation of a Jewish militia, punishment of the guilty and relief for riot victims.

Dr. Josky, director of the Hadassah medical service, returned from Safed and reported that looted city was still burning, with a complete check of the dead still incomplete.

Jerusalem, in general, had a normal appearance with most shops reopened and with newspapers reappearing for the first time since the disorders began.

American Consul Knabenshue placed the total American dead at eight, with sixteen wounded.

Another statement that peace between the races never will be effected while the Balfour declaration principles stand in the way of Arabian conceptions of their rights was made in a press interview by Amir El Hussein, grand mufti of Jerusalem and president of the Moslem supreme council.

The government today opened its inquiry into the riots at Hebron, which by far were the most serious of the disturbances.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent reported today that the Greek Orthodox Christian community at Beisan had been attacked by Arab members with resulting casualties.

BROCK IS APPOINTED TYSON'S SUCCESSOR

SELECTION NO SURPRISE

Nashville, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—William E. Brock, Chattanooga candy manufacturer, was appointed this afternoon by Gov. Henry Horton to the junior senatorship from Tennessee left vacant by the death of Gen. L. D. Tyson and declined yesterday by Col. Luke Lea, Nashville publisher.

In accepting the appointment Brock, who has never before held public office, said he would do all in his power to serve his State faithfully and well. He declared he felt deeply the honor of substituting for Tyson and pledged his efforts to Tennessee's best interests.

His appointment came as no surprise to politicians.

His supporters, interviewing Gov. Horton in Brock's behalf, had predicted that if Col. Lea should refuse the senatorship it would go to the Chattanoogan. Thomas R. Preston, Chattanooga banker, was also a candidate.

Brock was born at Farmington, N. C., March 14, 1871, and received a primary education at the village school of Grassshopper, N. C. The death of his father, in 1888, beggared the family and threw Brock on his own resources. In 1894 he became a salesman for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., then a struggling concern, and worked his way upward until 1904, when he went into the candy-making business. He was head of a sales force of 50 men.

As reorganizer of defunct businesses Brock is a leader in his city, and a long list of small enterprises owes its life to his assistance.

He is also the founder in Chattanooga of the Century Co., which has solved the puzzle of what to do at the expiration of 99-year leases, and as a result is a heavy property owner in Broad street, the main thoroughfare of Chattanooga.

Brock has endowed several small colleges throughout the South and is a trustee of the University of Chat-

Edison Reported Better After Pneumonia Attack

Inventor's Ailment Was Serious for Ten Days, Physician States.

Clermont, Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Thomas A. Edison is convalescing from an attack of pneumonia, and not from just a slight cold, as was previously announced, the aged inventor's physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, disclosed today.

Edison contracted the infection August 14, Dr. Howe announced in a bulletin, and for 10 days his condition was serious. He now is out of danger and rapidly gaining strength, according to the announcement. Edison recently passed his eighty-second birthday.

Allowed to sit up for a few hours today, he was in the best of spirits. He will not be allowed to resume

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The already considerable crowd awaiting the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin at its home port was disappointed today when the radio station failed to establish contact with that of the airship.

Marine Is Victor In Rifle Matches

Carl J. Cagle Barely Wins Leech Cup; Two Tie at Rapid Fire.

Camp Perry, Ohio, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Sergt. Carl J. Cagle, of the Marine Corps, won the Leech Cup in the national rifle matches here today with a perfect score of 105. Cagle barely defeated Sergt. Jens R. Jensen, of the cavalry, and Capt. Walter A. Wood, jr., engineers, both of whom had targets of 105. The winner was decided by the number of shots closest to dead center of the bull's-eye. On this basis Jensen was second and Wood third. The match was fired over stages of 800, 900 and 1,000 yards.

Sergt. Fred L. Manion, Delaware National Guard, and Corp. Maurice L. Moore, tied for first place in the rapid-fire championships, with scores of 99. Ties will be decided later.

BODY, WASHED UP, HELD SWISS FLIER

Youth Discovered and Buried on Portuguese Coast Wore Pilot's Goggles.

ATLANTIC FLIGHT FAILED

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The newspaper Diario de Lisboa today expressed belief that the body of a fair-haired youth clad in a yellow rubber suit and wearing aviation goggles washed up on Ericeria Beach is that of one of the two Swiss youths who set out to cross the Atlantic on August 19.

Persons who found the body last Friday described it as that of a youth of about 20 years of age, with fair hair and blue eyes. This description would fit either Oscar Kaeser or Kurt Luescher.

It was unidentified, however, and, after legal formalities, was buried in the local cemetery. When the description and report reached the capital it roused immediate belief that it was the body of one of the young fliers. It has been suggested that the clothing be brought here to have friends attempt to identify it.

The fliers when they took off from a beach near here had hoped to make a nonstop flight to North America, preferably to New York. They were sighted about 175 miles west of Lisbon by a steamship and there was a report they had been seen over one of the islands of the Azores. Nothing more was heard of them. Weather conditions over the ocean were not favorable.

The theory was advanced here tonight that finding their gasoline consumption mounting the aviators had turned back toward Portugal only to fall into the sea. The family of Luescher long ago abandoned any hope of seeing him alive.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Seven persons were injured, one critically, today by two ponies which dashed up the midway at the Canadian National exhibition and plunged into the crowd. Miss T. The ponies had been taken out for exercise and became frightened when a bolt holding the tongue of the light buggy dropped out.

Officers Seek Vandals Who Wrecked Church

Washington, Pa., Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Washington County authorities are seeking vandals who caused a great amount of damage to the Fawcett Methodist Episcopal Church, near Hills Station. Entering through a window, they overturned the heater of the parlor furnace type, smashed the stovepipe, broke the chandeliers, destroyed hymn books, got into the desk where the Sunday school supplies were kept, and destroyed the contents.

The church organ was so badly damaged it could not be used at yesterday's services. The baptismal fount was so badly bent it is a complete loss.

ENDURANCE PLANE ON EASTWARD LAP

Shuttle Crew Successful in First Leg of Trip Across Country.

REFUELED IN NEVADA

Reno, Nev., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The endurance plane Shuttle passed over Reno at 3:25 p. m. today eastbound, picking up the refueling plane which will transfer a new supply of gasoline en route to Elko, Nev., 300 miles to the east.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The first leg of their third attempt to establish a new nonstop refueling record from coast to coast completed, Capt. Ira C. Eaker and Lieut. Bernard Thompson turned the nose of the Boeing mail plane Shuttle eastward at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon (Pacific standard time) from the Oakland airport.

After encountering winds and rain on their route here from New York, the pilots sucessfully drove their ship against tremendous odds to complete their transcontinental flight.

The plane's stay here was for only five minutes, Boeing officials at the airport said. Another refueling was to be made at Reno tonight. No contact with another ship was made here, but the pilots dropped a package of newspapers from New York. Nor did they drop notes to inform officials here how the trip was progressing.

The Shuttle left New York at 6:35 a. m. (Eastern standard time) yesterday. Refuelings were made at Cleveland, Omaha, Cheyenne and Carlin, Nev., on the westward trip. The pilots planned refuelings at the same ports on the eastward flight with the exception of the first, which will be at Reno, to avoid high winds in eastern Nevada.

The Shuttle's first attempt at the record was cut short when the plane made a hurried landing after its pilots believed it was leaking oil, and its second was abandoned when ignition wires on the plane caught fire just before a take-off.

The pilots hoped to span the continent three times each way and then continue to fly over one airport for an endurance record. The Boeing officials hope to be able to establish by the flight whether the transfer of mail from plane to plane is feasible and worth while, and whether the refueling activities can be made a part of permanent procedure in flying mail. The Shuttle is a standard mail plane, used on the transcontinental route.

He and Daughter Leap Into Water as Explosion Wrecks Yacht.

New London, Conn., Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Duncan Holmes, a vice president of the Chase National Bank, of New York, and his daughter, narrowly escaped death today when the yacht Trebor, on which they were cruising, exploded in the harbor here and was burned to the water's edge.

The explosion occurred shortly after the boat had refueled and was still alongside the gasoline boat. It is believed that gas fumes from the fueling may have been ignited by a back fire from the engine.

When the blast occurred Miss Holmes and her father ran on deck and jumped overboard, striking out for the shore. Capt. John Lisson was burned about the face and hands and is in the Lawrence Memorial Hospital here. R. H. Kelly, steward of the yacht, had several stitches taken in his hand.

Capper Discusses Local Legislation

Wants Senate Subcommittees for District to Get Into Early Action.

Senator Athur Capper, Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, returned to Washington yesterday prepared to give his attention to matters relating to the District of Columbia.

Senator Capper stated that while he did not expect his committee to begin working on the local legislation program before December he believes that it is an advantageous time for subcommittees to get into action in order that recommendations will be ready for the full committee when the regular session of Congress begins in September.

Two matters for consideration of the subcommittees are laws regulating the sale of real estate and the survey of parking problems.

Aviation Predominates In News of Labor Day

(Associated Press.)

Aviation was a predominant factor in Labor Day news. Dispatches from a dozen points brought details of triumph and tragedy. The day's developments included:

Lisbon reported recovery of a body supposed to be that of one of the Swiss transatlantic fliers lost in August.

J. E. Lytall, of Montreal, en route to Toronto races, died of injuries received in a crash at Oshawa, Ontario.

TWO WOMEN KILLED IN PLANE; MAN HURT

PARACHUTE LEAP FATAL

Westerly, R. I., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Two women were burned to death and a pilot severely burned and injured in a plane crack-up at the flying field at Misquamicut, a nearby shore resort, late today.

The women were Mrs. Marie A. Hunter, 31 years old, of Westfield, Mass., and Miss Marie Day, 20, of West Springfield, Mass. The pilot was Arthur Manning, of Hartford, Conn.

Manning, a commercial pilot, had just taken off and had not got very high when his motor began to miss. He turned and tried to land but the ship struck its left wing, throwing the pilot to the ground. Manning, although badly hurt, scrambled to his feet and tried to overtake the plane, which had righted itself and was skidding dangerously along the field. When he reached the plane it was in flames. He was unable to help the two women strapped in their seats.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Leslie Mackay, 28, professional parachute jumper, of Windsor, Ont., was killed today in attempting to make a parachute jump from an airplane at an altitude of 2,700 feet. His parachute failed to open. He landed in a field at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

Picture Shooter Pays $8.90 Fine

Mother-in-Law's Portrait Got on Nerves, He Explains to Judge.

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Richard Harp, 27, a Negro, today paid a fine of $8.90 for having drilled the picture of his mother-in-law with three bullets last night. The pistol which he used was confiscated.

Harp was arraigned before magistrate John M. Pohlhaus in the Western Police Court. He was faced with the double charge of discharging a firearm within the city limits and disturbing the peace. For the first offense he was fined $6.45 and on the second $2.45.

The picture which Harp shot down was hanging on the wall of his Pin alley parlor. He was alone in the house at the time. He offered no defense today other than to admit, with some confusion, that he had been slightly intoxicated at the time of the shooting.

The picture had been getting on his nerves for some time, he said, but it was only after he had been sufficiently fortified with bootleg that he summoned up enough courage to shoot it out with his mother-in-law.

SARATOGA TO LEAD WORLD AS RESORT

LINCOLN BATH LAUDED

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Announcement that a full program of the Saratoga Springs Reservation will be prepared, to make it the "Mecca of American health resorts," was made by Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, during his inspection of the new $800,000 Lincoln Bath Building and the reservation grounds at Saratoga Springs.

Mr. Baruch, named head of the advisory commission by Gov. Roosevelt to undertake the formulation of permanent improvements for the reservation, will confer with other members of the commission today, and will be a frqeuent visitor to Saratoga Springs during the summer, while the program is being developed.

"Nothing I have seen abroad compares with the new Lincoln Bath Building," Mr. Baruch said. "Nor do I know of any American health resort which compares with the setting and qualities of this reservation."

Consider Many Phases.

Problems that will come before the commission, Mr. Baruch said, will be the long talked of State owned hotel, the possibility of developing tennis and golf courses, addition of drinking halls or casinos, with recreational features for patients. Of special importance, he said, will be the consideration of increasing interest on the part of the American medical profession in the healthful properties of the springs.

One plan regarded with special favor is the formation of a group of medical advisers of national reputation, who will place the weight of their influence behind the enlargement program.

"The healthful and curative powers of the mineral waters found here in such abundance," Mr. Baruch said, "have been proven and tested for many years. The number and variety given here covers the whole range of balneological and hydrotherapeutic treatment. In the new Lincoln baths, there will be available all the faculties for mechotherapeutic treatment, including "red ray," vibrating chairs, and similar modern equipment.

Will Excel World.

"No health resort in the world will excel this, and we believe that a program should be developed which will bring it to Nation-wide attention the most effective manner.

Mr. Barauch said that the commission's report will be a complete survey, with specific recommendations for a practical program to cover the complete development of the reservation.

"It seems to me the time is especially propitious," he said. "The advisory committee is composed of members including Senator Knight and Speaker McGinnies who are greatly niterested in the development of the beneficial features of the springs. We hope for the greatest cooperation in the legislature, and believe there will be the warmest support for a comprehensive and intelligent program."

Indications that additional structural improvements to the reservation will be included in the committee's work were given in questions asked by Mr. Buruch as to the location of buildings and grounds, and undeveloped lands owned by the State. Methods of recapturing mineral waters now unused in Geyser Park also will be studied.

Children Think School Is Afire, Cheer Lustily

Several hundred children crowded the fire lines in Lemington avenue early tonight when fire engines entered the street amid a cloud of black smoke that enveloped the neighborhood, and cheered lustily the imminent destruction of the Lexington School one day before they were scheduled to return to their studies.

Their disappointment was acute when the smoke cleared away, revealing that the burning building was only the one-story frame structure formerly occupied by the Epiphany Lutheran Church.

BIG AIR RACE CROWD HAILS DR. ECKENER

ONE FLIER IS OVERDUE

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Aviation's greatest spectacle, the 1929 national air races, came to an official close here tonight with its newest hero, Dr. Hugo Eckener, on hand to receive the acclaim of a holiday crowd of 100,000. Several holdover events of the ten-day program will be run off tomorrow, however.

Dr. Eckener arrived here this morning to be the guest of two cities in celebration of the history-making flight of the Graf Zeppelin around the world. He was met by city officials, was the guest of honor at a noon luncheon and in the afternoon watched the events at the airport. The crowd roared its greeting as he arrived accompanied by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper. Later he boarded a blimp for Arkon, where he will spend a week studying construction methods at the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation before sailing for Europe.

Two more derbies got under way during the day. One of them was an efficiency race from Cleveland to Buffalo and back which drew 27 entrants, and the other was a nonstop dash to Pittsburgh for women pilots.

Crack Squadrons Take Part.

In addition, crack squadrons of Army and Avy planes gave dairng exhibitions of battle maneuvers while civilians took part in speed dashes.

Lieut. James Doolittle, of the Army, who was forced to take to his parachute when the wings of his plane collapsed while 2,000 feet in the air yesterday, came back with another exhibition of thrills in the air. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Lieut. Alford Williams, of the Navy, also repeated their stunts of the previous day.

Douglas Davis, of Atlanta, Ga., raced around a 50-mile course at an average of 194.9 miles an hour to set what air race officials said was a new speed mark for commercial planes. He piloted a Travelair Mystery ship and made better than 200 miles an hour on four of the 5-mile laps and his average suffered from failure to fly over one of the signals.

Air race officials said it was the first time a commercial plane had outspeeded those of the Army and Navy. Lieut. R. G. Greene, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, was second, with an average of 186.84. Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, Calif., finished third, with a speed of 163.44.

A 60-mile experimental race for new-type planes was won by Dick Myhres, of Defiance, Ohio, in a Simplex monoplane. He averaged 147.1 miles per hour.

Trimotored Planes in Race.

Proving that big, three-motored planes can race as well as the smaller craft, three of the big craft were sent roaring over a 10-mile course of five laps, and at the end Waldo Waterman, of Los Angeles, in a Bach, was declared the winner. His average speed was 149.34 miles an hour.

William Broch, of Detroit, in a Bach, was second, with a speed of 149.2 miles an hour. Milton Dirton, of St. Louis, in a Fokker, was third, with a speed of 138.

Henry J. Brown, veteran Cleveland air-mail pilot, tonight was awarded the $5,000 first prize for winning the nonstop Los Angeles-to-Cleveland air race. He finished the flight yesterday in 13 hours 18 minutes.

Fears Felt for Overdue Flier.

Meanwhile fears were felt for the safety of Maj. John T. Wood, of Wassau, Wis., who left Los Angeles early today in the nonstop race, but who had failed to arrive here tonight. Lacking word as to his whereabouts, air-race officials believe he probably had met with an accident.

The contestants in this event were free to make the race on different days. Lee Schoenhair, of Los Angeles, made the flight a week ago and finished in 13 hours 51 minutes. He was awarded the $2,500 second prize. The fourth entrant, Lieut. Col. Roscoe Turner, finished the race but was disqualified because he arrived here after 6 p. m.

Gladys O'Donnell Wins Race.

Pittsburgh-Butler Airport, Pa., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Flying the 100 miles from Cleveland in 46 minutes and five seconds, Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Calif., today won a women's air dash, staged as a part of the Cleveland air races. She was presented a huge bouquet as she grounded her ship.

Louise McPhetridge Thaden, winner of last week's Santa Monica-Cleveland race, was second. Her time was 50 minutes, four seconds.

Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., the third entrant, arrived about 25 minutes after Mrs. Thaden came down. First place carried a cash prize of $4,500; second, $2,000, and third, $1,500.

Brazilians' Taste Moves to Cocktail

Americans at Hotels Set New Race in Indulgence of Liquor.

Rio Janeiro, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—American cocktails served in the bars of the large hotels and in cafes have set a new pace in Brazilian life and at the same time displaced a once most popular drink emporium where the fresh juice of sugar cane was the only beverage.

The passing recently of the establisment on the Avenida where for more than a generation the fresh juice of sugar cane, crushed from cane between rolers in sight of customers, is taken as marking an epoch in the history of this capital. Until a few weeks ago the fresh cane was hauled up to the wide doors of the sotre in a two-mule cart, but every week the amount unloaded was less and the store contracted until it finally closed altogether, giving way to a popcorn stand.

Cocktail parties now are the thing. The bars of the large tourist hotels are crowded at the cocktail hour, and the chic party in one's home is a cocktail and not a tea party.

Bankers Still Journey To Yards to See Grain

Chicago, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Twice a year a tiny cavalcade of important men leaves offices in La Salle street to tramp gingerly through the maze of railroad yards in the Chicago area.

They are the board of trade's committee of bankers which, with J. A. Schmitz, weighmaster, inspect grain stored in public warehouses to see that it is actually there.

The bankers lend money on stored grain, and the semiannual pilgrimage is a somewhat archaic survival of days when skepticism reigned and they had to be shown.

Chicago Airplane Aloft 247 Hours

25,000 See Mossman and Steele in We Will Refuel in Air.

Chicago, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—After surpassing all airplane endurance flight records except one at 6:31 p. m., today, Russell Mossman and Earl Steele in their plane Chicago We Will, swooped low over Sky Harbor Airport and then zoomed upward in pursuit of the 421-hour mark now held by the St. Louis Robin.

At 6:31, they had beaten the 246-hour record of Loren Mendell and R. B. Rinehart, established in the Angeline at Culver City, Calif., by one hour. Their motor was functioning perfectly and, in a note dropped at the air field, the fliers expressed their intention of remaining aloft until the motor failed.

Nearly 25,000 persons gathered at Sky Harbor this afternoon to watch the endurance fliers make their sixty-third contact for oil, gasoline and food.

The We Will fliers must remain aloft another week if they are to break the record established by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine in the St. Louis plane.

Three Fly Across U. S. Claim 17-Hour Record

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—A monoplane piloted by E. L. Benway, of Los Angeles, and carrying as passengers Benway's son, John, and Morgan Belmont, of New York, arrived here tonight after a flight from Los Angeles.

Benway said their flying time was only 17 hours, nearly 2 hours less than the time required by Capt. Roscoe Turner in his West-East trip across the continent. Turner established a record for planes carrying passengers. The party, which left Los Angeles yesterday morning, came East for the polo matches.

Jail Warden, Beaten, In Critical Condition

Lakewood, N. J., Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The condition of William L. Leming, warden of the Ocean County Jail of this place, who was beaten Sunday by a Negro prisoner, still remains critical, physicians of the Lakewood Hospital reported today.

Leming has two broken ribs, internal injuries, a fractured skull and cuts and lacerations.

James Harris, who inflicted the injuries, is under the care of prison physicians, suffering from three bullet wounds received when he was captured following a jail break Sunday. Fearful of being lynched for the attack, Harris today asked to be moved to a larger prison. The request was not granted.

PRESIDENT HOOVER BACK FROM CAMP

Original Plans to Return Today Are Speeded Up for Cabinet Meeting.

SEVERAL GUESTS REMAIN

(Associated Press.)

President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House last night after one of their regular week-end visits at their fishing camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

The trip back was extended by an hour because the party stopped to eat supper on the roadside.

Some of the President's week-end guests remained at the fishing camp and will return today. Allan, son of the President, was one of those who stayed in Virginia.

The President had originally planned to return to Washington this morning, but he decided to make the trip last night so as to be on hand for his Cabinet meeting today.

He is believed to have returned with an additional store of information on the agricultural situation and the activities of the Federal Farm Board. Secretary Hyde and five members of the board were members of the week-end party and much time at the camp was devoted to discussions of farm problems.

Clergyman, at 100, 52 Years a Trustee

Rev. Mr. Miner Helped to Raise Money for College He Founded.

Milwaukee, Sept. 2. — The Rev. Henry A. Miner, Madison, who was elected to serve his fifty-second year as a member of the board of trustees, Milwaukee-Downer College, is 100 years old.

Mr. Miner helped to raise money to found the college. For 74 years he has been a resident of the State and during his long ministerial career has read the marriage ceremony for three generations of one family at Madison.

Born in 1829 in Vermont, the boy went to Williams College with $40 in his pocket. He helped himself through college by doing chores between study hours. He is the oldest living graduate of Williams and of Bangor Theological Seminary. His grandfather was born in 1776 and hence three generations of the Miner family extend entirely over the Nation's history.

Last summer when President Coolidge was at the Brule he wrote a note to the aged minister congratulating him on his long life and achievements.

Indian Fair to Depict Tribes' Advancement

Lawton, Okla., Septt. 2 (A.P.).—Indian tribes that once waged war against each other will compete in friendly contests during the sixth annual all-Indian fair near here August 29, 30 and 31. The fair, the only one of its kind, will be featured by parades depicting Indian advancement the last 150 years. The Comanche and Kiowa tribes, former enemies, will vie for peacetime prizes.

Indian agricultural products will be exhibited. A huge arena will be the scene of war and stomp dances, bow and arrow contests, tugs of war and horse racing. The Oklahoma Legislature has appropriated $1,000 in prizes for the farm show.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

He is such a likable man and efficient public official that it it seems a shame to bring it up, but Gov. Ritchie is having his troubles over in Maryland. That is, he is having trouble if it is his intention to serve four terms hand running as Governor of the Free State. Otherwise, he will be able to retire at the end of his present term with honors such as have come to none of his fellow Marylanders.

The action of a Baltimore faction recently in indorsing David G. McIntosh, jr., president of the State Senate, as the Democratic gubernatorial candidate next year, is getting a response in other sections of the State.

In the past week no less than three Maryland weeklies which reflect sentiment out in the Maryland hinterland have approved McIntosh and said very frankly that they thought Gov. Ritchie should step aside at the end of his present team.

• • • •

It is significant that one of these weeklies is the St. Mary's Beacon, published down at Leonardtown by no less aggressive a figure than Aloysius King. King went down the line for Smith last November, but whether it is the reaction from that defeat now or not, he is clamoring for new blood in the State administration.

It is such places as Leonardtown and St. Mary's County that give Maryland the name of the Free State. Its members in the State Legislature vote wet. It is virtually the sole politically wet county outside of Baltimore City. The people in and around Leonardtown are individualists. When they turn against the governor, which they have done if the Beacon reflects their sentiment, it means no good to him.

• • • •

The Marylander and Herald, the sentinel of Princess Anne County and the Crisfield Times, are the two other State newspapers that are saying that the governor has now served long enough and that it is time that Dave McIntosh had his try.

• • • •

Of course, these three newspapers are not the whole of the Maryland press by a long shot, or perhaps, a drop in the bucket. But this discord in the usual Ritchie harmony augurs badly for the governor.

He has heretofore had such a grip on the Democratic organization of the State that aspiring young politicians and impatient old ones did not make it a practice to complain against him. And the smaller newspapers which, while in a number of instances are fearless, nevertheless do not like to be entirely out of step or left out in the cold, did not devote their time to looking up opposition against him.

The fact that Ritchie could not hold his State for Smith is undoubtedly looked upon by the impatient ones as a sign of weakening power and as affording an opportunity to break away from the Ritchie organization.

And when it comes to impatient men, McIntosh must certainly be one by now. He has been coveting the governorship for a long time. When he was a young man starting out in the political game, so to speak, there was no way for him to know that one man would get the office and hold it for three terms and threaten a fourth. McIntosh can't be expected to wait all the time. He is advancing in years. He is a capable man, too. It is just a case of there not being enough governorships in the Free State.

DOMESTIC VALUES NOW URGED AS BASIS FOR TARIFF RATE

the House, the majority report continued, "substantial progress has been made toward amicable and satisfactory adjustments of the international difficulties, affording adequate opportunity for foreign investigations."

Wool Schedule Explained.

Taking up the revised bill by rate schedules, the report said elimination of the House increase of 3 per cent in the existing duty of 31 cents a pound on raw wool was proposed "in view of the increase of about 33 per cent in the domestic clip during the past six years."

"No higher duty would seem to be necessary," it added, "for the adequate protection of the American wool grower against foreign competition."

Despite the proposed restoration of the present rate on raw wool, the committee recommended increases in duties on wool wastes because, the report said, the intent of Congress was defeated if a "substitute for wool is allowed to come in at a lower rate than the duty on wool."

Regarding the proposed increase of 2.20 cents a pound in the existing rate of 1.76 cents on Cuban raw sugar and other proposed changes in the sugar schedules, the report said they had been made "with the interests of the consumers, producers, importers and manufacturers in mind."

Offset Canadian Bonus.

The House rate on maple sugar, an increase over existing law, was raised still higher by the committee, it was said, in order "to offset the bonus, which, witnesses said, was being paid indirectly to the maple sugar producers in Canada by the Canadian government."

The report said the committee had agreed substantially to the "considerable increases in rates on agricultural products" provided by the House and estimated the increased revenue under the new schedule at over $25,000,000, and the equivalent percentage rate of protection at 34 per cent compared with 23 per cent under existing law.

The House rates on rice were reduced to existing levels, the report explained, because the industry was "on an important surplus basis, exports being approximately nine times as large as imports."

The duty on lemons was raised to "aid in the orderly marketing of our lemon production in California which at present must face the competition of speculative entries from foreign countries."

Calling attention to increased imports of shoes, principally women's from Czechoslovakia, the report said this competition was "Most keenly felt by manufacturers of Mackay type of women's shoes, who are located principally in Massachusetts." Imports of women's turned shoes, produced in Switzerland, were felt by Brooklyn manufacturers. Hence the proposed duty of 20 per cent on shoes, now on the free list, the report explained.

The free listing of logs of fir, spruce, cedar, or western hemlock, now dutiable at $1 a thousand board measure feet, was proposde because domestic sawmills and shingle mills in the Puget Sound area not supplied with timberlands were dependent in part on imported raw materials. Costs of production in the United States and Canada were not materially different, the report said.

Shingles on Free List.

Cedar lumber and shingles of wood which the House took from the free list and made dutiable at 25 per cent would be transferred back to the free list under the committee bill for the same reasons given for free listing logs, and for the added reason, the report said, that imported shingles "are in general of higher grades than the bulk of domestic production."

An increase from 2½ to 3½ cents a pound in the rate on casein was proposed, the report added, "in order that the dairy interests might derive some gain." Each year, it was contended, over ten billions pounds of skimmed milk goes to waste, a portion of which might be converted into casein.

In rejecting the farm organizations' plea for a duty of 45 per cent on all vegetable oils, the committee considered that cocoanut oil, the most important, constituted 47 per cent of total imports, and since 90 per cent of these imports came in free of duty from the Philippines and the committee deemed it unwise to disturb existing free trade relations with the islands, an increase in duty on other fats and oils "was not considered advisable."

Duty on Building Brick.

The duty on building brick, now free listed, was proposed to protect the Hudson River producers from Belgian imports, and the rate on cement, also now free, was recommended to protect seaboard plants from foreign cement coming in as ballast and underselling the domestic product in coast cities.

The increased rate for chemical and scientific glassware was imposed to encourage the production in this country of articles necessary in time of war.

The automobile duty should be reduced, the report said, because of the "strong position of the American industry in the world's markets."

"As for the complete revision of the rates on watches, the report said an "agreement of about 75 per cent of the watch importers to the rates incorporated in this bill is a substantial guarantee that such rates are not excessive."

— Sundry List Increased.

Noting that the duties collected in 1927 on $226,117,000 worth of merchandise embraced in the sundries schedule totaled $88,624,000, being exceeded in value only by the agricultural schedule items and in duties only by the sugar schedule, the report said the proposed transfer of hides, leather, boots and shoes from the free list to that section will "tend to increase the importance of this schedule as a revenue producer."

In siding with the Buffalo millers who fought the new House provision making imported Canadian wheat milled in bond in the United States for export pay a duty, when shipped to Cuba, equal to the amount of duty preference Cuba grants American flour, the committee acted in the belief that the provision would not materially benefit American millers in the Southwest.

"They would be unable to compete successfully with the Canadian millers of Canadian wheat, which is less expensive than American wheat, and produces a flour particularly adapted to the Cuban demand," the report said, adding:

Hurt to U. S. Business Seen.

"On the other hand, it would seem that the effect of the House provision would be to take the business from the American mills at Buffalo and other points on or near the Great Lakes and throw it to Canadian mills."

Regarding proposed liberalization of the new House clause making it unlawful to import printed matter threatening the life of the President, the report said it was felt that "such a threat against any other person in the United States is equally obnoxious and that the provision should not be limited to the President alone."

FIGHTING REPORTED ON SIBERIA BORDER

Cannonading Said to Have Followed Refusal of Russian Demands.

HOPE OF PEACE IS HELD

Reports that cannonading has been resumed on the Siberian-Manchurian border following the rejection by the Nanking government of the demand of the Soviet Russian government that a new Chinese chairman of the board of the Chinese Eastern Railway be appointed at the time that a new Russian general manager takes hold, have again served to focus attention on the Far East.

The State Department has received confirmation of the report that Dr. C. T. Wang, minister of foreign affairs of the Chinese Nationalist government, has rejected the Russian demand that a new chairman of the board be appointed on the ground that the present chairman was responsible for all the trouble over the railway.

It has been the contention of the Chinese Nationalist government from the outset that the Russian general manager was the chief trouble maker and various other Russian railway officials were engaged in destructive propaganda against China. To comply with this particular demand, Dr. Wang holds, would be to concede that the Soviet officials had not been seeking to undermine the Chinese. Dr. Wang claims to have ample evidence of the alleged subversive activities of the Russian railway organization.

Confirmation Not Received.

The State Department has not yet received confirmation that Soviet artillery has resumed activity on the Manchurian border, but with a proposal on the table at Nanking, officials here are inclined to think that the Russians may have started cannonading to emphasize the Moscow demand.

Hope was expressed that a definite agreement would be reached at an early date, since neither China nor Soviet Russia is in position to prosecute a real war in Manchuria. The Russian line of communication is too long, on the one hand, and the Chinese Nationalist government can not depend on the loyalty of some of China's principal military chieftains on the other.

From the outset Far Eastern experts here have felt that actual hostilities would be averted, but that sporadic outbreaks on first one side and then the other might be expected as long as considerable numbers of soldiers were maintained in close proximity to the border.

Proposals Thought Reasonable.

At first blush the proposal that both Russia and China place new principal officials in charge of the Chinese Eastern seemed a reasonable one. Until Dr. Wang announced China's refusal to replace the present chairman of the board, who has not long been in office, it was supposed here that negotiations between Nanking and Moscow were progressing favorably.

Romance at Root Of Deaf Mutes' Alphabet

Peniche, Portugal, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—A beautiful dumb girl was the inspiration for invention of the deaf and dumb alphabet, it has been revealed here with completion of plans to erect a monument to the inventor. He was Jacob Rodrigues Pereira, born in 1715, and deported from Portugal because he was a Jew.

His interest in a sign language by which he might communicate with the beautiful mute whom he loved, led him to evolve a complete alphabet. He went to Paris and taught the deaf and dumb.

Handsomest Man Secretly Married

Brown U. Student Who Won Class Vote Reveals Nuptials.

Providence, Sept. 2.—Howard F Eastwood, a former member of the golf and hockey teams of Brown University, recently announced his marriage to Dorothy Clough, of Providence, after having kept friends, classmates and university officials in ignorance of his wedding for nearly ten months. The bridegroom recently was voted the handsomest man in the class of 1929.

Married shortly before the opening of college, Eastwood and his bride kept the secret even from their closest friends until the formal announcement, when they revealed they had quietly slipped off to Stonington, Conn., and had the ceremony performed. Secrecy since that time was in part made necessary by a college regulation which would have expelled Eastwood for marrying without official sanction from the college and his parents.

Eastwood, in addition to being a member of the hockey and golf teams, had also held several class offices. His home is on President avenue, this city. The couple have left for Maine, where they will spend a few months. Mr. Eastwood may resume his studies at the college to make up several credits necessary for his graduation.

Land Worth $6,500,000 Is Sold for Unpaid Taxes

Raleigh, Sept. 2.—From eight to ten million dollars worth of Wake County property, listed on the tax books at approximately $6,500,000, was recently sold at the court house door for the collection of $110,000 of delinquent 1928 taxes. It took Sheriff N. F. Turner about three hours to make the sale.

The sheriff bought the great majority of the property sold for the county, but in a few instances private individuals bought to secure a mortgage or for some other reason.

Common U. S. Plant Not Native to Country

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Many of the most useful plants of the United States, contrary to general opinion, have been brought in from foreign countries, according to C. R. Enlow, of the Florida Department of Agriculture.

"Many of the everyday plants one sees growing around every dooryard," he said, "have been brought to this country. These include the clovers, vetches, velvet beans, cowpeas, Sudan grass, Kentucky bluegrass, red top, rye grass, Bermuda grass, and lespedeza. Even corn, which every one knows is a native of the New World, is supposed to have originated in Mexico."

a much more comprehensive purpose than settlement of naval strength as between Great Britain and the United States.

Both President Hoover and himself anticipated that their discussions would be preliminary to a conference for a far-reaching disarmament agreement among the great powers, settling the problem of armed forces on land as well as at sea, he added.

Premier MacDonald, punctuating his crisp Scottish accents with puffs at a rather plutocratic looking cigar, spoke of his hopes of visiting America "sometime this autumn," but admitted circumstances might not permit it.

"I can not say at present whether it will be possible for me to go. My friends in Parliament have not got a majority in the House of Commons. Therefore there is a great burden on a government like ourselves, facing difficult national problems. You understand how very difficult it is for the prime minister to be out of Great Britain when the Commons are meeting in such difficult circumstances."

Optimistic on Results.

"I believe we are going to find a solution of the problems which up to now have defied solution," he said.

"Conversations are going on between Ambassador Dawes and myself. We are examining every proposal that is likely to bring these conversations to a successful termination and the result of our examinations up to the moment I left London Saturday makes us believe the problems will be overcome and an agreement reached."

After warning the journalists against "mischief makers" who might interfere with the success of the disarmament negotiations by misinterpreting the purposes of England and America, he made it plain that "the problem is not between America and ourselves." "If we come to the most magnificent agreement about armies, navies and air forces, the problem of disarmament has just been touched," he asserted.

Expects All Powers to Join.

"We are not out for that—either President Hoover or myself. We are both out for an agreement that will mean as much to the rest of the world as it does to ourselves.

"Therefore the proposal is that the naval agreement should be pursued with other powers and that anything between ourselves separately is purely provisional until other powers have fitted it into their schemes and a wider and more comprehensive agreement has been reached."

Meanwhile the League Assembly in its opening session honored a Latin-American statesman, Dr. J. Gustavo Guerrero, of the Republic of Salvador, who was elected its president.

Fifty-three of the fifty-four nations of the league responded to the gavel of the black-bearded, portly Persian, Prince Foroughi, who combated sweltering heat by waving a pink handkerchief. Argentina was the only member of the league without a delegation present.

Benes Heads Disarmament.

At the afternoon session Dr. Benes, Czechoslovakian premier, was elected chairman of the disarmament committee of the assembly. M. Janson, of Belgium, was named chairman of the political committee, and Senator Scialoja, of Italy, of the constitutional and legal committee. Other chairmen are Count Carl Moltke, of Denmark, budgetary and financial committee; John M. O'Sullivan, of Ireland; social committee; M. Motta, of Switzerland, technical and organization committee.

Premier Briand of France and Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann of Germany were among the vice presidents elected, M. Briand by 42 out of 44 votes and Herr Stresemann by the same proportion. The others are Baron Adachi, of Japan; M. Salodis, of Latvia; Premier MacDonald of England (who received 38 votes) and Chao Chu-Wu, of China.

These six statesmen, with the chairmen of the six committees, form the steering committee of the assembly. The sessions were adjourned until tomorrow afternoon.

MACDONALD VIEWS ON PARITY AWAITED

Geneva League Assembly to Hear Exhaustive Expose of Status.

ADMIRALTY IS RESTIVE

London, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Events appear to be progressing rapidly in the Anglo-American naval reductions negotiations.

After the interviews between Ambassador Dawes and Premier Ramsay MacDonald on Thursday and Friday last, the ambassador cabled a lengthy dispatch to Washington and replies have been received here from the State Department and forwarded to MacDonald at the Geneva conference.

In informed quarters here tonight the New York World News Service was assured that the last dispatch from Washington was of such a character that MacDonald will be enabled to make a comprehensive statement before the Geneva league assembly tomorrow.

President Hoover has left it to Mr. MacDonald to make the first statement on the negotiations.

It was learned that there have been naval protests here against Mr. MacDonald's apparent willingness to concede to the United States the right to build more 10,000-ton cruisers equipped with 8-inch guns than Great Britain is to have under the parity yardstick.

The present state of negotiations appears to represent a compromise on this point.

Great Britain is to have a greater cruiser tonnage, because, under the yardstick, the smaller cruiser tonnage is held not equivalent to the tonnage of big cruisers. On the other hand, so many small cruisers are required by Great Britain that, in order to reach parity under the formula so far discussed, the United States would, in the end, have more big cruisers.

It is rumored that the admiralty is inclined to be firm on one point: that at the close of the building programs of the two nations, the battle strength of the American fleet in the terms of battle ships and 10,000-ton cruisers should not exceed the British battle strength.

I am informed tonight that on this point complete agreement had not been reached when MacDonald went to Geneva.

As seen here the important feature of the premier's talk with the press was his remark that "our foreign friends may be perfectly easy in their minds that any agreement we may come to will not be offered as fait accompli, of which they can not alter a single comma," which, it is thought, is intended as a bait to induce France and Italy to join, a five-power conference.

I also learned tonight that the British delegation at the league assembly is considering the introduction of a resolution harmonizing the Kellogg pact with the covenant of the League of Nations.

The proposed resolution means that Great Britain intends to act as an intermediary between the United States and the league so as to reconcile the discrepancy between the Kellogg pact and the league covenant. It is realized that such a drastic change in the League of Nation's scheme of things can not be carried through at once and that continental powers would at least insist upon delay, but this may not prevent MacDonald taking the first and formal step.

He was a leader in the State-wide fight over the election commission of 1927 and supported the late Austin Peay, Tennessee's three-term governor, throughout Peay's political career. For twenty years Brock has been an ardent supporter of the Tennessee River Improvement Commission and has frequently been to Washington in its behalf. He was a Wilson supporter, and after the war was named by Wilson among the 300 men to act as a business rehabilitation commission.

Brock announced he would leave within the next few days for Washington to be sworn in. He declared himself a "Woodrow Wilson Democrat."

"I favor," he said, "the strict maintenance and enforcement of all our laws; the speedy development of our waterpower resources under proper safeguards of the public interest; introduction of business methods in government; adherence to the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and other public policies which are well known.

"I am what might be called a Woodrow Wilson Democrat and I go to Washington with the desire to help carry on those policies which the great war President elucidated."

Brock is 58 years old, and, like his predecessor, Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, was born in North Carolina, the son of a lieutenant in the Confederate Army.

Contraband Planes Avoiding Airports

Use Moonlit Nights Landing on Flat Lands Bootleg Material.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Phantoms of moonlit skies are those lone airplanes that carefully avoid San Antonio's landing fields.

Thinking that the droning motor may belong to a stray plane seeking to land after dark, the night watchman at Winburn Field frequently prepares for a landing. But there never is anything in sight. Wayne Parks, Winburn Field manager, explains these unseen ships this way:

"They are outlaws of the air, dealers in bootleg, both bottled and human contraband. There are several of these planes operated from the border, evidently, and they pick moonlight nights in order to land on some lonely flat stretch of land unseen."

Mayor for 25 Years Is Church Singer 45

Alton, Iowa, Sept. 2.—Mayor Peter Goebel is now serving his twenty-fifth year as mayor of Alton. He has also been a member of the choir of St. Mary's Church here for the last 45 years, and has taken active part in all public and church activities.

He was born in Luxemburg, Iowa, in 1864, and came to Sioux County in 1871, settling on a farm with his brothers, southeast of Alton. In 1873 he moved to Alton, where he has resided since. Mr. Goebel was a member of the crew that laid the track for the North Western Railroad from Garnville to Orange City.

Vincent E. Reigle, 28 years old, locomotive engineer, of 918 H street northwest, who, according to police, assaulted Sergt. Thomas Garfield, 37 years old, of the machine gun unit at Fort Myer, after attempting to attack his wife Friday night, was reported to be under the charge of a special guard at Gallinger Hospital yesterday.

Reigle, since his breakdown at the Twelfth Precinct Saturday night, is reported to have been in an extremely nervous condition and authorities fear that he might attempt to take his life.

Garfield, who is said to have received hammer blows from Reigle, is in a serious condition at Walter Reed Hospital. Garfield received the injuries after attempting to interfere with Reigle's advances on his wife, police said. Mrs. Reigle received minor injuries during the altercation and was taken to Providence Hospital.

Policeman, Bitten by Dog, Halted in Arrest Attempt

Policeman J. L. Oppert, of the Fourth Precinct, while attempting to make an arrest late yesterday afternoon, was bitten on the left elbow by a dog and forced to abandon his duties to make a trip to Emergency Hospital, it was learned at the Fourth Precinct.

Oppert was said to have been in the act of placing Harrison Davenport, colored, 25 years old, under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct when a dog owned by Margaret Dove, colored, of 1209 Collins court northwest, the same house in which Davenport lived, bit the policeman.

Oppert was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment, but this interruption did not prevent Davenport from being put under arrest by another policeman. He was taken to the Fourth Precinct.

CATHOLICS DEMAND REPEAL OF DRY ACT

SHORT SKIRT BAN URGED

New York, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The Volstead act, companionate marriage, short skirts and the national origin's clause of the immigration law were assailed in resolutions presented today at the joint annual conventions of the Catholic Verein of America and the Catholic Women's Union of America.

The Volstead act was declared to have "no moral character" and to be "an infringent upon personal prerogatives." Its repeal was urged.

"No matter how daringly extreme the styles become, the modern woman seemingly insists upon wearing them," the resolution on dress asserted. "Loose clothing that does not reveal the figure" was recommended.

The resolution on the national origins clause, adopted by the men's organization, advocated repeal of a measure "unfair to races who have contributed so largely to the development of the Nation."

Companionate marriage was denounced as "unholy and degrading" and "a diabolical abuse growing from a spirit of materialism and the desire to throw off all moral self-restraint."

Announcement of the election of Alois J. Werbein, of Buffalo, for a twenty-fourth consecutive term as president of the Catholic Verein of America was made at a dinner tonight.

Body of Woman Found In Sack on Roadway

Chicago, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The body of a woman, about 40 years old, was found in a burlap sack today near Morris, Ills., the detective bureau here was informed.

A passing motorist found the body, approximately 3 miles from Morris at the side of the road and notified Sheriff Hoganson, of Grundy County. The freshness of the grass under the sack indicated the body, which was decomposed, had not been there long.

A post-mortem was arranged at Morris.

Dr. Howe's bulletin follows:

"Mr. Edison contracted a cold on August 11. In spite of it he continued work in his laboratories for two days. On the third day pneumonia developed and during the following 10 days his condition was serious, but due to his natural vigor and unusual powers of resistance, he was able to overcome the infection and is now out of danger and in the convalescent stage.

"He is gaining strength rapidly, but should not resume work for two or three weeks."

Dr. Howe, who is from New York, was assisted by Dr. J. Hammond Bradshaw, of Orange, N. J., in treating the inventor.

hour, the Navy's Curtiss Hawk entry, flown by Lieut. Clark, Anacostia Naval Air Station, at 153.38 miles an hour, was fourth.

The little cigar-shaped Travelair has attracted much attention at the air races, because of high speed and maneuverability. Army and Navy pursuit pilots, used to high speed in military planes, expressed amazement at such performance in a commercial plane. The plane, a low wing monoplane, highly stream-lined, employs the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics cowling to cover the cylinders of its radial air cooled engine.

Walter I. Beach, Wichita, Kans. president of the Travelair Co., announced Davis planned soon to use the little plane in an attempt to break the speed record for a flight across the continent. He said he expected the trip to be made in eleven hours, including three stops for gasoline.

Scientists Discuss Movies, Drug Addicts and Goldfish

Wide Range of Subjects Comes Before Psychologists; Hope Seen for Narcotic Victims as Motion Pictures' Aid to Pedogogy Is Told.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 2 (A.P.). Subjects ranging from new hope for recovery of drug addicts and educational value in movies to intelligence in goldfish were discussed at the opening sessions today of the ninth international congress of psychology.

The drug habit report struck at a belief that persons attempting to come back may not overcome certain apparent losses of intellectual power. Some of this loss was shown to be imaginary by Dr. Richard H. Paynter, professor of social and abnormal psychology at Long Island University. Men treated at Philadelphia General Hospital were his subjects.

School children who learned part of their history by aid of special motion picture films were found to learn 19 per cent more and to remember 12 per cent more than a comparison group without the movies. Furthermore, the movie children participated in classroom discussions 10 per cent more often and voluntarily read 40 per cent more supplementary history. These experiments were reported by Drs. Daniel C. Knowlton and J. W. Tilton, of Yale University.

Goldfish learned in less than a week to distinguish between bright, medium and dim lights in experiments conducted by Drs. R. H. Wheeler and T. Perkins, of the University of Kansas. Three compartments of water were illuminated to different degrees of brightness by overhead lights. Some fish were trained by finding their food only under the bright lights, others under the illuminations. Thereafter, when giving their choice of swimming into three shades of lighted water, the fish chose each according to their training.

Though the brightness of the lights was changed, the fish always picked out the light at the moment brightest, or dimmest, according to their training. Before being trained the fish all chose medium light.

Dr. Wheeler said that this experiment shows that even creatures of lower order do not learn mechanically, and that the goldfish make a conscious effort.

Pogrom Inciters Sentenced to Die

Moscow Court Establishes Guilt of Terrorists in Race Riot.

Moscow, Sept. 2 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Yefim Dergal and Ivan Tsherban, convicted of attacking Jewish Colony, No. 3, were sentenced to death today after a seven-hour deliberation of the court. Ivan Dergal, a member of the band, was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment and Yevsey Dergal to five years' imprisonment to be followed by deportation.

Chief of Police Chaplinin and his assistant, Brisitskin, received sentences of 18 months in jail each. The chairman of the Regional Soviet, Nikolai Poltavsky, was sentenced to one year. The sentences were pronounced in the presence of 300 peasants crowding the courtroom at the end of a three-days' trial.

The court established that the accused terrorized the Jewish colonists for two years, culminating their persecution with a pogrom, the local authorities remaining indifferent.

Eight Officials Slain By Mexican Politicians

Mexico City, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Oaxaca to El Universal Grafico today said that eight village officials, including the mayor, of Telepme Coixtlahuaca in the state of Oaxaca, had been assassinated a few days ago by disgruntled and discharged village officials.

Keen rivalry was said to have existed in the village between two factions, the old order having been recently supplanted by newer officials. Among the victims listed were Sixto Martinez, mayor, and Arnulfo Mendoza, chief of the social defense force.

Scolding Over Sunday Movies Causes Suicide

Edison, Ga., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Angered by a reprimand from her parents because she had attended a moving picture show on Sunday, Miss Pearline Hammack, of this city, committed suicide last night by shooting herself in the head with a revolver.

Miss Hammack had motored with a party of young people to Dothan, Ala., to attend the show. On her return her parents expressed disapproval of her action and she went to her room. Shortly afterward a shot was heard and the girl was found dead.

PAIR WERE ESTRANGED

Billings, Mont., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Enraged over his recent separation from his wife, Barney Benson, 33, a miner, shot and killed her, her stepfather, her mother and her brother and then shot and probably fatally wounded himself at Bibbtown, near here, today.

The dead are:

Beulah Benson, 27, wife of the slayer.

Mar Severson, 45, her stepfather.

Mrs. Mar Severson.

Garry Baker, 26, brother of Mrs. Benson.

Four younger brothers and sisters of Mrs. Benson were unharmed.

Benson came to the Severson home early today. He called Severson out and killed him. Mrs. Severson was shot when she ran to her husband. Entering the house, Benson encountered Baker and shot him down. He entered his wife's bedroom and shot her as she jumped off the bed where she was sleeping with a younger sister, Stella. The girl escaped through a window. Benson then went into the yard where he placed the muzzle of the gun under his chin and pulled the trigger.

Seville, Spain, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Three men who sailed across the Atlantic Ocean in the 35-foot sloop, Mary, fell out when the hazardous voyage was over and one of them was killed.

Dr. Francisco Caballero Francheschi was the skipper and Angelo Carbo his entire crew when the sloop left New York July 21 for Spain. Two days out Roberto Lopez, wealthy Porto Rican resident of New York, disclosed himself a stowaway. He had hid under the hatches until hunger and fear of suffocation drove him out.

The boat reached San Lucar de Barrameda, at the mouth of the Guadalquivir River, last Friday night. The next night, when the skipper returned to the sloop, an argument began with Carbo, which ended in the doctor's shooting the man. He fell overboard and the body has not been recovered.

Today the skipper and the stowaway were imprisoned to await an inquiry while the authorities, dragged the river for the body of the sailor.

Dr. Franceschi declared that the sailor, jealous of the attentions the other two were receiving while he was treated only as a helper, attacked him with a knife. He stated that the man had been released from prison only eighteen days before they sailed from San Juan, Porto Rico, June 8, and that he had signed him on only because he was unable to find any one daring enough for the voyage.

Snowden Relates Talks at Hague

Told French to Search Pockets Again, He Reveals in Speech.

London, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden reviewed The Hague conference on reparations in a long speech, broadcast by radio, tonight. He said he was convinced the British stand had made a profound impression with other countries.

The chancellor added personal touches to his narrative. In the last hours of the conference he said that Premier Jaspar, of Belgium, had exclaimed in despair: "I can't do more. Yo have emptied all our pockets."

"Go through your pockets again," the chancellor said he returned in kindly manner.

Snowden said that at that point some one "had a brain wave, and a hitherto unsuspected means of giving us what we needed was discovered, with the result already known."

Turtle Derby Won By 'Bobby Jones'

Golfer's Namesake Walks Off With $6,580 in Ponca City Race.

Ponca City, Okla., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—While the original Bobby Jones was starting in quest of another national amateur golf crown out in California, his namesake walked off today with the $6,580 first prize in the annual 101 Ranch Terrapin Derby.

"Bobby Jones," who had No. 3912 tagged on his hard back, is owned by R. S. Jarrell, bank cashier, and J. Ward McCague, postmaster, of Ralston, Okla.

Living up to his name, "Bobby" took the shortest cut to the grand championship. He never once veered off the "fairway" when the barrier was lifted. He stepped the 75 feet to the finish line in 1 minute and 19 seconds. He beat out Fire Fly, owned by Cecil Henline, of Bluff City, Kans., by at least six feet. Fire Fly won $1,250.

An Ancient Prejudice Has Been Removed

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes.

That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"IT'S TOASTED."

TOASTING, the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

"It's toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

PRESIDENT PLANS BACKWOODS SCHOOL

PUBLIC FUNDS LACKING

President Hoover has started a movement for the establishment of a school for the education of the Virginia backwoodsmen, near his mountain camp on Rapidan River. Impressed with the native wit and cunning of Ray Burraker, a 14-year-old country lad, who presented him with an oppossum two weeks ago, he conceived the idea of having the mountain children taught.

In the Carolinas and Georgia, many thousands of the men and women of the mountains have gone into the textile mill settlements.

Many schools like the one to be promoted by President Hoover in the oldrag area of Virginia, have sprung up in the South in recent years. Two noted schools, one at Berea, Ky., and one at Crossnore, N. C., were established to teach children just like Ray Burraker.

The President is in Virginia, and no one at the White House is acquainted with his plan for the school, but it is believed that his purpose is to join friends and help finance the proposed school. The Federal Government can not appropriate money for that sort of school.

Records in Government departments here show that not many years back mountain folk of the South resented interference with their ways of living. In some communities, agents of the forest service had to literally fight their way to bits of land they wanted to purchase. Now, in Virginia, where the Shenandoah National Park is being promoted, natives are resisting. They don't want to give up their little homes.

ROBBERS GET $250 FROM SIX PLACES

Garage, Two Filling Stations Pressing Shops and Store Looted, Report.

MERCHANDISE IS TAKEN

Six business places were robbed of $250 in cash and $525 in goods over the week-end, according to reports made yesterday to police.

A garage, two filling stations, two pressing shops and a store were the places entered.

The windows to Loffler's garage at Minnesota avenue and Benning road northeast was broken and a radio valued at $100 taken, Harry Linden reported. The Lord Baltimore Gas Station at Florida avenue and Rhode Island avenue northwest, was also entered. The robbers took a quantity of oil and $35 in cash, Harry L. Lloyd, 1715 De Sales street, manager, told police. The Lord Baltimore gas station at Fourteenth and S streets was reported robbed of $15.

Jesse Foster, 1400 Alabama avenue southeast, proprietor of the pressing shop at 1937 Eleventh street northwest, discovered that his place of business had been entered and clothing valued at $300 taken by robbers. Entrance was gained by removing the screen to a window. The tailor shop at 2123 California street northwest was also entered, Olaud Farr, proprietor, reported, and clothing valued at $125 stolen.

The store at 901 Third street northwest, operated by Nathan Misken, was broken into and $200 in cash stolen from the cash register, Misken told police yesterday morning. A panel in the rear door was broken by the robbers in gaining entrance to the place.

Clews Claimed In Girl's Killing

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Though Sheriff's deputies declared they had obtained important clews which they were confident would solve the case, the fatal shooting of 10-year-old Esther Groth at her parents' farm home near here Sunday was still a mystery tonight. Coroner E. A. Kingston has called an inquest for Wednesday morning.

The only persons known t ohave been on the farm when the girl was shot were her 16-year-old sister Viola and her 15-year-old brother Clarence. Authorities have been perplexed by the persistence with which Clarence has repeated, in answer to questions, "You can't hang anything on me." The victim herself, before losing consciousness, repeatedly, "I don't know; oh, I don't know," when asked who shot her.

The only weapon found was a shotgun containing two shells hanging above a door. Authorities said it evidently had not been shot for some time

Negro Boy Loses Life in Potomac

Rescue Squad's Efforts Fail to Revive Youth Who Swam Alone.

Clinton Lee, colored, 18 years old, 1831 B street northeast, was drowned shortly after noon yesterday while in swimming in the Potomac River off the Columbia Sand Wharf.

The Fire Rescue Squad recovered the body and worked for a half hour in an effort to resuscitate the boy. Physicians from Emergency Hospital who were called to the scene pronounced him dead.

The boy was said to have been in swimming alone at the time.

BABY GIRL IS FOUND NEAR TIDAL BASIN

Child, in Starving Condition, Expected to Win Back Health Soon.

MILK BOTTLE LIES NEAR

The crying of a starving 6-week-old girl abandoned near the Tidal Basin, led to its rescue about 8 o'clock last night by Park Policeman W. J. Hammond. A bottle of milk, equipped with a nipple, had turned sour nearby.

The infant was dressed in a white dress and wrapped in a blue striped blanket, but there was no mark on either article of covering to indicate ownership.

Physicians at the Children's Hospital, where the baby was taken, said it was suffering from undernourishment but that a few days of proper diet would bring it back to a healthy condition.

Lying within a few steps of the driveway, near the John Paul Jones monument on the north side of the Tidal Basin, the child had apparently been abandoned only a short while before, probably about sunset. It was reclining at the foot of a tree.

Police expressed the belief that some visitor, probably here with the crowds who witnessed the firemen's parade yesterday, had left the underfed creature to the mercy of the first passerby. It was not unlikely, they said, that the mother had perhaps harbored the intention of throwing her child in the basin, 100 yards away, but had relented almost at the last moment.

The milk had apparently been bought yesterday but had soured under the oppresive heat of the afternoon. The bottle was about half full. The blue eyes of the baby brightened appreciatively and a faint trace of a smile appeared as hospital attendants gave the foundling fresh milk before putting it to bed. In a few minutes it was lost in dreamland.

MODEL PLANES VIE IN CONTESTS TODAY

Finals in Second District Tournament Open at Community Center.

INDOORS EVENTS FIRST

The finals of the second annual District of Columbia Model Aircraft Tournament, conducted by the District of Columbia Model Aircraft League, under the auspices of the community center department, begin today with indoor events at Macfarland Community Center at 9:30 a. m. Today's program of contests includes helicopters, hand-launched, scientific, baby R. O. F. and R. O. F. Flying true scale.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 at Bolling Field, the outdoor events will be staged, and Friday the indoor events will be concluded at Macfarland Center.

Winners in the various events in the local tournament this week will be certified to the national committee for selection as eligible to fly in the Third Annual National Playground Minature Aircraft Tournament in Louisville, Ky., October 18 and 19. The national committee, including Orville Wright, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Porter S. Adams, Commander Richard Byrd, F. Trubee Davison, Amelia Earhart, Henry Ford, Harry F. Guggenheim, Clifford B. Harmon, Joseph Lee, William P. MacCracken, jr., Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Edward P. Warner, will select from the Nation-wide lists the five best records sent in for each event, in junior and senior classes, both indoor and outdoor events. These boys will be eligible to fly in the national tournament in Ocotber. They will represent the entire United States in model aircraft.

Local events this week in the tournament will be judged by Maj. H. C. Davison, United States Air Corps; Lieut. Bushrod Hoppin, Lieut. Lester Maitland, Lieut. J. E. Upston, Lieut. Walter Hinton, Lawrence Williams, Joseph S. Edgerton and Paul Garber.

Forest Fire Situation Worst in Years, Claim

The Pas, Manitoba, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Aviators who battled their way over miles of flame-swept territory in the mineral belts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba today expressed the opinion that the forest fire situation was the most serious in several years.

William J. Dean, pilot-geologist, reached here last night after being lost in the smoke haze near Cross Lake. He said that during most of his flight he was unable to locate the actual fires because of the smoke pall which spread over the entire district. Capt. "Pat" Kelly said the smoke was so thick he had to fly as low as 500 feet to pick his course.

Three Ribs Broken As Car Overturns

Paul Halsby, 24 years old, 2016 Fourteenth street southeast, received three fractured ribs early yesterday when an automobile he was driving overturned on Naylor road southeast, this side of the District line.

Halsby, police reported, was making a turn when his car upset. He was taken to Providence Hospital in a passing automobile for treatment.

DISABLED VETERANS WILL ASK MORE AID

PRESSING NEED IS TOLD

(Associated Press.)

Asserting that "the country does not want its disabled war veterans in poorhouses," William J. Murphy, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, announced yesterday that his organization would seek to have the special session of Congress authorize construction of additional veterans' hospitals.

In Washington for the first time since his election, Commander Murphy said he planned to get in touch with individual members of Congress in an effort to obtain their support for immediate passage of a bill authorizing the hospitals which already have been favorably reported by the House veterans committee.

The Disabled Veterans Association, he added, was concerned primarily with mental and nervous cases, which he said constituted the biggest problem of the future in dealing with the war injured. Quoting medical authorities as staing that the peak of insanity resulting from the World War would not be reached until 1947, Murphy said the country should begin building now for the future care of such cases.

"I have just completed an inspection trip over the entire country, and there is a very pressing need for more hospitals already, especially in the larger cities," he said. "The problem is not one for the individual States, but belongs properly to the Federal Government, in defense of which these men offered their lives."

Commander Murphy said his organization was solidly behind President Hoover's proposal to group all branches of the Government dealing with the care of war veterans under one body in order to simplify its work and to eliminate needless waste of money.

WIFE OF RANGER RESCUED IN WILDS

SUICIDE ATTEMPT FAILS

Cascade, Idaho, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Louise Higgins, 23-year-old wife of a forest ranger, who spent four nights wandering about in wilds at the head of the middle fork of the Salmon River and then shot herself in despair, was brought safely to White Creek ranger station tonight.

A physician said she would recover.

Mrs. Higgins was carried on a stretcher 15 miles over a mountain trail to the cabin toward which she had started last Wednesday morning only to become lost. Searchers found her yesterday morning so weak from exposure and from wounds that she was unable to eat. She had lost her horse in her vain endeavor to reach shelter in a wilderness where no shelter was available.

Dr. R. C. Ward, of Cascade, who rode a horse all night over 60 miles of mountain trail to reach her, declared tonight she would be left in the cabin for a few days and then would be started over the tortuous trial to the outside world and a hospital.

In the few statements she was able to make, she told of how her horse had fallen over a 6-foot embankment on the second day of her wandering, that being Thursday. She managed to scramble off and escaped the fall, but the horse broke away. The two sandwiches which she carried at the time she left her husband, Merlin Higgins, on an isolated trail to return to her cabin, were soon eaten and she lived on berries for the last three days.

Higgins was the second man to reach her side after Dick Spickelmire, Payette Forest Fire Guard, had found her when she answered his call. She was then in a thick patch of berry bushes, her clothes torn with thorns and soaked with water from her repeated wading through Trail Creek, which she had followed to near its head.

It was not learned when she gave up hope of rescue and shot herself with the small-caliber rifle she carried. Dr. Ward estimated it was probably Saturday, for the wounds had partly healed over. He said they were not serious though near the heart.

Her husband was with her tonight and word was sent to her father, Ed Valberg, of Caldwell, Idaho, who has been waiting at Penn Station, at the end of the trail, until she should be brought out. Her mother is dead.

Dr. Ward said he hoped to be able to start her in a stretcher over the trail toward Cascade some tomorrow.

Foresters at White Creek Station estimated it would take three days to bring her to Penn Station. From there she will be brought 30 miles by automobile to this town.

MARDI GRAS IS HELD AT SYLVAN THEATER

Band, both of Washington, were the other competitors.

Five Drum and Bugle Corps likewise competed, but the Victory Post, American Legion Band, winner in a parade contest, again placed first and took the two drums and two bugle prizes.

Dressed in bright blue coats and gray trousers with silver helmets, the Victory Corps made a striking appearance and played well, while their versatile baton wielder, John T. Carroll, 638 Franklin street northwest, added much to the performance with his clever juggling of the silver baton.

Boys Get Second Prize.

The Annapolis Boys Drum Corps took second prize, a drum and a bugle. The Firemen's, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Costello American Legion Post Corps were the other contestants.

Although limited in numbers, the Madri Gras contestants offered a varied array of costumes and make-ups. They represented ancient, modern and unusual characters.

Mrs. William F. Deffers and her three children, living at 214 Channing street northwest, won the most comical group award. They were dressed in Dutch costumes, and two of the children carried a banner with the legend, "Tulip Time in Holland." They led the parade. The father, William F. Deffer, costumed as a "hermit," also was a winner, taking the prize for the most comical costume.

Sam West and Jimmy Dalton, firemen stationed at engine house No. 10, won the most comical pair contest with the hobo act. Miss Dorothy Peaslock, of 1200½ Sixth street northwest, arrayed as a ballet dancer won the most beautiful costume prize, and Isabelle Latchford, of 1833 North Capitol street, dressed as Martha Washington, won the attractive lady's costume contest. The most original costume contest was won by Mildred Helroy, of 917 F street northwest, who was dressed as a Japanese girl.

Recommends this famous 2-minute home complexion rule . . .

Luis Tejero
BARCELONA

WHEREVER you go, beauty experts today have one complexion rule in common. Here in Washington—in the great beauty capitals of America and the world—they are unanimous on one point.

"Foundation cleansing" is what they call it. And beauty treatments without it are only half effective, they will tell you. Foundation cleansing simply means a skin thoroughly, gently, cleansed with palm and olive oils regularly.

Each day your complexion is exposed to germ-laden air. Rouge and make-up, if left on, will clog the pores. Regular basic cleansing is needed.

What great experts say

Twice each day, follow the rule of these greatest cosmeticians. Cleanse the skin as they recommend with Palmolive Soap. An improved complexion is bound to be your reward.

Palmolive today is universally urged by the world's authorities on beauty In every city and town in America, in the great capitals of Europe, those who tend the world's greatest, say: "Wash the face for beauty with Palmolive."

The importance of "foundation cleansing."

This internationally-preferred complexion soap is blended of the oils of olive and palm. These two great cosmetic oils penetrate the pores gently, rid them of their dangerous secretions, leave the skin fresh, radiant and supple.

With such a basis, beauty treatments then are doubly effective. Each night at home do this for two full minutes.

Massage the face with a smooth balmy lather of Palmolive, using your two hands. After two minutes, rinse—first with warm, then colder water, until all impurities are washed away, until the pores are closed and the skin is firm and radiant. That is all!

Read above the advice of one of the great experts of this city In Paris, Mme. Cavalieri is telling her distinguished clientele the same. In Vienna, Pessl echoes her. In Berlin, in London, in Rome—greatest authorities agree on this.

Consult your own beauty adviser. Her experience will bear out this advice. She, too, you will find, knows that natural beauty comes from foundation cleansing.

TWO DIE AS CRASH IN BAY SINKS SHIP

Trapped Inside Hull, Men Go to Bottom With Doomed Vessel.

DIVERS TO BE LOWERED

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—With the bodies of her second assistant engineer and a fireman imprisoned in her hull, the Bull Line steamer Dorothy, a freighter, today was on the bottom of Chesapeake Bay, victim of a collision early yesterday morning with the American steamship Eurania, near the mouth of the Potomac, at Fishermans Point. All the other members of the crew, which numbered 30, were saved by the Eurania, of the Isthmian Line, which proceeded to Newport News for repairs at dry docks there.

The two freighters collided in the darkness. The Dorothy, hit amidships on her starboard side, sank within 30 minutes after the crash, ship officials said, carrying to death Lewis D. Paris, of Baltimore, second assistant engineer, and Gilberto Ruiz, fireman, of San Juan, Porto Rico, who were below decks at the time.

The Dorothy, known along the Atlantic Coast in the coastwise trade, was proceeding up Chesapeake Bay with a cargo of phosphate rock for discharge at Baltimore. The Eurania was proceeding down the bay, en route from Baltimore to New York, and was loaded partially with general cargo.

Members of the crew of the Dorothy today declared that they did not know how the accident happened, since the crash came so quickly. The weather was clear, they said.

Plans were being made today by the Bull Line officials in New York to send down divers to attempt to recover the bodies of the two men who were lost. Whether an effort to raise the Dorothy will be made or not is undetermined. The steamer is said to lie in 110 feet of water, a depth that would make salvage operations exceedingly difficult, shipping men said. Agents for the Dorothy today declared that the ship with her cargo was worth approximately three-quarters of a million dollars.

200 Cases Tried In Police Court

Holiday Grind Reveals 300 Have Forfeited Collateral.

Although yesterday was a holiday, Police Court officials went to work at 10 o'clock with the prospect of trying 539 persons on various charges. As the grind got under way, however, it developed that only about 200 persons were to be tried, the remainder having forfeited collateral.

A check of cases in all branches of the court revealed that 13 persons were in the dock on traffic charges and 107 out on collateral; 30 persons were in jail on charges coming under the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia branch of the court, while 140 were out on collateral, and 56 in jail on charges coming under jurisdiction of the United States branch and 193 out on collateral.

While all the judges expressed the desire to close court as quickly as possible in order to view the Labor Day parade, all held their courts open until all cases had been disposed of.

Liquor Raider Is Slain As He Leaves Church

Gadsden, Ala., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Deputy Sheriff John W. O'Bryan, 43 years old, was shot and killed shortly after he walked out of a church at Hales Schoolhouse, 12 miles south of here, last night. Ed Heaton, 35, whose home was raided in a liquor search early yesterday, surrendered to police and was charged with first degree murder.

Sheriff J. L. Grannling said O'Bryan had removed a gallon of whisky from the home of Heaton in the raid. O'Bryan was shot five times. The first bullet struck him in the chest just above the heart, others entering the abdomen, shoulder and head.

CHAPTER XXII.

After the second rehearsal of "Clock Shop Clockers," Younger Brett admitted to his cast that further preparation for the musical comedy was impossible without a leading man, and Miriam came to the rescue.

"I'll have a leadin' man with looks, youth, voice and snappy feet tomorrow night," she declared. And the next evening when they assembled in Buckingham Hall, Miriam walked in with no other than the reluctant Timmy Fitzmoan.

"Here he is, Brett," Miriam announced. "Ain't he a match for Mary Della?"

Brett laughed. Timmy had everything but experience and a desire to take the part, but Brett knew that he could not longer look a gift horse in the muzzle.

"You're a wonder, Miriam," he announced. "I don't know why I didn't think of Timmy before. Timmy, here's your chance to make Lindbergh a second-rate attraction. How about it?"

Timmy was far from enthusiastic, but he caught Mary Della's wink and succumbed. "I'll do my best, Brett," he promised, "but it's a new line for me, if you know what I mean."

"I'll tell you what, Brett," Mary Della said. "Throw in a couple of petting scenes and Timmy'll feel right at home, won't you, Timmy?"

"Sure," said Timmy, "if it's with you."

"All right," Brett called out, holding a hand up for quiet; "we'll try to make Timmy comfortable by beginning with the scene where the wealthy young man takes the good-looking little clocker out to tea at a roadhouse. Some of you get hold here and help me put this table and chairs up on the stage."

The table and chairs put in place, Mary Della sat at one side and Timmy opposite.

"Now," said Brett, "everybody else move back to about the middle of the hall and holler out if they don't talk loud enough. Ready, Mary Della? Just read your lines tonight, Timmy, and you can learn them before the next rehearsal."

Brett backed down the aisle until he stood opposite the idle but thrilled cast.

"Go ahead, Timmy; break her heart."

Timmy rested his elbows on the table and read his lines.

"My dear young woman, has it ever occurred to you that you are wasting your talents in a factory when you might be presiding over a palace of luxury, dressed in silks and satins with pearls and diamonds around your beautiful neck, and——"

"Wait a minute! Wait a minute! You're not reading the Congressional Record, Timmy. Put some feeling into it. You're drawing a picture with the idea of winning her away from her present environment. Don't you see?"

"What's a present environment?" asked Timmy.

"It doesn't matter. You're making love, see? Now start over, and let Mary Della know you mean what you're saying."

Timmy showed some improvement on the second reading. Then for several minutes the dialogue went something like this:

"My flower, my beautiful lily of the fields that toils not nor spins, you are like a golden sunset, your eyes are two bright stars set in a deep azure heaven, your neck is like marble, finely chiseled, your——"

Mary Della: "Just a minute there; you've recited enough poetry. What's on your mind besides slickum?"

Timmy: "Ah, you would be cruel. You would break my poor heart. Pity me, dear lady of love, in my moment of distress, I am overcome."

Mary Della: "Maybe it's too close in here. But if I understand you're making love, what have you got to offer besides a lot of jack and that line of hooey you've been spouting?"

Timmy: "What, indeed. What but a heart full of devotion, my own. All my life I will lie at your feet, sweet one, seeking only to keep you happy. At your feet, you beautiful gift from heaven, always at your feet."

Mary Della: "That's no sales argument, big boy. My feet ain't cold, and if they was, a collie or cat would do the trick. What else you good for?"

"Now just a minute," Brett called from the center of the hall. He turned to those sitting with chins on the seat backs, their faces betraying a suspence not justified by the action on the stage.

"Right there where Mary Della says 'What else you good for?' is where you waitresses go in and sing 'Kippy, Kappy, Kip,' and do your dance. Now here's the way you enter, and take your places on——"

"Mary Della——"

"Yes, Timmy?"

Brett's voice was like the drone of a great beetle far, far away.

"I wish he'd let me talk to you like I want to. . . ."

"How do you want to talk, Timmy?"

"It's not how; it's what I'd say to you if you'd listen and know I meant what I said."

"Don't mind me, Timmy. You're a wealthy manufacturer's son and I'm only a fair looking clocker. What's on your mind?"

"It's in my heart, Mary Della. What makes you treat me like you do, Mary Della? I know I sound like this bozo that's supposed to be making love to you, but I mean it. You're the sweetest girl in the world to me, Mary Della. I've thought so since the first time I laid eyes on you, and I'll always think so. Gosh, you don't know what I'd do for you, if I had a chance."

'Well, you are the Romeo now, aren't you, Timmy? Oh, don't be hurt. You know how this love stuff hits me."

'But—and you don't love me just a little bit, Mary Della?"

She put both her hands on his. "You're a brick, Timmy," she whispered; "and right at this instant I could love you without half trying."

A loud guffaw in the dim hall caused them to look up suddenly.

"What's he doing, Mary Della," Brett asked, "practicing his lines?"

"He was just telling me," Mary Della answered, "what a flathead Ziegfeld is for not having me in the Follies."

"Say," cried Brett, "he's stealing my stuff. But I'll tell you about it later. Now, let's bring the chorus into the roadhouse."

* * * *

It was late afternoon of the following day that the C. E. called the assistant city editor into executive conference.

"Charlie, I've got some information that'll knock your hat off."

"Take it out of storage, then," the assistant city editor coaxed. "Believe me, I need something to bolster up my spirits. Things around this burg are certainly flat right now."

The C. E. packed his pipe and lit it off.

"Well, I'll remind you of just two things before I break it. You remember the description of the girl who went in the drug store for an envelope?"

"I can almost see her."

"Good. And then, the yellow car the police are looking for. Very long, and very yellow. . . ."

"I've seen a hundred that fit in the last two days."

"So have I, but I've seen one that fits perfectly, which is something else again. You know I didn't get the full significance of that description. But whoever it was that described it as very long and very yellow meant just that and nothing less. Not one of the longer roadsters, you understand, but a roadster so long that it was almost out of proportion and would be conspicuous because of its length. The same goes for the color, not simply a yellowy yellow, but a vivid yellow that would hit you right between the eyes. Follow me?"

"I'm convinced," impatiently. "Go on."

"Charlie, I saw that car Friday night as sure as I'm alive."

"Thehellyoudid!"

"Well, I did. About the longest boat I think I've ever seen, and yellow? I didn't know anything could be so yellow. I was on my way home from the policeman's ball and the car passed me just as I stepped off the curb at the corner of Field and Grand streets. I could have touched it as it went by."

"Why didn't you call a cop?"

"Wait a minute. How do I know there aren't other cars just like that one? And if I had been dead certain it was THE car, I wouldn't have called a cop. You and I are taking care of the Red Mask mystery just now. But I haven't told you everything.

"There was a young fellow in a raccoon coat driving, and with him was a girl about 18 or 19 years old, I'd say. They were dragging along in no hurry at all toward Bank street, which put the girl on my side. I got a good look at her there at the corner and——"

"She had on a green leather jacket?" the assistant city editor was half out of his chair.

The C. E. waved his hand through a cloud of smoke to clear the atmosphere. "No, she didn't have on a green leather jacket, I'm sorry to say."

"That's a tough break, all right." The assistant city editor relaxed once more.

"But here's a funny thing, Charlie," the C. E. resumed. "That girl's face was familiar, and for some reason I think of it in relation to a green leather jacket. It may be that I'm trying to force the picture, of course, but then it may be that I've seen that girl somewhere wearing the green jacket."

"Granted you're right," said the assistant city editor, "you can't have a girl hauled in as a material witness to an abstract murder because you think you've seen her wearing something somebody said some girl who wrote the cops was wearing. If that's too complicated, I'll put it this way: I think you're seeing things, Ray."

"Maybe I am. Maybe I'm not. That's for you and me to find out."

"How?"

"Grab the phone there and tell the operator to get you the State motor vehicle department in Hartford. When they answer, ask them who owns the car with this marker number. . . ."

He shoved a slip of paper across the desk. The assistant city editor turned it around quickly.

"Where'd you get that?"

"That's the number on the yellow roadster I was telling you about," said the C. E. and ambled out to the wire room.

Five minutes later as he came back into the city room, the C. E. was all but run over by the assistant city editor.

"I got it, Ray! Look at this. Yale boy and everything. This begins to look good."

The C. E. took the piece of copy paper and read the notes: "Robert H. Calkman. Address Yale University, New Haven." "Yes sir, that looks interesting."

"And now what?"

"Well, I don't know. Probably the best thing to do would be to go over and pay our respects to this young man in person. Yes, that's the thing to do. We'll go over, put our cards on the table and see what he has to say for himself. If we're on the wrong track, we'll crawl out the best we can. If he's our man—Well, we'll find out what he knows about the murder."

"Tonight?"

"No, can't make it tonight. Let's plan to get away right after the stock edition's put to bed tomorrow. It's a long shot, but it's worth taking. We may com back with a scoop, and we may come back with a couple of black eyes. But it ought to be a lot of fun either way."

Shopping with Bab

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

Ho hum! Well, after the week-end and so much holiday, and so much fun, it seems hardly worth while to think about shopping, but when you step out around town and see all the attractive displays in the shops you will feel inspired to begin your fall buying. It is true that along Connecticut avenue many of the shops are still closed, and will remain so for another week or ten days. Some shops are opening this week. There is a great feeling of expectancy in the air, what with all the new places opening and old places in new quarters.

The Cavalier Has Hotel Service

—and is quite as popular for transients as for permanent guests. Mr. Mifflin Blackistone, who is well known in Washington, has recently come on from the Fairfax in Pittsburgh to be directing manager of this hotel. He is a successful hotel manager, and will put into effect some wise plans for comfortable living in the Cavalier.

The Cavalier is at 3500 Fourteenth street, and has a splendid cafe in connection. Many people like to live out a little way from the traffic of the center of town and to be at the same time within easy distance of all important places and events. The Cavalier is exactly what you want in a stopping place for a day, week, month or year. Apartments of one, two and three rooms are furnished, ready for occupancy. Larger apartments, unfurnished, are available, too.

While You Are Looking Fresh

—from your vacation, you'd better go in and have some pictures made at Underwood & Underwood's. Before you know it you will be in the whirl of much ado about nothing, but nevertheless as busy as can be, and looking fagged accordingly.

You want your picture to reflect your best moods, and to show you at your very prettiest, so this is the time to have them made.

The window at Underwood & Underwood's this week has one lovely portrait of a beautiful blonde young girl, which indicates very well what this famous studio does with such a perfect subject.

Even though you are not, in your own estimation, a raving beauty, you have some good points, and an artist who is clever enough to catch those, softening your less appealing features, is to be commended. This can be done without losing any of your natural characteristics.

Make your appointment at Underwood & Underwood's for a sitting now, without fail, before your life becomes a busy maze.

Off for Europe In September

—is better than not going at all. In fact, many travelers consider it the ideal time to go to the other side. One reason why so many people are going this year is on account of the exposition in Seville. Now that the weather is so much cooler, it will be pleasant to visit Spain and enjoy the brilliance and fascination of Seville.

The C. C. Drake Travel Bureau in the Willard Hotel is booking passages as fast as they can be handled. Go in and ask Miss Moorhead about it. She will arrange your itinerary and all that.

Exquisite Ware From Dresden

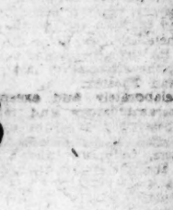
—begins to make its appearance in the exhibits at Martin's 1317 Connecticut avenue. Since Mr. Martin's return from abroad, boxes and hampers filled with rare finds in crystal and china are following him on every boat.



This shop has always had, since its initial opening about two years ago, the finest selections imaginable in all sorts of lovely things. The new exhibits will be finer than anything heretofore, because Mr Martin selected everything himself while abroad this summer in Paris, Dresden, Vienna, Florence, Prague, Haida (I expect to see some gorgeous things from Czechoslovakia, don't you?), from Vienna, Berlin and many other cities.

I think you might be interested to have a talk with Mr. Martin and let him tell you some of the impressions he has of the changing vogue in objects d'art, and the new manner in fine wares for the table. The best way to have a really comprehensive idea of the fashions in china and glass is to go in from time to time and inspect the importations as they arrive.

Affectionately,

Bab

STADIUM THRONGED WITH MERRYMAKERS

BABY PARADE CHEERED

An impressive slice of Washington's merrymaking populace and a host of holiday visitors spent a hilarious afternoon yesterday at Griffith Stadium in voicing their noisy approbation and enjoyment of the three feature events in the firemen's Labor Day festivities, climaxing with the annual police-fire fighters' baseball game which the smoke eaters won in ten innings by a 12-to-11 score. Thronging into the stadium soon after the termination of the gala morning parade, the crowd of 15,000 persons completely filled the main sections of the massive grand stand, many of the boxes, and beyond, almost solidly to Section R, facing left field. Officials declared the throng to be the largest ever to witness the yearly diamond clash of the two District protective services.

Getting off to a rousing start promptly at 1 o'clock, the afternoon attractions opened with a musical extravanga by the United States Marine Band, which ran the gamut of tunes from choice classical bits down to an array of popular airs and the ballads and plantation songs of the Old South. Concluding their formal concert a half-hour later, the Marines struck up their famous marching number, "Semper Fidelis," and kept the crowd at a high peak of enthusiasm with their almost constant playing throughout the game.

Babies Are Paraded.

At the stroke of 1:30 o'clock came the second major attraction of the afternoon, the baby-carriage parade, which brought forth an even dozen entrants in a colorful procession that wended its way amid the cheers of the crowd around the baseball infield and in front of the judges several times.

First prize of $50 in the baby parade went to little Doris Mary Deffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Deffer, of 214 Channing street northwest. The baby was the central figure in a Dutch costumed group in which the carriage in which she was seated, was pushed by Mrs. Deffer, with her two other children at her side. All wore colorful checkered Holland clothes, with quaint caps and wooden shoes.

Second prize of $25 went to Elizabeth Marie and Dorothy Anna Winters, twins, who were pushed around together in a baby carriage by their mother. Little Shirley Thomas was awarded third prize of $15. Honorable mention was announced for five other entrants.

Much Applause Heard.

By this time the influx of spectators had become so great that many surged out in front of the Stadium and gave vent to their spirit of revelry by salvos of applause for the infant competitor of their choice. In accordance with a prearranged plan, the baby parade contenders then were waved off the field by the judges who made their selection in a secret conference for the subsequent announcement at the celebration last night at the Sylvan Theater.

The elaborately and exceptionally novel perambulators and miniature floats, bearing tots from swaddling clothes ages up to several-years-old youngsters, were accorded a rousing ovation and the crowd apparently reaped a real "kick" in viewing the unscheduled antics of the newer generation.

Crowd Laughs at Altrock.

The baseball players immediately took the field and entertained the gallery with speedy practice sessions that brought forth applause and cheers repeatedly for sensational catches or lusty clouts with the bat to all corners of the park. Meanwhile several clowns cavorted with rib-splitting stunts, but it remained for Nick Altrock to cop the honors with a mock exhibition at first base after accidentally smashing a straw hat he seized from Odell Smith, chairman of the citizens' committee for the Labor Day events. The crowd shrieked with laughter as the Washington ball club comedian staged his mimics. Nearby a little costumed girl vied for attention with an exceptionally clever acrobatic demonstration that also won her the plaudits of the throng.

Just before 3 o'clock, the Marine Band struck up the "Star-Spangled Banner," bringing the crowd to its feet in marching onto the field at the head of a procession that included members of the citizens' Labor Day committee, fifteen pairs of policemen and firemen, the newly-organized 30-piece drum and bugle corps of the District Fire Department, Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, director of the entire Labor Day celebration, at the head of his committee, and finally members of both the police and the firemen's baseball teams with their diminutive mascots.

Throng Howls With Delight.

The crowd, now roused to a high pitch of enthusiasm, literally howled with amusement at a brief comedy skit presented by Altrock and Al Schacht, his companion funster on the Washington Team, who staged a baseball game in pantomime until a heated flurry of arm-waving and posturing sent them into a mock prize fight. One laugh followed another in rapid succession until Altrock finally sent his comrade down for the count in imitation of slow-motion movies.

District Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro a few moments later stood up in a box seat and threw out the ball that opened the game. The keen rivalry existing between the representatives of the two protective organizations of the District was evidenced from the outset and the spirit readily gripped those in attendance. Support appeared about equally divided, and the frequent "breaks" in the game kept the stands in an uproar the greater portion of the time.

Overturning Boat Drowns Five Men

Sixth Man Saves His Life by Clinging to Craft in Lake.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Five men were drowned in Long Lake, west of here, today when the motorboat in which they were riding overturned while making a sharp turn. A sixth man saved his life by clinging to the overturned boat.

The dead: Harry Wessman, Everett Velsman, John Horving, Neal Gilderloff and George Ottenhoff. The sixth occupant of the boat was Thomas Kuzenga. All six lived either in Chicago or its suburbs.

The body of Ottenhoff later was recovered. Crews were still dragging the lake tonight in search of the other four bodies.

The six men had rented a cottage on the lake shore, and were spending the Labor Day holiday there.

near the head of the column, the Annapolis Fire Departments' new combination fire engine, hook and ladder, hose truck and rescue wagon, which carries everything but the kitchen sink. Then there came the District's oldest piece of fire apparatus, the first hand-drawn fire truck ever used in Washington.

This was followed by Barney, Gene and Tom, last survivors of the premotor era, proudly stepping along with the old steamer they rushed to blazes in the day before they retired on pension to spend their remaining moments gossiping about the good old days over buckets of oats.

Overhead, the whine of motors droned as a fleet of planes dipped and circled and stunted high up where the clouds would have been if there had been any clouds. And the planes were joined momentarily from time to time by homing pigeons released from one of the floats on the ground below.

As they approached the reviewing stand, in front of the Post Building, at Fourteenth street and the Avenue, Gov. Ritchie and his personal aide, Joseph A. Burkart; Sergt. Bargagni and George S. Watson, chief of the District Fire Department, retired from the column and watched the rest of the procession from the stand, together with District Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3rd, in charge of public buildings and public parks; Odell Smith, and Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Ambulances Chase Photographers.

Where Pennsylvania avenue is under repair, at Eleventh street, the columns deployed into a compact line which passed the reviewing stand in the right-hand half of the road, leaving plenty of room for the army of newspaper and newsreel photographers, except on those frequent occasions when ambulances, headed by motorcycle policemen with their sirens wide open, sped along to pick up some marcher or spectator who had found the heat too oppressive. Then there was a great scurrying to move cameras and equipment out of the line of the emergency vehicles.

When the fire fighters from Waynesboro, Pa., arrived opposite the reviewing stand the cameramen forgot for the moment that there was a parade in progress, for the Waynesboro boys had very thoughtfully brought along their own waterboy, a youthful Negro proudly marching along, decorated with a string of medals that dangled from his shoulder to his shoestops.

It was surprising that of 126 floats, there was practically no duplication of ideas. In fact, only one instance was seen, one of the local companies and the Sparrows Point (Md.) Fire Department, both having taken their motif from the Toonerville Trolley. But it was only basically that they conflicted; their methods of carrying out the motif were entirely different.

Drill Teams Here Too.

Several of the visiting fire companies brought their drill teams along and these went through their maneuvers flawlessly without delaying the column as they drilled, but it remained for the Hope Fire Company, of Harrisburg, Pa., to be the only one with a singing band, the voices of the chanters sounding a distinctly novel and pleasing note as they blended with the strains of the instruments.

On the other hand, the Washington Boys' Independent Band, deservedly one of the prize winners when awards were announced last night, countered with the distinction of having the only feminine drum major in the long column.

As hostess to the visiting firemen, Miss Mildred Bargagni won the frank admiration of the men and the equally frank envy of the women spectators as she rode in state on the first float, radiating smiles to answer the cheers that greeted her.

No Monotony in Line.

To the casual eye, there seemed an utter lack of consistency in arranging the line-up, but to the initiated who were aware of Sergt. Bargagni's purpose to make the parade a spectacular array of color and contrast rather than a mere line of marchers, there was apparent the successful achievement of many sleepless nights devoted to planning an arrangement that would bring before the eyes of the crowd something different every instant, with no parking space for monotony.

Thus there would be a company of aging veteran fire fighters of the old cartwheel-alarm era followed immediately by an elaborately beautiful float depicting some phase of the all important relationship which exists between the fire department and the public it protects. This, in turn, would be followed perhaps by some outlandishly ridiculous caricature of the smoke-eating profession which would bring gales of laughter from the sidelines as its crew clowned in a manner that showed that plenty of circuses would do well to send their recruiting scout out to make a round of the nation's conflagrations.

As the last of the paraders reached the Treasury and disbanded, the crowd dispersed and its component parts headed singly and in groups for American League Park, where the baby carriage contest at 1:30 o'clock was the next event on the program, followed by the baseball games in which the firemen won in 10 innings 12 to 11, thus making it a perfect day for the fire department.

Prizes for all of the various events of the day, the float contest, band contest, baby carriage contest and all the rest, were announced at the Sylvan Theater at 7 o'clock, just before the start of the Mardi Gras, which was the crowning event of the crowded day.

Costumes Colorful Feature.

Hundreds of picturesque, daring, beautiful, grotesque or comic costumes were displayed as thousands of spectators cheered the funmakers who brought to the occasion all of the carnival spirit of old France in its most carefree moments.

And so came to a gorgeous close one of the most elaborate and successful pageants in the history of Washington, placing the Capital definitely on the records as peer of the cities that celebrate special occasions with special events.

Alleged Nude Bathers Are Shotgun Targets

Pittsburgh, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Said to have been disporting nude in Paris Lake, a nearby swimming pool, Donald U. Patton and Herman Stetzer each received a slug from shotguns alleged ot have been fired by James Crawford, 50 years old, and his brother, Victor, today.

The police say the boys were in a party of six youths who were enjoying their daily bath sans costumes. Patton was shot in the right leg and Stetzer is suffering from a shot in the left hip. The Crawfords, who operate the resort, are charged with felonious shooting and aggravated assault and battery.

200,000 CROWD CITY FOR HOLIDAY EVENTS

Every Train, Bus and Auto Bring Visitors to See Vivid Pageantry.

FIREMEN IN GALA ATTIRE

By train, bus and automobile, thousands of visitors poured into Washington yesterday to witness the spectacular pageantry of the Capital City's Labor Day celebration.

Imbued with a carnival spirit and interested in the numerous competitions, these out-of-town throngs began arriving Sunday night by every mode of conveyance. The first special train over the Baltimore & Ohio, bearing visiting firemen and their admirers, arrived early in the night. Two more special trains brought in other crowds yesterday morning, while every one of the 120 regular trains into Washington during the night and morning bore additional throngs.

Special buses numbering between 75 and 100 were loaded with visitors, as were about 150 regular buses arriving prior to the opening of the pageantry. All the hotels were filled to overflowing and available rooms in the city were as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, it was stated by visitors, who sought accommodations in the outlying and residential sections.

Government Offices Close.

The Government and District offices closed Saturday until today. Most of the business establishments in the city likewise were closed during the holiday. Thousands of Washingtonians took advantage of the occasion to depart on week-end tripe to shore and countryside. But their places were more than filled by the vast host of visitors from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other places. Many came to witness their home-town firemen march for honors in the parade, while others came just to make a holiday.

Approximately 150,000 spectators lined Pennsylvania avenue, from the Peace Monument, at the foot of the Capitol, to the Treasury Building and beyond, as the parade of Washington and visiting fire-fighters got under way, while the entire holiday crowd in the city was estimated at 200,000 or more.

Fire companies from at least six States, with the Maryland forces headed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, competed for cheers and honors with Washington's best. It was a gala day for the Washington firemen in their role of host and participants.

Ball Game Draws Many.

Although the parade itself, several miles in length, was the biggest single event of the day, the decorated baby carriage parade and the annual firemen's and policemen's ball game at the Griffith Stadium drew throngs which packed the huge grandstands from bottom to top in the afternoon.

Out-of-town fire companies, the largest number ever participating in a Labor Day parade here, included contingents from Sunbury, Pa.; Owings Mill, Md.; Glen Burnie, Md.; Kensington, Md.; Jersey Shore, Pa.; Hampsted, Md.; Brentwood, Md.; Potomac, Va.; Laurel, Md.; Leonardtown, Md.; Cambridge, Md.; Riverdale, Md.; Boulevard Heights, Md.; Branchville, Md.; Seat Pleasant, Md.; Bethesda, Md.; Mount Rainier, Md.; Silver Spring, Md.; Hyattsville, Md.; Bradley Beach, N. # Engineer Is Only Man Hurt in Unusual Wreck

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Frank Sands, engineer on the Pine Bush branch of the Erie Railroad, is in the Horton Memorial Hospital here as hte only victim of an unusual accident today a few miles from here.

Due to the spreading of rails, the engine tank left the track and a passenger coach turned on its side. The passengers escaped injury. Four physicians and surgeons were rushed to the scene. Sands will recover.

JAPANESE STATESMANSHIP.

The skilled and patriotic statesmen of Japan have publicly proclaimed their deep and heartfelt interest in the cause of naval disarmament. They are in accord with Ramsay MacDonald's ideas and with the statements about naval reduction emanating from America. The Japanese government, it is announced, may be counted upon to promote and encourage disarmament, both for the sake of economy and for the sake of world peace.

It may be confidently asserted that Japan's interest in the cause will not waver or wane. The Japanese government has a perfect record of attendance at international disarmament conferences. Japan helped along at the Washington conference and her delegates joined in the applause when Mr. Hughes, on behalf of America, dramatically announced the scrapping of $330,000,000 worth of the most modern American ships. Japan was present at Geneva in 1927, and her delegates expressed regret over the failure of America and Great Britain to agree. Japan will be present at the next disarmament conference, whenever and wherever it is held. So far as Tokyo is concerned, the naval disarmament movement must be kept alive and flourishing.

But while awaiting the call to the next naval reduction conference, Japan calmly announces to the world that she is about to lay down 4 new modern 10,000-ton cruisers, each armed with 10 guns of 8-inch caliber, together with 15 other cruisers or up-to-date vessels of war. There is doubt here as to whether these fifteen ships are to be all cruisers, or whether cruisers of undetermined size are to be included in the list of fifteen. The press reports stated that they were to be all cruisers, but the Japanese government has neither affirmed nor denied this report. Neither the State Department nor the Navy Department had advance information of the Japanese plan.

When Senator Hale, chairman of the Senate naval affairs committee, submitted his comparison of American and Japanese cruiser strength to the Senate a few months ago, he did not include any of the nineteen new Japanese ships now to be constructed. There was no inkling at that time that Japan proposed to embark on this building program.

Without counting the four new Japanese cruisers, or the fifteen other vessels to be laid down, the Japanese cruiser strength is far superior to that of the United States. A comparison shows how Japan is forging ahead and America is falling behind. But there is psychological and hypothetical parity of good intentions when it comes to academic discussion of naval disarmament.

Japan now has two 10,000-ton cruisers, carrying ten 8-inch guns, actually in commission. The United States has no 10,000-ton cruiser in commission.

Japan has in commission four 7,100-ton modern cruisers capable of making 33 knots and carrying 8-inch guns. They were all built after the Washington Treaty of 1921-22. In addition, Japan has 21 cruisers in commission with a total tonnage of 105,555.

America has ten 7,500-ton cruisers carrying 6-inch guns, with an aggregate tonnage of 75,000, to be compared to the superior 8-inch-gun Japanese cruisers. The nineteen old American cruisers to be sold for junk or other purposes do not figure in any comparison. So far as actual present-day cruiser strength is concerned, Japan is so far superior to America that comparison would be pointless.

The American building program, started in 1924, will produce eight 10,000-ton cruisers, two of which will soon be ready.

Japan is building six 10,000-ton cruisers, laid down at the rate of two each in 1925, 1927 and 1928. Now she proposes to add four more 10,000-ton cruisers and fifteen other vessels, of a class and tonnage not revealed. Meanwhile America's fifteen-cruiser program, authorized by Congress, is made uncertain, with persistent reports that a way is to be found to avoid carrying out part of the program.

Japanese statesmen are impressed with naval disarmament as a symbol of enlightened civilization. But the Japanese do not wish to appear selfish by applying the benefits of disarmament to themselves.

LET THE STATES CONSERVE.

Operation of California's new natural gas conservation law, which went into effect September 1, will be watched with interest throughout the country. Out of the numerous attempts that have been made in the last year to eliminate waste from the production of petroleum and gas, this is the only measure that has become effective. The Government refused to approve the American Petroleum Institute's plan of limiting production, and the States thus far have been unable to agree on a program of uniform action. If the California law is successful, it will no doubt be adopted by Texas and Oklahoma, the other major oil-producing States, and many ills of the industry will be overcome.

E. B. Reeser, president of the institute, reports that most of the oil companies of California have pledged themselves to cooperate in carrying out the new law. He expects that 80 per cent of the waste in natural gas will be eliminated within a week, and that California's oil output will be reduced by 200,000 barrels daily. The importance of this measure may be seen from the fact that more than 600,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas has been escaping into the air every day. With this waste curtailed and overproduction halted, it is believed that the oil industry, so far as California is concerned, will be on the way to stabilization.

The problem of oil conservation on private land is clearly one for the States. Heretofore every Western State has been so anxious to develop its industries that little thought has been given to conservation. The action of California gives hope that the other oil-producing States will wake up to the necessity of stopping wholesale waste and overdevelopment. These States are desirous of obtaining control of the Government land within their borders, chiefly for its wealth in minerals and oil. Western senators scoffed at the recent proposal of President Hoover that surface rights to the public lands be turned over to the States. They are not willing to meet the expense of administering this land unless the valuable oil reserves go with the offer. Yet the Western States have shown themselves wholly incompetent to conserve the oil resources already within their jurisdiction. To demand control over the Government reserves under such conditions is preposterous.

Before the States can hope to gain control of the oil lands they must demonstrate their capability of conserving them. This can best be done by protecting private lands from wasteful exploitation. California has set the States a good example. Much will be learned from operation of its new statute, and this experience will serve as a guide for future legislation. When waste and unwarranted exploitation have been eliminated it will be time for the Western States to bid for control of Government oil lands.

FOREST FIRE LOSSES.

With the passing of summer forest fires are becoming less of a menace. But vast areas of valuable timber land have been burned over during the dry, hot months, particularly in the Northwest. The Forest Service has spent millions in fighting these blazes, but the saving has been much larger than the cost.

Most forest fires occur on unprotected lands. Organized protection has now been extended to 389,498,000 acres of forest, 30,000,000 acres being added to this area last year. Fires burned over 1.14 per cent, or 4,428,500 acres, of this land in 1928, causing damage estimated at $8,583,620. This loss is small compared with the damage on forests not under systematized protection. A report of the Department of Agriculture shows that the unprotected area, amounting to 178,855,000 acres, sustained losses of $74,350,000 last year. Nearly 40,000,000 acres of forest were destroyed. The area of unprotected forest is less than one-half as large as the protected forests, but its fire losses are more than eight times as great. If fires continue at the present rate on unprotected lands it will only be a matter of five years until the entire area has been burned over.

The responsibility of fire protection does not fall entirely on the Government. The States and private interests own large tracts of forest land which remain without protection. As rapidly as possible this area should be brought into the protected zones. It is ridiculous to talk of reforestation on areas which are liable to be burned over once in five years. The first step toward conservation should be protection against fire. When this provision has been made, reforestation on a profitable basis becomes possible.

POSTAL FINANCE.

Postmaster General Brown is determined to cut the deficit of his department. The current postal deficit of $137,000,000 and the prospects for an annual deficit of at least $120,000 for the next five years is one of the most distressing financial problems confronting the administration. The matter is being given intensive study, and it is indicated that the department will have a plan for substantially reducing the deficit ready for the regular session of Congress.

The Postmaster General is attacking the problem from two angles. In the first place, he wants to see the so-called "fictitious deficits" wiped off his books. These items include $16,000,000 a year for handling mail of other departments, $750,000 for mail sent by congressmen under the franking privilege, approximately $7,000,000 representing the department's loss in handling air mail and nearly $20,000,000 a year in the form of mail-contract subsidies to American merchant ships. Mr. Brown is not opposing expenditures for any of these purposes, but he will, no doubt, ask Congress to appropriate for them directly.

Carrying these items in the postoffice budget means an annual deficit of at least $50,000,000, which the department is unable to avoid. Postal employes are as dissatisfied with the arrangement as are the officials. They contend that the whole deficit is a result of subsidies and free service rendered, yet they are unable to secure shorter hours or salary increases because of it. The public is confused, and not infrequently the adverse financial showing of the department subjects officials to unjust criticism. It seems that the interests of every one would be better served if Congress would appropriate directly for items of this kind.

With these subsidies taken care of separately, however, the department would still face a deficit estimated from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 a year. Postmaster General Brown proposes to reduce this figure also, and it appears that he is depending on postage rate increases to do it. Indications are that an increase to 2½ to 3 cents on first-class mail will be recommended to Congress, as well as a jump to 10 or 12 cents for air mail. These proposals are certain to meet with opposition.

The 5-cent air mail rate has been in operation more than a year. Figures are not available as to the increase in patronage during that time, but for the first eleven months air mail increased from 214,558 to 598,494 pounds. A higher postage rate would certainly check this increase, and might wipe out all the gains that have been made. The impetus that has been given to aviation fully justifies the loss occasioned by handling air mail. Within a few years the system will be so well established that a deficit will be no longer probable. Already it has been intimated that the contract companies are in a position to make new and less costly agreements with the Government. A cut in the expenses would be preferable to a higher postage rate.

The experience of the Government with a 3-cent first-class mail rate during the war should be sufficient to discourage any attempt to boost the revenues by this method. In 1919, when postage on a letter cost 3 cents, postal revenue amounted to $364,947,126. In 1920, when the rate had been reduced to 2 cents, revenue jumped to $437,925,012. In spite of the lower rate, revenues have gained rapidly every year since, reaching a total of $693,000,000 in 1928. The Treasury Department has discovered that lower income tax rates produce greater revenue. There appears to be no justification for the belief that postal revenue would be increased by a higher rate.

Let's hope they don't discover Noah's Ark. Something worse than the Mediterranean fruit fly might hop out.

On Monday the police commissioner of New York announced that gangsters had been driven from New York and that everything rested in peace, virtue and loveliness. Too bad that on Tuesday he had to announce the murder of three witnesses to a previous gang slaying.

THE PAN-ARAB DREAM

New York Herald Tribune.

"Long live the unity of the Arab countries under King Ibn Saud," shouted the parading Arabs in Damascus, in French Syria, far north of Palestine, and still farther north of Ibn Saud's desert kingdom. Presumably the Arab phrase is shorter and more easily shouted by a mob; certainly the idea is familiar enough to Arabs even farther from the present center of disturbance than Damascus.

For the Arabs remember the days of Mahomet and of the Moslem Empire and dream of a great Arab empire uniting the Arab peoples. Racially, religiously, linguistically, there is little difference between an Arab of North Africa, an Arab of the desert and an Arab of the Syrian coast. All these peoples have long dreamed of an Arab confederation, and the dream seemed on the point of realization at the end of the war. Precisely there lies the peculiar delicacy of the present situation.

Britain made war-time promises both to Jews and Arabs, as well as to the French, and the meaning of the British promises seemed otherwise to some of those who listened in war time than to the statesmen who fixed the boundaries at Versailles. The Arabian dream of those days centered upon the house of Hussein, the Emir of the Hedjaz, a disappointed old gentleman who now wanders disconsolate along the shores of Cyprus. One of his sons is Emir of Trans-Jordania today, another is "king" of Irak, or Mesopotamia; but both rule by consent of the British, and that fact and the disillusionments consequent upon the French conquest of Syria, where an Arab prince ruled as independent king for a few brief months, have left the house of Hussein with scant prestige.

The Arab hero in 1929 is Ibn Saud, the Moslem fundamentalist who rides in an automobile and is chief of the hardy tribes who live in the heart of the Arabian Desert—Ibn, who drove Hussein out of the holy cities of Medina and Mecca, whose tribes have harassed the British frontier in Koweit, who has forced recognition of his primacy upon many an Arab principality and has been treated as an equal with the powerful British. The Syrians under French rule have been tamed by French armies; the Arabs of Mesopotamia and Trans-Jordania have only a shadowy independence; but Ibn in unbeaten.

Britain can not act in Palestine with eyes upon Palestine alone. The British Empire is semi-Moslem, and the pan-Arabian movement has given the British more than one puzzle before this. Today the question which Downing Street must be pondering most earnestly is not the problem of the Arabs in Palestine—those can easily enough be held in check—but the larger question, what will be the repercussions of the Palestine outbreak upon the pan-Arab dreamers?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE YOUNGER CROWD.

They drive too fast,
They mock at sin;
At all that's past
In scorn they grin.
The books of old
They will not read,
And all they're told
They will not heed.

They're talking stuff
We learned to shun.
The girls are rough,
They race and run.
No longer weak,
But strong of limb
And tanned of cheek,
Like men, they swim.

They stay out late,
They think we're fools;
They fairly hate
Convention's rules.
Our preachments wise
They won't discuss;
With scoffing eyes
They look on us.

All this we say,
All this we see;
Yet in our day
As bold were we;
And in our day
They used to fuss
And often say
The same of us.

Now though we grieve
And scold and frown,
I still believe
In every town
Good folks will be Who'll carry on Long after we
Are dead and gone.

The Easiest Way to Overcome Stage Fright Is to Quit Acting.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE curse of America is self-consciousness. For our sins we suffer agonies of embarrassment. Always we are conscious of critical eyes and ears, and always we studiously mind our p's and q's.

What is wrong with us, and how can we escape the unhappy destiny our folly merits?

Self-consciousness is peculiar to republics. It is the vice and weakness of climbers. It is rooted in a consciousness of inferiority.

Where people are born into a class from which there is no escape, want of ambition leaves them content with their imperfections. If improvement promises no rewards, why search for faults to mend?

But in a land where all are free to climb, ambition encourages introspection and all make progress by searching out their faults and overcoming them.

Watching ourselves leads us inevitably to the conclusion that others are watching us also, and thus the passion for self-improvement keeps us forever on parade—play actors on a stage, conscious of critical eyes, forever strutting, posing, pretending—forever trying to make a good impression.

The American endures almost anything rather than make a scene. He can not reprove a tardy waiter without wondering what his fellow diners think of him.

The upper-class Englishman can make any kind of scene without loss of poise because he is unaware of an audience. He knows what he wants to do and does it, and it doesn't occur to him to wonder or to care what others may think about it. He is indifferent to criticism because he is sure of himself.

The normal child is sure of himself—and will retain that natural advantage if he never is prodded and harassed by that typically American question: "What will people think of you?"

The adult robbed of peace and poise by that same oft-repeated question can regain his freedom and his manhood by resolving, come what may, to take counsel of his own whims for an hour.

Having been a rebel for an hour without making the heavens fall, he will adventure further until at last he no longer dreads an audience.

And when dread of criticism is ended he will no longer be aware of critics and no longer will watch his step.

Neither the czar of commerce nor the hobo is painfully conscious of being out of fashion, for neither cares what the world of fashion may think of him.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Log of the Returning Vacationist.

Labor Day, 5 p. m.—Loading of flivver preparatory to take-off for home is now under way. Proceedings complicated by problem of how to get six people, a dog, four suitcases, an outboard motor, a canoe, three golf bags, a phonograph, two boxes of dishes and several baskets containing cooking utensils, electric flatirons, etc., etc., into a car designed for four people and an overnight bag. A delay seems probable.

5:30—Violent verbal storm raging over question whether it is better to put mother, children and dog into car first and stow luggage around them or put luggage in first and stow mother, children and dog around them. All hope of a hop-off by 6 p. m. now abandoned.

5:45—Problem solved by decision to throw passengers and baggage into car simultaneously.

5:55—Mutiny aboard. Mother flatly refuses to make entire trip holding Junior's outboard motor in her lap.

6 p. m.—S O S—Hop-off now seems likely any moment.

6:15—Flight being delayed due to Junior's difficulty tying canoe to top of car with old clothesline. Junior proposes tying mother and the baby on top of car and stowing canoe inside where it will be safe.

6:20—Hop-off now being attempted.

6:30—Blue suit, vacuum cleaner and box-lunch now aboard okay. Everything ready. We have taken off for home at last.

7:15—Flight under way again with everybody very sour. Looks like a rough trip.

7:30—Disaster now threatening ship. Sudden shift of cargo buries back-seat passengers. Mother, two girls and dog caught under fishing box, suitcases, phonograph, loose kitchen equipment and golf bags. Baby's eye cut. Much hysteria. Doubt if we can continue.

8 p. m.—Cargo righted. Passengers nearly righted. Proceeding under half speed in very heavy traffic. Father is feeling the strain.

8:30—Flight halted by complete traffic tie-up as far as eye can see. Making about 50 yards per hour through heavy gas clouds. Driver behind insists upon keeping thumb on musical horn. Father wants to know which bag his revolver is in. Trouble is feared.

8:45—Have gained a block and a half. Junior's canoe slides off top of car and drops across radiator of limousine behind. Great excitement. Owner of limousine wants Junior to pay for paint scraped off auto. Junior wants man to pay for paint scraped off canoe. Father takes hand in argument. Man calls father a bum. Father calls man a fathead. Junior, in lifting canoe back onto roof of flivver, loses control and it slides off and through windows of a sight-seeing bus, knocking an ear off middle-aged lady asleep in her seat. The situation is alarming.

9 p. m.—Junior yanks canoe out of bus and tears off the lady's other ear. Driver of car behind still blowing musical horn. Traffic tie-up now 100 per cent perfect. Bus driver demands father's name and address. Father too far gone to recall either. Bus driver shakes fist at father. Dog bites bus driver.

9:15—Motorcycle cop comes alongside and orders father to pull over to side of road. Father discovers he is out of gas and can't pull over.

9:20—Motorcycle cop arrests father for ignoring a police order.

9:22—Trip temporarily abandoned.

My goodness, are they wearing 'em that high this year?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Self-Sacrifice of Maryland Terrapin to Furnish a Feast for Crows.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maryland crows are epicures, and who can blame them? They are fed terrapin for breakfast along 7 or 8 miles of the Defense Highway through half the year.

Those crawling tortoise-shell portables that live in the woods on either side of the stone stretch are seized about daybreak with an irresistible yearn to be on the other side of the perilous path, so they poke their head and feet through the portholes and start out. They hit the edge of the concrete and flinch a bit at the hardness of it. Then they essay a few steps and find it good going. About the time they get to the first oily streak that represents the perspiration of millions of cars, a huge noise is heard, and if that terrapin—or slider, or stinkpot, or box-turtle, or what have you?—escapes death he is lucky.

Usually the armadillo either hurries or stops when the rush of the car comes, so that he is utterly squashed beneath a rubber juggernaut. His crumpled armor disintegrates, leaving his edible works exposed, and the crows go to it. They peck daintily at the choice morsels, Maryland style, and keep a weather eye toward both ends of the road. Any car coming from Annapolis or Washington is promptly sighted and flappingly sidestepped. Crows and turtles have a different tempo, mentally and physically.

Now, just why the turtle should decide to cross that road, when the forage is just as good on one side as on the other, nobody knows, and nobody will know. But any one who rides in the early morning between Maryland's capital and that of the Nation and sees a pike generously shellacked with land-terrapin marmalade as a feast for the predatory crow will lose his faith in what Seton-Ernest Thompson-Seton-Thompson called "the guardian angel of the wild things." That angel must take a long summer vacation.

STRICKLAND GILLILAN.

A Pedestrian Exposed, in Spite of His Dictionary Words—Just a Bug in the Way of Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Say, this here highbrow that masks himself as the "A. A. A." is nothing but a pedestrian. He can't fool us motorists with his dictionary words. He's in favor of the left turn that keeps us from making time. If we could make these bugs stay out of the right of way traffic would move faster. That's what we want, not dictionary junk. K. A. PLOTE.

United States Can Buy Peace by Cancelling Debts—Europe Would Be Peaceful if Not Required to Pay Up.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is within the power of the United States of America to restore the peace of Europe by releasing its war debts. By this magnificent act of generosity (a generosity only possible, financially and morally, for that great nation) the reparations question would cease to exist; and the Rhineland would be automatically evacuated. The Gordian knot would be cut. BERTRAND SHADWELL.

Vienna, Austria, August 19.

A LITTLE PESSIMISM.

There is no doubt about it, the country is all wrong, says the Bangor Commercial. One has but to read to find that out. Only about 30 per cent of the eligible voters vote. Writers of history textbooks are teaching our youth that Belleau Wood was a battle, whereas the official records class it as a local engagement. Eight million of our pianos are out of tune and are ruining our musical taste. Our medical education is all wrong, and so is all the rest of our education. Exposure of the human form, due to slavish subservience to style, is undermining our health, although it is saving many of us from pneumonia and tuberculosis. Three-quarters of us do not brush our teeth.

We have no great native music, and our theaters are all wrong. In art we are several thousand years behind the Hottentots. We are speed-mad, and devote far too much time to pleasure. A New York gentleman complains that when our athletes enter an international contest their sole aim is to win.

In spite of several score magazines of huge circulation devoted to the art of hanging curtains and making currant jelly, the American home is being destroyed. Wages are so high that we don't know what to do with our money, but the average American can't afford a doctor. We are losing our hair and our teeth and most of us have to wear glasses.

In short, we are in terrible shape, and there is no hope for us unless we walk six miles a day, drink lots of water between meals and take something for our halitosis.

HOLLAND'S INDEPENDENCE.

An error often made is to attribute Dutch success in the war for independence too much to William and to Dutch pluck and endurance, says the New York World Herald Tribune. Both these were inestimable factors in the defeat of Spain. But William died 25 years before Dutch independence was recognized, and Maurice of Orange and Oldenbarnvelt must both be given their due for their work after his death.

Nor must Spanish inefficiency and poverty be forgotten. A Spanish captain once said: "If death had to come from Spain we would be sure of a long life," and twice Philip had to repudiate his national debt.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Ritchie, Seen Here Seldom, Leads Parade

Men's Luncheon Is Only Holiday Social Event He Attends.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH Annapolis, quaintest of capitals, is less than 40 miles from Washington, the Governor of the Maryland Free State seldom pays us a visit. Occasionally Gov. Albert C. Ritchie skirts the edges, taking in some Democratic convocation on one or another of the neighboring Maryland counties, but he rarely comes to town. Yesterday, however, he not only showed up, but he showed up at the head of our Labor Day parade, leading the delegation of visiting firemen (literally, please) from Maryland.

Although no statistics are available, there is no doubt that the sight caused many a feminine pulse to flutter, for Gov. Ritchie is unanimously voted the handsomest governor in captivity. Moreover, he is a "marriageable eligible," with enough of a reputation for being completely armored against the arrows of Cupid to intrigue the feminine mind. Long years ago Gov. Ritchie was married, but the tie was dissolved after a very short time, and since then he has traveled alone—and perhaps the faster for it. The mistress of the governor's mansion in Annapolis is Gov. Ritchie's mother, to whom he is deeply devoted.

When Gov. Ritchie was mentioned as a Democratic candidate for President, with the Maryland delegation voting solidly for him and much scattering support way back in 1921, many of the women were thrilled at the possibility of having a bachelor—to all intents and purposes—President. Grover Cleveland, a bachelor when he was elected, had married his ward, Miss Frances Folsom. President Wilson had taken a second wife in Mrs. Norman Galt scarcely a year after the first Mrs. Wilson's death. And, there seemed to be great curiosity as to whether Gov. Ritchie could hold out against the onslaughts of feminine charms directed against the incumbent of such an important position.

This is a question which will probably never be answered, since the Maryland Free State is said to be geographically "wrong" for the mothering of Presidents. At all events, Gov. Ritchie was well protected from feminine wiles yesterday, for the only entertainment in his honor was a men's luncheon given in the Presidential suite of the Willard by the committee of Labor Day entertainment. Those present were Commissioner Sidney P. Taliaferro, Maj. Davison, United States Army; Maj. Henry Strett, Mr. A. V. Simmel, Chief George S. Watson, Mr. Rudolph Jose, Maj. E. B. Hesse, Mr. Clarence F. Norment, Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Mr. Joseph C. [illegible]ead and Mr. Odell S. Smith.

The Minister of the Netherlands to Mexico, Mr. R. Roosmale Nepren, with Mrs. Nepren and their young daughter, who are now at the Plaza in New York, will sail tomorrow on the Mauretania for Europe.

Senator and Mrs. James Couzens will return Thursday from a short visit at their country place near Detroit. They will continue to stay at the Villa Rosa on Massachusetts avenue until early next month, when they will move to 3110 Woodland Drive, which they have leased for the fall.

Senator M. E. Tydings Returns from Europe.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, arrived in New York yesterday on the Leviathan from Europe, after attending the meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in Geneva.

Also returning on the Leviathan were Representative and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, of New Jersey, and former Representative and Mrs. W. W. Cohen, of New York.

Senator Henrik Shipstead, who is recuperating in Minnesota from his recent serious illness, is not expected to return to Washington for any sessions of Congress between now and December. He is at present on an island in Rainy Lake, near International Falls, Minn.

Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, wife of Senator Schall, accompanied by her son, Richard, and her daughter, Paget, arrived in Washington by motor from Minnesota yesterday and proceeded to Norfolk to welcome her son, Midshipman Thomas D. Schall, jr., home from the practice cruise. Midshipman Schall and Richard Schall will be guests at the Maryland home of their parents until the middle of September, when they will go to Minnesota. Senator Schall will return with the opening of the session.

The Counselor of the Polish Legation, Mr. Stanislaw Lepkowski, who is passing several days out of town, will return to Washington later in the week. Mr. Lepkowski attended the week-end party given by Miss Mildred Tytus and Miss Victoria Tytus at their summer home, Ashintully, at Tyringham, Mass., the other guests being Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Reath Riggs and Mr. Jasper Moore, of New York.

Representative and Mrs. Allen T. Treadway passed the Labor Day holiday at Ticonderoga, N. Y.

Mr. Walter H. Schoellkopf, of Buffalo, secretary of the American Embassy in France, sailed yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Schoellkopf, on board the France for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Leave North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil will arrive in New York today from Biltmore, N. C., and will be at the Barclay. On their return to Biltmore they will stop for a short visit in Washington at 2132 Bancroft place, which they have taken for the winter.

Capt. and Mrs. Edward McCauley, jr., of Washington and San Francisco, arrived in New York yesterday from Europe and are stopping at the Westbury.

Mrs. John Dana has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson Warley at Beechmont, New Rochelle, N. Y., and will return to the Mayflower this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foraker and Miss Polly Foraker have sailed for Nova Scotia and Newfoundland for a short holiday. Mrs. Foraker and her daughter will return to their summer home at Monterey, Pa., before coming to Washington October 1.

Miss Nellie Coleman's Engagement Announced.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ernest A. Coleman have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nellie Winslow, to Mr. Thomas Nathaniel Mudd, jr. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, 1855 California street, on October 16.

Miss Coleman is a graduate of Central High School of this city and was a student of Drexel Institute of Philadelphia. She is a member of the Theta Kappa Sigma Sorority.

Mr. Mudd is quite a prominent athlete of Washington. He was a student of law at Georgetown University and is now connected with the Paramount Film Studio in this city.

The maid of honor will be Miss Cecile H. Ledger and the best man, Lieut. Del Rey W. Coleman, of New York City, brother of the bride.

Capital Girls Are Married Out of Town

Miss Fitzhugh Is Bride; Miss Amory to Be Wed Tomorrow.

Although the trend of travel sets again toward the Capital after Labor Day, many Washingtonians are lingering at their summer homes through September and consequently the group of "Washington weddings" planned for this month is taking place far from Washington. The marriage tomorrow of Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory's daughter, Miss Katherine Amory, to Lieut. Douglas B. Smith, U. S. A., will take place at Walpole, N. H., where the Amorys have a summer home. And yesterday two Washington girls were married, one in Canada and the other in the picturesque New Hampshire hills.

The wedding of Miss Louise Daintry Fitzhugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fitzhugh, to Mr. Nathaniel Barnett Jones, of Louisville, Ky., was solemnized in St. Peter's Church, Coburg, Canada, and a reception followed at Northumberland Hall, the Canadian summer home of the bride's parents. It was from Coburg that the engagement was announced a few weeks ago and, with the wedding taking place there, Miss Fitzhugh's friends here have rather the feeling of having been cheated out of all participation in her romance. Miss Fitzhugh made her debut here a few years ago, is a member of the Junior League, and her family is affiliated with a conservative and distinguished group in the Capital. Just as she was growing to womanhood her father was married for the second time to Miss Betty Poe, who had been filling the important post of social secretary at the British Embassy. Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Jones, some time of Louisville, but now of New York and Narragansett Pier, R. I.

Miss Simonds Married To Cambridge Man.

Miss Katherine Simonds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Simonds, had also chosen yesterday as the date of her marriage to Mr. Lovell Thompson, son of Mr. Charles Miner Thompson, of Cambridge, Mass., and the late Mrs. Thompson. The place was Eaton Center, N. H., near which at Snowville, N. H., is Blighty, Mr. and Mrs. Simonds' summer home. This was a church wedding in the quaint Eaton Center Church, with a reception afterward at Blighty.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned on princess lines, a tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. James Carey 3d, of Baltimore, was the matron of honor, wearing a bouffant gown of deep capucine taffeta, with a picture hat to match and carrying an arm bouquet of pale blue delphinium.

The bridesmaids were Miss Corinne Chambers, of New York; Miss Elizabeth Linn, of Chicago; Miss Bettina Linn, of Philadelphia; Miss Elinor Aram, of Philadelphia; Miss Josephine Young, of New York, and Miss Sarah Morton, of Fall River. They wore bouffant frocks of shaded capucine taffeta, with picture hats to match and carried arm bouquets of mixed shades of delphinium.

Mr. Delmar Leighton, of Cambridge, was the best man and the ushers were Mr. James G. Simonds, of this city; Mr. George P. Baker, jr.; Mr. Charles F. Walcott, of Cambridge; Mr. Theodore Lyman Eliot, of New York, and Mrs. William H. Pratwick, of Linwood, N. Y.

Coolidge-Trumbull Nuptials Are Near.

The world and his wife are, of course, keenly interested in the wedding of Mr. John Coolidge and Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the Governor of Connecticut, which is to take place in September in New England. And here in Washington there is considerable interest in the marriage of Miss Margaret Hitchcock Sims to Mr. Robert Holbrook Hopkins, of Boston, for many remember when her father, Rear Admiral William S. Sims, then of lesser rank, was married to Miss Anne E. Hitchcock, daughter of Mr. Ethan Allen Hitchcock, then Secretary of the Interior. This wedding was in St. John's Church, with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in attendance. The marriage of Admiral and Mrs. Sims' daughter and Mr. Hopkins will be solemnized in Newport on September 7.

Dr. Charles M. Hammett has returned to his home on Rhode Island avenue after spending three weeks at Atlantic City.

Miss Grace Cherrier, of La Crosse, Wis., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Dean Cherrier, of 1539 I street. Miss Cherrier is to leave this week for a trip to Philadelphia, New York, Atlantic City, Buffalo, N. Y., and Niagara Falls.

Younger Set to Be Guests at Crain Home

Matron to Give Dance for Debutante of Coming Season.

Mrs. Robert Crain, of Washington and Baltimore, will entertain at a large dance for her daughter, Miss Elinor Crain, on Saturday evening, September 15, at her home, Mount Victoria, near Mogantown, Md. About 100 of Washington's younger set have been invited. Miss Crain will make her debut in Baltimore this winter and will also be presented to society in Washington.

Mrs. Crain and her daughter have been passing most of the summer at their country home, which overlooks the water at the point where the Potomac empties into the bay, and is considered one of the show places in that part of the country.

Wedding to Be Heard on Air Tonight

WOL at 8 Will Give in Detail Ceremony Uniting Station Employe—Nick Lucas on WRC—Whiteman on WMAL.

An unusual feature among broadcasts tonight will be the first church wedding to be etherized in this section of the country. WOL has made arrangements to transmit the ceremony uniting Miss Hazel Vivian Vic Roy, of Clarendon, Va., and Robert V. Howard, for four years connected with the station, from the Calvary Baptist Church. Every detail of the wedding will go on the air, with a description of the bridal party by Miss Peggy Clarke preceding the actual services.

The broadcast was arranged with the idea of having the thousands of Washington listeners who are familiar with the voice of Bobby Howard, as he is known to them, listen to the wedding.

The wedding will be solemnized at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. Dr. Homer J Councilor, assistant pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Dr. George H. Fielding, of the Clarendon M. E. Church.

Nick Lucas, famed as a recording, vaudeville and motion picture artist, is among those listed to entertain in the second of the new Radio-Keith-Orpheum programs through a coast-to-coast network at 9:30 o'clock from Station WRC.

The 1929-30 R-K-O Hour was inaugurated last week and will be presented each Tuesday night during the winter months. Sponsors of the program plan to bring the outstanding talent of broadcasting and vaudeville before the microphones during the series, according to an announcement.

Rose Perfect, prima donna of George White's Scandals for five years, is also on tonight's program. She is listed for a collection of favorite songs. Jules Bledsoe, of "Show Boat," is also scheduled to be heard.

Erik Nelson, the "Flying Viking," who piloted the New Orleans, one of the two Army planes which successfully completed the circumnavigation of the world, a distance of 26,345 miles, in a total flying time of 363 hours, will describe his experiences for the radio audience during the broadcast of the "Roads of the Sky" program at 6 o'clock. Incidental music in this program will depict the evolution of travel by steamboats.

The Prophylactic Orchestra, conducted by Victor Arden, will go in heavily for popular rhythm songs during its broadcast at 7:30 o'clock.

The Eveready Orchestra, under the direction of William F. Wirges, assisted by Jass Jaffrey, barytone, and a vocal quartet, will present a program of light concert and popular selections at 8 o'clock.

A dance orchestra will be heard between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Three solos—"From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," "Wie Melodien Zient es Mir" and "Kashmiri Song"—will be sung by George Rymer, tenor, during the United Symphony Orchestra's broadcast from WMAL at 7 o'clock. Orchestral selections to be heard during this broadcast include Glazounow's "Carnival Overture," "Chanson Joyeuse (Drdla) and selections from Victor Herbert's operetta, "Babes in Toyland."

The following program will be broadcast at 8 o'clock by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, with Bing Crosley, tenor:

"Oh Ya Ya," "Valencia," "When You're Counting the Stars Alone," "Singin' in the Rain," "Same Old Moon," "Waters of Venice," "Dancing Dominoes," "Moanin' Low," "Where Butterflies Kiss the Buttercups Good-Night," "Broadway Melody," "He's a Good Man to Have Around," "Let's Be Sociable," "I'd Do Nothing for You," "If You Believe in Me," "That's Where You Come In," "Miss You," "Scotchie" and "What a Day."

Oliver Smith, tenor, is the featured artist on the Fada Salon Hour to be broadcast at 9 o'clock. Jesse Crawford, the poet of the organ, will be featured at 10 o'clock, followed by the Dream Boat and another organ program, "Midnight Reveries."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"VIRGO."

IF September 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m.

This is augured as a critical and important time in affairs of the family—a parting of the ways may occur. Travel and change of environment will force alterations in your plans. You can only conquer your obstacles through the spiritual side of your nature.

Children born on this September 3 will be able to profit by the mistakes of others—they will be very wise observers. They will possess considerable originality, and their self-reliance and perseverance will carry them far toward the goals of their desires.

You are mentally very high-strung, and you live and work on your nerve. It is most difficult for you to relax or rest, and you crave constant activity or excitement. You are very quick in your thought and decisions, and your actions are done on the impulse. There is only one way you like to do things, and that is with a push and a bang. Your "now or never" attitude is carried into all phases of your life.

It is true that you do not suffer from the ills of procrastination, and that you are always ready to meet your opportunities. On the other hand, your haste sometimes means waste. It is just as essential to know when and how to drive slowly as it is to be able to dart ahead. You sometimes sacrifice thoroughness for speed.

You have wonderful elasticity of character—you rebound at once from the heaviest blow. Nothing seems to affect you for long.

Unless you take a more common-sense view of your health, you may eventually suffer from nervous exhaustion. Under mental tension you easily become irritable and quick-tempered, unable to "suffer fools" gladly. You do not gather as much enjoyment out of home life as the average person. The sociability and pleasures of the outside world appeal to you more.

Successful people born September 3:

Hannah F. Gould—Poet.
Gardner Colby—Philanthropist.

Richmond Is Easily Heard In Capital

WRVA, Virginia's Voice, Sounds as if It Were a Local Station; Has New Transmitter and Operates on a Clear Channel.

For nearly two weeks now, Washington listeners have had an opportunity to listen in on Station WRVA, "Virginia's Voice," at Richmond, Va., using 5,000 watts power, many with fine results. It has been reported from some sections of the city that the station is being received like a local transmitter.

A new five-kilowatt transmitter was installed at Mechanicsville, near Richmond, on the site of the beginning of the Seven Days' Battle around Richmond, the battlefields of which today are under survey by the United States Government with a view to making them a national park. The equipment is standard Western Electric throughout and is said to be one of the latest transmitters in design and method in radio broadcasting. The transmitter is similar to those at KFI, Los Angeles; WOR, Newark; WABC, New York City, and WMAQ, Chicago, but with recent refinements.

WRVA operates on a national clear channel, 1,110 kilocycles or a wave length of 270.1 meters.

WRVA began in October, 1925; the first big broadcasting station in the Old Dominion. Until the fall of 1928 it was a strictly noncommercial station. Since then it has accommodated numerous chain programs. More than 15,000 different persons have performed from WRVA. Approximately 100 Virginia communities have used the station's facilities without cost.

The studios and towers of this Virginia station stand on some of the most historic soil in America. The studios are on Main street, known to Pocahontas as an Indian trail; the street up which Benedict Arnold and his British soldiers and Gen. Weitzel and his Union soldiers marched; a highway familiar to Col. William Byrd, the founder of Richmond and ancestor of Gov. Harry Byrd and Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd; to Dr. Alexander Tardy, the pirate, and to Edgar Allan Poe, the poet. Libby Prison stood near the site of the studios and St. John's Church famous for Patrick Henry's "Liberty or death" speech, is a stone's throw distant.

Past the hill where the tall towers now stand at Mechanicsville the Confederate soldiers of Robert E. Lee marched against the forces of George B. McClellan in 1862 when the Seven Days Battle began. Gen. Lee is said to have had his headquarters near the site of the transmitter building.

Among the features which have proven popular and which will be continued by the station with its new equipment are the music of J. Harold Lawrence, the blind musician; the addresses of Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, one of the foremost authorities on Southern history; talks and songs by Holland R. Wilkinson, the "Sunshine Hour Man;" Negro spirituals and the Corn Cob Pipe Club.

The station will continue to use "Down Where the South Begins" as its slogan and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" as its signature.

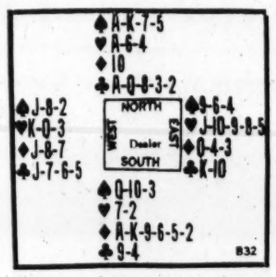
COULD YOU DO BETTER?



WITH the above hand South (dealer) at Auction Bridge would bid one Diamond and after West's pass, North would bid one No Trump. That would complete the auction and make North the Declarer with the contract one No Trump.

At Contract Bridge South would bid one Diamond, West would pass and North, with the three suits and named by the partner all stopped and a hand counting seventeen (two more than the minimum) would bid three No Trumps.

The hand was played at Contract and East started by leading the Jack of Hearts. West played the Queen on the first trick so as to unblock and the Declarer permitted it to win. The second trick was won by the King of Hearts and Declarer took the third trick with the Ace.

Declarer then led North's singleton Diamond, won with South's Ace and King, and then led a third Diamond which encountered the good luck of finding an even break of the adverse Diamonds and establishing three long ones in dummy with the Queen of Spades as an entry. But when East won with his Queen of Diamonds, he led his two established Hearts and in that way East and West saved game.

Could you have done better?

THE ANSWER.

To make game, Declarer had to establish Diamonds or Clubs. In his two hands combined he had an equal number of cards in the two suits; but (as the cards lay) he could establish Diamonds without permitting East (who would continue Hearts) to get in the lead. To establish Clubs it would be necessary to take the finesse with the probability that East would win the trick.

Declarer was right to lead Diamonds, but he should not have won the first Diamond trick. When East did not cover the Ten, South should have ducked and permitted West to win. In that way the one Diamond trick which Declarer had to lose would not have been captured by the hand which was waiting to cash two good Hearts.

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Irresponsible Behavior.

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I want you to tell me in plain, unadorned English your honest opinion of the person of whom I am going to tell you; my own opinion will not bear telling.

George started to pay attention to Mary and, although not even an understanding had been reached, it was known to everybody that he was serious in his intentions. Alice, a friend of Mary's, had liked a young man whom we will call Jim, but he is a confirmed bachelor, refused to succumb to her efforts, although once in a while he did take her out. When Alice, after years' tangling, saw that her pursuit was hopeless, she turned her attention to George, with the result that she succeeded in winning him away from Mary. Soon after their engagement was announced they were married. That should have disposed of Alice, but it didn't; it's just the beginning of the story. Within a year after their marriage a child was born, which, according to all the laws of civilization, should have made her all the more happy and contented with her husband and home.

But Jim, repenting of his bachelorhood, decided to marry, and who should he pick as his future bride but Mary. They love each other very much—are happily married, have a lovely home and in every way are an ideal couple. But Alice could not bear the idea of another woman marrying Jim. It seemed to her that she was being made the laughing stock of the community. So before the marriage Jim was the recipient of an anonymous letter in which the writer informed him that he was making a big mistake by marrying Mary—giving a few nasty, petty reasons, just spite work. I happened to be on hand when Jim received the letter, and he showed it to me. Both Mary and Jim are very dear friends of mine, and I would do anything to help them. The letter was in a disguised handwriting, but I, having come in contact with Alice in business, was able at once to detect the similarity in her handwriting and that of the letter. There's always a slip somewhere, and in addressing it she wrote the figures in her natural handwriting. Well, that didn't work.

Yesterday a friend of mine approached me and said, "I was told by Alice that Mary and Jim are getting divorced. Is it true?" When I heard that, I was paralyzed with anger, amazement and disgust. I knew at once that she had started the story, although she claimed some one had told her. I didn't know what to say for fear I should say too much, and I didn't want to keep quiet, for such a person is a danger to a community. Now the story is all over town, and although it hasn't reached the ears of Mary and Jim, it soon will.

And you know how gossip is. By the time it reaches its intended destination the story will be added to and garbled and distorted even out of its original report. There's nothing that can be done, and I'm writing this to you out of heartache. But what is your opinion of a person like that? I think there's nothing in this world that can fittingly describe her. There is a saying that curses come home to roost, and I am hoping that whatever she wishes on those two innocent people should bounce back at her so hard she shouldn't know what struck her.

BERNIE.

Bernie, the woman who marries a "second choice" is seldom satisfied, and when she happens to be of a petty and sordid make-up anything may happen. In this case she unwittingly betrayed her true self to the man she can't forget. There is nothing that can be done about souls that are defective. We can only pity them. I should not wish her unhappiness if I were you, and I should not excite my friends by heeding her remarks concerning them. If they mention the report to you, just laugh it off. The real damage is done when people take seriously these random acts of the irresponsible. Be sensible instead of angry, and just smile.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Diving for Sponges.

TWENTY YEARS ago, an up-to-date bathroom was sure to have one or more sponges. Today we do not use the sponge so often for bathing—and it is just as well, because the sponge is a "germ catcher" and may spread disease. The shower-bath — the most sanitary method of bathing—is growing ever more popular.

Up comes the diver with a sack full of sponges.

Yet sponges are still widely used. They are vanishing from the bathroom, but they have appeared in the garage; and many an auto gets a rub-down.

Sponges grow in the sea. At first guess we might suppose that they are taken from plants, but that is not the case. A sponge is the skeleton or framework of an animal!

In warm waters, such as the Gulf of Mexico or the Mediterranean Sea, sponges grow in colonies around the rocks at the bottom. They are soft, jellylike animals which obtain their food from tiny creatures which swim in the sea. A sponge has no eyes and no heart, but it has cells which do the work of a stomach and which know when they are hungry.

The fact that sponges are fastened to rocks, might lead us to class them as plants; but baby sponges swim around before they take up anchor for life, and that is one reason scientists say that the sponge family belongs to the animal kingdom.

There are expert "sponge divers" in the Mediterranean Sea. Trained in the art from boyhood, their skill is amazing. Even without a diving suit, they can go down to a depth of 150 feet, remaining under water for as long as three minutes. These divers "pick" the sponges from the rocks and bring them to the surface to be placed aboard a boat.

Some sponge divers use diving-suits, taking down bags in which to place the sponges they pick.

After being taken ashore, the sponges are squeezed, rinsed, soaked, dried and trimmed. Then they are ready for their journey to market. By the time they start the journey, they are as dead as doornails; even while they are alive, I am sure they did not guess what it was all about.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE LINCOLN BLUES.

THAT Abraham Lincoln was subject to periodic attacks of melancholia is established and accepted. No one questions it. As to the cause of his melancholia there are several opinions. One attributed them wholly to emotional strain. The two periods of melancholy which are generally supported by this school were that which followed the death of Ann Rutledge and the weeks just subsequent to a misunderstanding with Mary Todd.

Another school thinks there was a physical basis for his attacks. Members of this group say Lincoln had chronic constipation and this explained his depression. They cite as proof his sallow skin, his almost habit of taking calomel, and his youth spent in a malarial country.

A third school offers a mental basis for his periodical emotional disturbance. They say that among the members of the family there was recognition of a family trait called by them "the Lincoln blues." Distant relatives who did not know they were kin to Abraham Lincoln were subject to attacks of depression which they called "Lincoln blues." This tendency they regarded as hereditary in the Lincoln family.

Dr. Thomas Hall Shastid has still another explanation. Dr. Shastid's grandfather and father knew Abraham Lincoln well, the grandfather having lived at New Salem when Lincoln was there. Later Abraham Lincoln visited the grandfather and father at Pittsfield. Dr. Shastid is an eye specialist. He says the Lincoln blues were the result of eye strain. His eye muscles were not well balanced. His left eye had a tendency to turn upward. Occasionally it would cross turning upward. Eye specialists recognize this peculiar type of lack of eye muscle balance and supply it with a name. It causes an unusually severe form of eye strain.

It will be recalled that Lincoln used glasses for reading, at least during the years of his maturity. These glasses were spectacles and he wore them far down on his nose. An eye specialist would say that his method of wearing his glasses would cause some eye strain of itself in addition to that due to poor balance in his eye muscles.

Dr. Shastid has an opinion on a related subject, but one that does not cause eye strain or melancholia. He thinks Lincoln may have been color blind. This he bases in part on a statement made by Lincoln to Dr. Shastid's grandmother. When Mrs. Shastid offered to show him her flower garden he said: "I will look at your flowers, mother, but I really can not understand what people see to admire in such things. I am somehow deficient."

FARM BOARD LEADER URGES COOPERATION

Vice Chairman, in Speech at Picnic, Describes Five Objectives.

ORGANIZE, HE EXHORTS

Wapakoneta, Ohio, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Cooperation was the predominant note of the five objectives of the Federal Farm Board outlined today by James G. Stone, vice chairman of the board.

Speaking to a group of farmers at a picnic here, Stone explained the mandate of Congress as enunciated in the farm bill and said that all of the members of the board "are in fullest sympathy with efforts to better the farmer's economic position through cooperation."

Five objectives he described were:

"The strengthening and expansion of existing cooperatives through assistance in developing sound managerial and financing policies.

"Bringing about coordination of efforts on the part of cooperatives.

"The assistance of growers in unorganized areas to develop sound plans and procedure for cooperative organizations.

"The assistance of cooperatives in developing better business relationships with manufacturers, mills, processors and other users of farm commodities.

"The assistance of the Department of Agriculture, State agricultural colleges, the extension service and other State and Federal agencies in developing an effective educational program in cooperative marketing."

He stressed the point that the board was anxious to aid in the formulation of sound programs and policies for cooperatives, but that the responsibility for organization and management rested upon the producer himself.

"The board can move only as fast as the farmers themselves are willing to go," he said.

question as to what type of private employer should be taken as a model by Uncle Sam when the time comes to adjust Government salaries.

There are three to select from—the backward, penurious employer; the average employer, and the forward-looking, progressive employer.

In the tables that have been prepared by the board, the salaries paid by the Federal Government are compared with those paid by the average private employer—that is, the employer who falls in between the worst and the best.

Object to Comparison.

The delegates here do not like such a comparison. They feel that the men and women who pass the civil service tests are better than average. They hold that they are the kind that might be found, in the best of the progressive business firms in the country.

Consequently, they feel that the basis for comparison should be, not the salaries paid by the average employer, but those paid by the very best—the employer at the top. If this is done, they say, it will be found that Uncle Sam is paying less all along the line.

Following Baruch's talk, President ...er C. Steward read his official ...t on the federation's achieve...ts in the last two years. He told ...he long fight that culminated in ... passage of the Welch pay raise ..., how the measure was put through ...spite former President Coolidge's ...position to it, and of the fight that ...ow is being organized to revise it ...nd take care of the low-salaried employes who were slighted under Comptroller General McCarl's interpretation of the act. He also told of plans to renew the drive for a liberal retirement law, a better leave law, and for other much-needed reform.

Steward Is Applauded.

When John L. Bateman, an alternate delegate from Washington, described Steward's hard, uphill fight to get the Welch act through, the delegates burst into a thunder of applause. There seems to be no doubt that Steward will be reelected by acclamation when officers are chosen at the end of the week.

Tonight the various committees of the federation are holding meetings and preparing for the business sessions that are to begin today. The resolutions committee has more than 200 resolutions to offer when the time comes.

This morning the delegates assembled in the local high school to listen to addresses of welcome by the town's leading citizens. The speakers included former Gov. Charles S. Osborn, an orator of the William Jennings Bryan school, and two mayors, Edward T. Crisp, who governs that part of the "Soo" on the American side of St. Mary's River, and J. D. Becking, that part of the town on the Canadian side.

Patronize Canadian Theaters.

Incidentally the delegates have decided to do all their show-shopping on the Canadian side. In front of the local theaters, sandwich men walk up and down displaying signs which announce that the theaters are "unfair to organized labor." Inquiries developed that those on the Canadian side are strictly union, hence the decision to patronize them.

In replying to the greetings of former Gov. Osborn and the other speakers this morning, President Steward said, "Ours is a unique organization. It boasts in its membership a greater diversity of occupation than any similar organization in the world.

"It may be safely said, without fear of contradiction, that the representatives of the organized employe of the Government of the United States gathered here today could, if taken in a body and placed in some distant country that was in a state of complete anarchy or absence of any government whatever, with their skill and experience; yes, with the genius of government, set up a government. They know how to run a government. They are the government machinery of this country."

Empire State Airmen End Endurance Flight

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The Empire State Standard, endurance plane, piloted by Carl Dixon and Clyde Pangborn, landed at the Syracuse Airport shortly before 11 o'clock tonight, Eastern standard time. It had been aloft more than 178 hours.

Airport officials did not divulge the reason for the landing, but declared neither of the pilots was injured.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The sharp rise in stocks in the last few months has added hundreds of millions to the investment portfolios of leading industrial, railroad and public utility companies. While the tremendous appreciation in the security holdings of the large companies is generally known, Wall street statisticians have been busily seeking the figures on some of the smaller companies. Cannon Mills is one of the latest discoveries, the marketable securities which cost $7,205,758, as shown in the statement of December 31 last, now being valued at $12,000,000. The Cannon company is the largest manufacturer of cotton towels in the United States, with a daily output of 600,000 towels.

Robert S. Binkered, formerly a partner in the stock exchange firm of James H. Oliphant & Co., and previous to that vice chairman of the committee on public relations of the Eastern railroads, has been elected president of the United States Shares Financial Corporation, an investing company of the general management type, recently organized by the United States Shares Corporation.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association announces that 223 hardwood mills reported new business at 9 per cent below production and shipments as 12 per cent below production for the week ended August 24. Softwood orders were 13 per cent below production according to reports from 583 mills, and shipments 12 per cent below production. Softwood orders totaled 330,040,000 feet, while hardwood mills reported orders for 45,706,000 feet.

The National City Bank's tabulation of corporate earnings for the first half of the year, which was swelled to include 916 corporations during the past month, shows a total increase of 27.4 per cent in net earnings over the first half of 1928. Three shipping corporations showed an increase of 127 per cent; 35 iron and steel, 102 per cent; 12 copper, 89.6 per cent; 40 petroleum, 76.4 per cent; amusement, 68.4 per cent, 6 aviation, 66.2 per cent; 40 auto accessory, 62.4 per cent; 21 automobile, 4.1 per cent; manufacturing and trading companies, totaling 586, showed a gain of 36.6 per cent; 185 railroads, 21.9 per cent; 100 telephone and telegraph, 7.1 per cent, and 95 other utilities, 17.9 per cent. Decreases were shown by apparel, leather and show industries; seventeen rubber companies showed earnings of $17,342,000, against a deficit of $6,328,000 in the first half of last year.

The semiannual report of the C. R. Kinney Co., manufacturers and retailers of footwear, showed a net income for the first six months of 1929 of $377,849, compared with $297,633 for the corresponding period last year. The earnings were equal to $1.03 a share on the outstanding common stock, as compared with 53 cents a share earned in the first six months of last year.

Fifteen of the leading industrial and railroad securities of the New York Stock Exchange have increased $6,825,563,032 in total market value from the low price levels of the year to current quotations. The greatest single gain was recorded by Standard Oil of New Jersey, which by its advance from $48 to $73.75 a share, added $1,637,006,052 to the market appraisal of its common stock.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Paris, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Prices were firm on the bourse today.

3 per cent rentes, 75 francs 80 centimes. Five per cent loans, 103 francs 95 centimes.

JEWS REPULSE NEW ATTACKS BY ARABS

the exact number of which was not known.

He also reported that a conference of Jewish and Moslem leaders obtained an agreement which averted a threatened attack on Tiberias in Galilee.

The high commissioner was said to have refused requests that scores of Jews imprisoned on charges of possessing arms be released or to permit distribution of arms among settlers in colonies in the north.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent reported that inquiry into the origin of the riots in Jerusalem on Friday, August 23, has established that they first started, not in the old Jewish quarter, Meah Shearim, as was originally believed, but on Jaffa street. There it was Dr. Wolfgang Von Weisl, a German newspaper correspondent, Ittamar Ben-Avi, and Engineer Raitan first were wounded about noon, when the Moslems were returning from the Mosque of Omar.

Bombs Thrown by Jews.

The attack on Meah Shearim quarter was made by another group of rioters a little later. It was then that a Jew, in self-defense, fired his gun. The rioters retired, but soon returned in increased numbers. Another Jew, in defense of the Jewish population, then threw a bomb which, however, killed no one. A second bomb was thrown later by the Jewish self-defense, when the attack became fierce and the danger mounted.

The number of Jewish dead in the disturbance at Safed last Friday was placed today at fifteen. Previously it had been reported as high as 25.

Several Jews have been sentenced to two months imprisonment for possessing arms against the order of the authorities.

Unrest Is Still Rife.

London, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—There was still unrest in Palestine tonight, according to both press and official reports, but danger of a serious extension of the rioting between Arabs and Jews appeared to be over. The effective measures taken by High Commissioner Sir John Chancellor and his severe proclamation to the people of Palestine appeared to have had good results.

Comparative normality prevailed in Jerusalem and Palestine generally, but there was still some apprehension of movements of Arabs beyond the frontiers. The fact, however, that the French government was giving military cooperation to prevent incursions from Syria combined with the activity of British arplanes had thus far prevented any serious development.

Report Issued in London.

A communique of the colonial office tonight, said: "The country north of Safed is inclined to be restless, but in other districts the situation was reported to be generally quiet.

"Yesterday demonstration flights were carried out in strength by aircraft over the north and northeastern areas of Palestine, where armed bands of Arabs were still reported as crossing from Syria. The proclamation by the high commissioner, as given in the press today, was distributed over the Jerusalem area by aircraft.

"The following are the total casualties to Saturday:

NEW BRANCH BANK'S DOORS OPEN TODAY

BUSINESS TAPERS OFF

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

First on the scene to care for big business that will result from establishment of Farmers' Market in Southwest Washington, the National Bank of Washington, Washington's oldest bank, established in 1809, opens its first branch tomorrow at 1121-23 Water street southwest.

At the establishment to be known as the Water Street Branch of the National Bank of Washington, banking in all its essential forms will be transacted and the same courteous and personal service that for more than a century has been characteristic of this bank, will be rendered.

The branch, which opens on the 120th anniversary of the parent institution, is a two-story structure of stone, brick and steel, with exterior decorations of art-wrought metal in green bronze. The interior trim is in bronze and mahogany and the walls are done in sage green. Cages and counters run along the east and north sides of the main floor and there is a mezzanine to the north for additional clerical forces.

The spacious lobby occupying the south and west portions of the ground floor, permits of adequate office expansion, and the manager's office is located in the southeast corner of the first floor immediately to the right of the entrance. The building is well lighted by large windows in the front or southern side. A two-story vault is situated in the center of the north side of the building and a gas furnace is located in the basement.

Edmund H. Graham, assistant cashier, for 25 years in the service of the parent institution, will be manager of the branch office, the staff of which will consist of T. Gray Goode and Ralph Kieler, tellers; Francis Chester, bookeeper, and Warren Thompson, clerk.

Construction of the building was in the hands of Samuel J. Prescott Co. Inc., and under the direction of John G. Scharf. Jarrett C. White is the architect and G. W. Forsberg, member of the bank's board of directors, arranged the location.

Officers of the National Bank of Washington are: chairman of the board, Clarence F. Norment; president, George L. Starkey; vice presidents, George P. Sacks, James Trimble and Daniel J. Callahan; cashier, J. Frank White; assistant cashiers, Edmund H. Graham, John Alden, William E. Howard and Rutherford J. Dooley; trust officer, E. C. Brandenburg; secretary of board, Odell S. Smith; auditor, Everett H. Parsley.

Directors are: J. M. Beavers, E. C. Brandenburg, Henry N. Brawner, jr.; Wrisley Brown, D. J. Callahan, J. Edmund Cammack, Max Fischer, Maurice F. Flynn, G. W. Forsberg, George B. Goetz, E. Charlton Graves, J. T. Hendrick, James D. Hobbs, Frank R. Jelleff, Michael A. Keane, Mark Lansburgh, Morris E. Marlow, Arthur J. May, John G. Meinberg, W. Clarence Miller, Clarence F. Norment, Clarence F. Norment, jr.; Harry Norment, Richard E. Pairo, George P. Sacks, Charles Schafer, John Scrivener, Odell S. Smith, George L. Starkey, James Trimble, P. J. Walshe and Harry Wardman.

Fifth District Business Shrinks.

Following seasonal trends, business in the fifth or local Federal Reserve District in July was in less volume than in June, but exceeded that of July last year, the monthly review of William W. Hoxton, District chairman and Federal Reserve agent, revealed yesterday.

At the end of August conditions in the District appear to be better than at this time last year, fewer unfavorable signs being in evidence. The demand for credit at the commercial banks and at the Reserve bank is about the same at present as at this time last year. Prospects for agriculture seem to be better this year than in 1928, with larger yields of nearly all money crops forecast for the several States in the District and prices in most cases that compare favorably with those of 1928.

Security Exchange Campaign.

The advertisement of the security subsidiary of the Associated Gas & Electric System published this morning calls attention to the fact that the program of exchanges for underlying and fixed charge securities of the Associated Gas & Electric System which has been in progress during the past year will expire at the close of business September 10, a week from today.

This is probably one of the largest, if not the largest, security exchange campaigns, with the view of simplifying the corporate structure of a group of companies, which has ever been attempted. According to the company the results have been very successful during the year ended the 31st of August, over $200,000,000 of securities having been exchanged or converted.

James O. Watson in New Post

James O. Watson, of Fairmont, W. Va., has been appointed district manager of Hambleton & Co. Mr. Watson has been associated with this firm for many years, making direct connection in April of this year. His grandfather, James Otis Watson, was the pioneer in the West Virginia bituminous coal field, beginning the production of coal in 1862. West Virginia now leads the United States in the production of natural resources.

As a young man, Mr. Watson was assistant to the president of the Consolidation Coal Co. Later he became president of the Monongahela Valley Traction Co., the largest utility in West Virginia. After the World War, this company was sold to the West-Penn interests of the American Water Works. Mr. and Mrs. Watson have an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel but will retain their residence at Fort Hill Farm, in Fairmont

Increased Coal Market Indicated.

The remainder of 1929 shows indication of an increased market for bituminous coal, according to a statement by the National Coal Association. If production for the remainder of the present year only equals that for the same period of 1928, the output for 1929 will be approximately 517,000,000 tons. The 1928 bituminous production was slightly under 493,000,000 tons.

There is every reason to believe that this year's output will exceed that of 1928, owing to increased industrial activity and low consumers' stocks, according to the statement referred to.

Bonds to Be Exchanged.

Dillon, Reed & Co. announce that definitive bonds (with warrants) representing $7,000,000 Warner Co. first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund bonds, due April 1, 1944, will be exchanged for interim receipts at the Tradesmen's National Bank & Trust Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Pogamoggan for Porcupines
Striding through the Canadian wilderness an Indian brave suddenly comes upon a porcupine in the trail ahead of him. Porcupines are lazy, indolent—tender and juicy—and mean opponents at close quarters. But the Indian underslings his pogamoggan, a heavy stone lashed to a long, slender stick.
One blow, delivered from a safe distance, and the porcupine has begun his journey to the cooking fire. Foresight and the right weapon have given the Indian a delicacy he might otherwise have missed.
Today a little forethought and the right weapon still bring an American the luxuries he desires. When opportunity crosses his path his weapon is capital—and his forethought comes in placing his funds in a sound security giving attractive interest and unfailing safety. The 6% First Mortgage Notes sold through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey have given thousands of investors the means to take advantage of opportunities they might otherwise have missed.
Not only in years of prosperity, but through sixty years of war and panic, good times and bad, these Notes have paid their unfailing interest returns, building for their owners a secure and constantly growing fund for future use.
They are likely the right weapon for you.

GRAFT ON LIQUORS LAID TO POLICEMEN

SQUEALER IS ARRESTED

Los Angeles, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The Federal prohibition office disclosed today that 62 Los Angeles police officers, ranging from captains down to patrolmen, had been listed by them as members of an asserted "shakedown" ring exacting tribute from bootleggers.

It also was disclosed that Harry D. MacDonald, Whittier bootlegger, who made a 42-page statement to District Attorney Buron Fitts last week, accusing 24 police officers of similar practice, had been arrested as a result of a Federal investigation which extended over several months.

Deputy District Attorney David Clark revealed that MacDonald had declared an empty Main street movie theater was the liquor storage and "pay-off" station used by the police. He was quoted as confessing because he was "tired of the continued tribute" exacted by the police.

IN THE PLAY HOUSE

POLI'S—"A Tailor-Made Man," a comedy in four acts, by Harry James Smith, presented by W. R. Kane, Inc.:

John Paul Bart.....Grant Mitchell
Mr. Huber.....Maurice Franklin
Mr. Rowlands.....Foster Williams
Dr. Gustavus Sonntag.....Kenneth Rowland
Tanya Huber.....Mary Vance
Corrine Stanlaw.....Carol March
Abram Nathan.....Frank Burbeck

Artistically the opening of the fall season at Poli's Theater last night was quite a success for Grant Mitchell and a thoroughly capable cast presented "A Tailor Made Man" to an appreciative audience, the size of which probably was reduced considerably by the three-day holiday period.

Mr. Mitchell and his associates offered this snappy comedy in their very best manner and it was a pity that a full house was not present to appreciate their efforts. Full of dialogue which was brimming over with humor and with a great deal of gentle satire woven into the speeches on many occasions "A Tailor Made Man" is built for real amusement from opening scene to final curtain.

The story is that of a tailor's assistant who "borrows" a dress suit of one of the shop's patrons, plays the part of a gentleman of high rank at a notable reception and through his audacity gains the friendship and faith of the head of a great shipping corporation. The corporation is threatened with a strike but the tailor's helper averts the strike by methods of his own. Just as success has been reached the jealous fiance of the tailor's daughter, who believes the helper is in love with his sweetheart, threatens to expose the impostor. John Paul Bart, the pretender to greatness, beats the rival to the newspapers exposing himself and returns to the tailor shop, prepared to resume his old drudgery. But having won fame, it does not desert him and those who he has aided through his business acumen, return to take him back into the shipping world for a better job. Oh yes, the girl was his at the last scene.

Grant Mitchell's work as John Paul Bart throughout the four acts was highly commendable and entertaining. His humor was brisk and carried through with a finesse that made a lasting impression. He was given no little aid in the comedy portions of the dialogue by Peter, assistant to the tailor, played by Thomas Shearer; Pomeroy, a valet, played by Anthony Blair; Kitty Dupuy, a divorcee, and her daughter, Bessie, played by Uytendale Caner and Mary Farren, and by Mr. Jellicott, yachtsman, played by Harry Green. It was Jellicott's dress suit which enabled Bart to crash society.

Frank Burbeck as Abram Nathan, head of the shipping concern, turned in a splendid piece of acting, while Mary Louise White, as Miss Shayne, proved the perfect stenographer.

Playing opposite Mr. Mitchell was Mary Vance as Tanya Huber, and while her lines and appearances were all too few, what was offered her she did remarkably well. Her appearance added no little to the success of her performance. Carol March handled the other chief feminine role to a nicety, that of Corinne Stanlaw, daughter of the Stanlaws at whose reception Bart began to climb the ladder to fame. She deserts the hero when he is exposed, just in time to allow him to win Tanya.

Others who did their share toward this very creditable opening night attraction were Foster Williams, as a newspaper man; Kenneth Rowland as Tanya's jealous fiance; Walter Wilson and Luella Morey, as Mr. and Mrs. Stanlaw; Norman Wendell and Genevieve Prizzell, as Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmorris; John Wandris, Charles Carey, Walter Geer, John Boone and Charles Douglas.

UNION MEN PARADE IN MARION STREETS

Troops' Strength Redoubled but Auto Procession Is Allowed.

STRIKERS HOLD MEETING

Marion, N. C., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—With double guards of troops on duty in the Clinchfield and East Marion mill villages, Labor Day passed quietly here.

Hundreds of union men from all sections of the State attended a mass meeting at union headquarters and heard addresses by leaders.

Officials of the city of Marion made no effort to interfere with a parade of 70 automobiles filled with union men and headed by a truckload of provisions being brought here for strikers. Prior to the parade Mayor H. H. Tate had announced that there would be no interfence with the automobile parade, but that any parade in which anyone tried to march on foot would be stopped.

National Guardsmen on duty at the Clinchfield and Marion Manufacturing Co. mill villages did double duty throughout the day to prevent any untoward incidents. Adjt. Gen. Van B. Metts, of Raleigh, who arrived today to take charge of the troops, announced that the troops would be used solely to aid civil authorities in enforcing the law and would abide by the interpretations of the law made by the civil authorities.

The automobile caravan of labor leaders and union members from Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, Charlotte and other points assembled at Hickory shortly before noon and arrived here at 3 p. m. without incident.

N. A. Townsend, executive counsel, went to Shelby this afternoon for another conference with Gov. O. Max Gardner. Townsend said he did not have anything to make public, but it was said he still hoped to work out some means whereby the differences between the mill management and the strikers might be ended.

Forest Fire Sweeps Catoctin at Frederick

Frederick, Md., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—An extensive fire in the Catoctin Mountain section today burned over a portion of the land near here owned by Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, as a fishing preserve, but did not reach the fishing camp. The fire on the Richey preserve was stopped, but to the south it spread so rapidly over the city watershed that additional fire fighters were sought to augment the already large force.

People at the Richey camp have been furnishing lunches for the men who have been fighting the flames since they started yesterday near Five Forks.

Gas Overcomes Youth Taking Bath.

Horace Banks, colored, 18 years old, 539 I street southwest, was overcome by gas yesterday afternoon while taking a bath at his home. The rescue squad responded to the emergency call and revived him. The bathroom was filled with gas that was escaping from a leaky pipe, it was reported.

Behind the Screens

With DON B. REED

While Nelson is idling away the hours where the wild waves are waving, just off Hains Point, I will be endeavoring to fill this space three times a week for two weeks. Somehow, two weeks seems a long, long time when I consider the scarcity of paragraphs to be found on my desk at this moment. Possibly after becoming acclimated I shall discover under the piles of manuscripts which I inherited from Mr. Bell some items of interest to a public whose indulgence I beg, pending Nelson's return to duty.

Had there been space in the usual Monday morning reviews I would have given more details of the prologue to "The Cock-Eyed World," at the Fox. It really presented nothing else but a cock-eyed world, for the central screen figure was Old Man World himself with one eye askew while the variety of pictures shown in the corners of the stage, ranging from choruses dancing to airplanes racing, left audiences dizzy if not entitled to a portion of the picture's title. Mr. Winchester and Mr. Meakin, take note. The prologue was neither too long nor too short. You are welcome.

"The passion of Joan of Arc" is scheduled to open the fall season at the Little Theater, on Ninth street, Friday afternoon, and I judge from notices which have come to this desk, there will be no blaring of trumpets. The patrons will enter and the picture will begin, which is sometimes the way it ought to be. This film, so the advance advertising indicates, is a French production made by the Societe General des Films and directed by Carl Th. Drever, loaned to that organization by U. F. A. The Little, of course, reopens under the auspices of the Film Arts Guild of Washington, and Joseph R. Filesler is the director. Newspaper critics who have reviewed the film give it unstinted praise. My information includes the statement that the picture was banned in England, which may or may not mean that it is unusual, to say the least.

Washington may not be the best motion-picture city in the United States, but if my glimpses along F street, just off G at Thirteenth and Ninth were not all wrong, it is pretty close to being just that. As I recall a stroll along motion picture row over the week-end, none of the houses was lacking business. The Rialto came back into the circle of the elect with a bang, while Fox business threatens to break all the records of the house. Kate Smith is keeping the Earle filled, while the Haines fans are still as numerous as ever, I judge from the line at the Palace. The Metropolitan and the Columbia, while carrying features into the second week had trouble accommodating all those who wanted to get inside. Yes, it seems to me, the fall season is officially on.

Al Jolson will return to the Capital (in the films) tomorrow night when a selected audience will get a first peek at "Say It With Songs," the new Warner Brothers starring feature for the comedian. The Metropolitan Theater will be the scene of this previewing and as one of the invited guests, I am looking forward to a pleasant time beginning at about 11:30 p. m. and ending when Al runs out of "Mammy" songs. Davey Lee, the "Sonny Boy" of the flickers, is again teamed with "Uncle Al," while Marian Nixon has the chief feminine role. Others who will support Jolson are Holmes Herbert, Fred Kohler and John Bowers. I am a little uncertain as to what the story is all about but, perhaps after tomorrow night's performance, my observations will help manufacture a few jottings for this column, and, who can tell, may induce you to call at the "Met" when Al begins doing his stuff regularly there.

Possibly my holiday enthusiasm got the best of me, but as I watched the fireman's parade yesterday, it occurred to me that motion picture directors might find plenty of screen possibilities in Washington if the girls on the floats belong in the Capital. Then again, perhaps the heat affected my vision, but I thought they were pretty nifty.

Frostburg Observes Labor Day.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 2 (Special).—Labor Day celebration was held at Junior Order Park under the direction of the Frostburg fire department. A program of games and other entertainment was given this afternoon, followed by a parade this evening, the event concluding with dancing in the pavilion and a display of fireworks.

The Door of the Big Safe

By VANCE WYNN

WHEN the Duke of Brunswick sent for a jeweler on the 17th of December, 1863, in order to have the setting of one of his famous diamonds changed he little thougnt that he was starting a sensation that was to arouse interest in all parts of Europe.

The jeweler was a trusted artisan but in spite of that fact he was watched closely during all of the time he was at work. The particular diamond was taken out of the big, burglar-proof safe and the operation of changing the setting was performed under the very eye of the Duke. At its conclusion the door of the safe was closed by one of the servants and the room in which it stood shut and locked.

The next morning the doors were found open and jewels scattered all over the floor. An investigation proved that a fortune in gems had been stolen. The jeweler was suspected at once, but it did not take him long to prove his complete innocence. Two or three days later it was found that one of the servants—a valet of the Duke—had mysteriously disappeared. The Scotland Yard detectives began to look up his antecedents and what they found out about him was not to his credit. The Duke said that he had come to him highly recommended, but when his letters of references were closely examined they were found to be forgeries.

John Shaw was the servant who had closed the door of the big safe, and it was ascertained that in doing it he had so manipulated the contrivance that he had deceived his noble master who had actually watched the proceeding. He had picked the lock of the door of the safe room, and that night had managed to get away with "a pocketful of diamonds." In going down the stairway he met one of the other servants and had informed him that he was feeling quite ill. His boldness carried him further. He even asked his fellow servant to take his place with the Duke until he returned in a day or so.

He never returned.

Inspector Fox got into communication with all the money-lenders in England and France and also secured the cooperation of the police of the two countries. Incidentally he made the acquaintance of men who were known to be collectors of rare gems. It was one of these who gave Fox his first real clue. The gentleman said that he had received an anonymous letter postmarkd Boulogne, saying that the writer had a quantity of rare jewels which he was willing to part with for the sum of 100,000 francs which was less than one-half of their real value. The epistle indicated an apartment house in Boulogne, where the negotiations might be safely conducted. The letter suggested that a messenger be sent there with the money.

A messenger was sent and it was Inspector Fox, of Scotland Yard.

When he arrived at the apartment house in question he sent his card up to No. 13 and was told to come up at once. He did so and was greeted by a man who answered the description of the English valet. The two men talked for a time and presently Shaw produced the jewels. He kept his hands on them, however, and would not let go until the money was given him. The inspector put his hand in his pocket as though to get the cash and produced a revolver.

"John Shaw," he exclaimed, "I arrest you for the robbery of the jewels of the Duke of Brunswick."

The valet, as it was afterward proved, was an accomplished criminal, but the unexpectedness of this assault upset him for the moment. As he told a friend later, "You could have knocked me down with a feather," but he did not surrender lightly. He knocked the revolver out of the detective's hand and dashed from the room.

But his liberty was short-lived. In less than twenty minutes he was taken into custody and held for court. He was promptly convicted and was given a sentence of twenty years' imprisonment at hard labor.

TEN JURORS NAMED FOR GASTONIA TRIAL

Remaining Two May Be Chosen Today for Hearing of 16 in Murder Case.

COURT DEMANDS SPEED

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—There were only two vacant chairs in the jury box late today when Judge M. V. Barnhill announced a recess of the court trying sixteen defendants on the charge of murdering Police Chief O. F. Aderholt, of Gastonia.

Three jurors were added to the seven selected last week to make a total of ten now seated and attorneys and court attaches tonight were hopeful the jury taking could be completed early tomorrow, making it possible to start hearing evidence.

The death of the police chief came as the climax to several months of labor troubles at the Loray Mills in Gastonia. He was shot as he and other officers entered the tent colony of the strikers. Of the sixteen on trial, the thirteen men are charged with first degress murder and the three women with second degree murder.

One fact tonight was being cited as making the likelihood of completion of the jury tomorrow appear unlikely. The special venire of 300 names was nearing exhaustion at adjournment time. There still were 24 slips in the hat used by the clerk of the court to keep names of uncalled veniremen.

To this number could be added seventeen more names and a new venire must be called. The seventeen names are from the regular venire, summoned in due process of law for the second week of the court term. Eighteen is the regular number, but one of the veniremen was excused by Judge Barnhill.

With only 41 names between the court and the necessity of halting temporarily while a new venire can be summoned, there was considerable doubt expressed as to the chances for completing the jury tomorrow. This was particularly obvious when it was noted that 107 veniremen were called today in securing the three jurors.

The three jurors selected today were:

G. L. Benson, 26, railroad clerk at Newell. He formerly was a member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

G. L. Shuford, 42, of Charlotte, car repairman for the Southern Railway and member of a railway union.

Equaled Court's Record.

The selection of three jurors today equaled the record made by the court. On the first day of examination of veniremen on last Wednesday three were found who could pass all the requirements. Then on Thursday three more were taken. One more was accepted Friday and none Saturday.

Judge Barnhill tightened up today on excusing veniremen, but his more rigid rules only caused the prosecution and the defense to squander their peremptory challenges.

As soon as court convened this morning it was apparent the excuses used by many last week would not go. When a veniremen declared he was opposed to capital punishment, Judge Barnhill wanted to find out how definite his convictions were and, except in rare cases, would not admit this as cause for dismissal.

Both Sides Are Surprised.

The same thing was true of prospective jurors who declared they had made up their minds as to guilt or innocence. He immediately started questioning to see if their convictions were not such that evidence could change them.

Both sides seemed a little surprised at first, but took the judge's stern rulings as a matter of course. By nightfall the defense had used 103 of its 168 peremptory challenges and the State had exhausted 40 of its 58.

Both sides exercised caution in excusing those who professed to have come to a decision as to the guilt or innocence. This brought by far the greater number of challenges.

Deputy Chief Injured In Baltimore Oil Fire

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Twenty thousand gallons of kerosene were destroyed and two persons were injured in a fire today at the Canton refining plant of the Standard Oil Co. The origin of the fire was not determined.

Deputy Chief Lewin Burkhardt was burned on both legs when he slipped in some acid. He was treated and taken to his home. A spectator, whose name was not learned, received a fractured ankle when struck by a fire truck.

Police Hunt Dynamiters Of Threshing Machine

Special to The Washington Post.

Franklin, W. Va., Sept. 2.—State police and bloodhounds are trying to find the trail of unidentified individuals who dynamited a threshing machine belonging to W. H. Harper, near Harman, this county, destroying the machine.

The dynamite was placed inside the thresher at its stand in a field, and then set off.

Choking Spell Fatal To Former Virginian

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 2—While chatting and laughing at the dinner table, Miss Margaret Ann Corley, 87, choked to death yesterday at the home of Mrs. W. E. Hardman, a grandniece at Wolf Summit, when a particle of food lodged in her windpipe.

The victim was a daughter of Hezekiah and Levina Corley, now deceased, and was a native of Virginia.

Police Asked to Find Boy.

Police yesterday were asked to look out for Edward Howard, 14 years old, who has been missing from his home at 814 K street northeast since Sunday night. The boy wore light knickers and a white shirt when he was last seen.

Gaston Holds Nats in Check As Mates Gain Even Break.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 2.—After Joe Cronin and Joe Judge had assisted Myles Thomas in quelling the Red Sox, 10 to 7, in the first game of the holiday double-header before 18,000 at Braves Field this afternoon, Irving (Bump) Hadley was knocked hither and thither by a aroused Red Sox in the finale, which ended with the Sox out in front, 7 to 2. Cronin was the top star of that opener, which saw Thomas win his sixth straight. The at shortstop made five hits in five times at bat, a single, a pair of doubles, a triple and a home run. That makes a total of 12 bases for five times at bat, something worth while which to toss your hat even in days of the mercurial ball. Joe Judge needed high mention in the opener, for his homer with two on bases in the second inning meant three runs and helped Danny Macfayden, youthful right-hander of the Sox, hit the chutes.

Thomas had one of these easy games and that the Red Sox made hits means not much of anything. They got eight of them in the last two frames when far behind.

Hadley was succeeded by Ad Liska and eventually Lloyd Brown finished the second game. The Sox hit the first two freely. Meanwhile, Pat Gaston, a former National, was holding his one-time mates to seven hits in the nightcap.

Goslin Hits 18th Homer in Second Game.

One of those seven was a wicked drive by Goose Goslin into the right field pavillion with none on base, in this eighteenth homer of the season. In the final the Sox made 12 hits and Bobby Reeves made three of them for six bases and Elliott Bigelow got three times, three singles and a out of four times at bat. Spring in the opener started MacFayden walked West in the inning. Tat's single, Cronin's single and Joe Judge's homer the jury box, small bleachers right field, added up to four runs. were two on when Judge homered. The visitors in our midst another tally in their third when ver doubled and Cronin tripled to ht.

The Hose did not start picking up til their half of the third. Then eves walked and was forced by arritt, but Rothrock singled, with arritt being cut down after overning second and being too slow the return. Bigelow singled to ht and when Rice fumbled the the speedy Rothrock scored all way from first.

Cronin whacked a homer into the ft field stands in the fifth, after t had singled and that meant more for the Nationals, who de their lead, 9 to 1, by scoring ice in the seventh on a boot by dt, and singles by Cronin, Hayes d Thomas, all in a row.

Ruffing Hits for Circuit as Pinch-Hitter.

Athletics Win Pair from Yankees

Rally to Take Second 6-5, After Walberg Is Pounded Out.

Pipgras Is Routed in Opener During 6-run Offensive.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The Athletics removed the last lingering doubt about the American League pennant race today by taking both ends of a holiday doubleheader from the Yankees and running their lead to 13½ games.

The Mackmen fell on George Pipgras in the third inning of the morning game for a six-run rally that brought them a 10 to 3 victory. A rally in the ninth inning of the close afternoon contest decided it by a 6 to 5 score. Today's victory was Philadelphia's first over Pipgras this season.

This afternoon they had to overcome a Yankee lead gained when the New Yorkers drove Rube Walberg from the mound with four runs in the sixth frame. Ehmke stopped the Yankee scoring and the Athletics bunched three hits with an error for a pair of counters in the ninth.

MEYER WINS IN ALTOONA AUTO RACE

Bergere Is Forced to Quit When 2 Laps Ahead of Field.

By A. NORMAN GAGE
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Meyer led the eight survivors of the original field of thirteen to win by a margin of ten miles over Fred Frame, of Los Angeles. To make the victory an all-California affair, Myron Stevens, Los Angeles' newest graduate from the dirt tracks, drove Meyer's second car into third place, finishing some 13 miles back of the leader.

Today's victory carried with it a cash prize of $4,500 and 400 points, which gave Meyer the national championship by a margin of 130 points. Ray Keech, of Philadelphia, had compiled 1,000 points before he lost his life in the June event here. Second place paid Frame $2,000, and third place won $1,500 for Stevens.

Time Is Comparatively Slow.

The winner's time was comparatively slow. Meyer was clocked officially in 1:46:36. Frame's time was 1:54:25 and Stevens 1:56:17. Meyer's average speed was slightly less than 113 miles an hour.

In winning his third straight race in the Tipton bowl Meyer drove steadily and had good luck and no mechanical trouble. He and the other two leaders were the only entrants who were not forced into the pits during the grind. The way for his triumph was opened only when Cliff Bergere was forced out on the 149th lap.

Bergere, after battling with Meyer and Wilbur Shaw through the first 40 miles took the lead on the thirty-third lap and held it steadily. Averaging about 120 miles, he lapped Meyer on the eighty-ninth round and had increased his margin to two full laps when a broken waterline in the motor cooling system sent his hopes crashing with victory just ahead. He took his misfortune smilingly, however, waving cheerily to the crowd of 35,000 in the stands.

Shaw, running a good third, was driven into the pits after the half way mark. He turned his machine over to Deacon Litz, who drove it in sixth. The unofficial order of the other finishers was: "Shorty" Cantlon, fourth; Billy Arnold, fifth; Fred Winnai, seventh, and Speed Gardner, eighth.

Doeg and Lott Defeated in Upset

Mangin-Van Ryn Win for East Over New Doubles Champs.

Van Ryn Also Bows But East Triumphs Over West.

By TED VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—In one of the most dramatic finishes ever seen in a tennis series between East and West, the Eastern forces defeated their rivals here this afternoon by toppling the new national championship doubles combination of George Lott, Chicago, and John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., for the deciding victory.

Fresh from their straight set triumph in the final at Brookline, Mass., Saturday, Lott and Doeg were felled by the hard-hitting New Jersey combination of John Van Ryn, East Orange, and Gregory Mangin, Newark, by scores of 6—1, 3—6, 6—2.

The unexpected victory gave the East the five matches needed to clinch the two-day series and provided the gallery of 2,000 with more concentrated tennis drama than this series has produced since the days when Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston, at the head of rival contingents, were fighting for supremacy.

Western Duo Favored in Deciding Match.

Coming up strongly by winning two of the first three matches decided today, the West had gone a long way toward overcoming the one to three deficit encountered on Saturday.

When Lott and Doeg went into action against Van Ryn and Mangin, a Western victory squaring the series at four apiece seemed a foregone conclusion, but the fighting youngsters from New Jersey quickly demonstrated that they cared little for the reputation of the champions.

In the first set the Eastern outfit carried all before it. Not even Doeg's terrific service could stop their onslaught and they crashed through his delivery twice on the way to the set at 6—1.

Doeg braced and Lott waxed brilliant in the second set, their improved play enabling them to even the match. But in the final set the New Jerseyites were hot on their trail again. Mangin led the attack in this final session, storming the net with deadly power overhead and once standing off the national champions single-handed throughout a long rally at short range, with the Davis Cup doubles star backing him up in great style.

Champs Outclassed in Final Set.

Doeg won his service in the fourth game and Lott took his in the sixth, but outside of these two stands the champions had all the worst of it. In the final game, the Easterners outdid themselves by breaking through Doeg's furious delivery, the giant Californian netting dismally for the last two points.

In the day's singles, Mangin opened up strongly for the East by defeating Lewis N. White, the leisurely young Texan, who is trying a comeback this year, by scores of 7—5, 8—6, but the West countered quickly with a pair of victories, both of which might be classed as upsets.

In the first of these, Doeg, the Santa Monica (Calif.) slugger, who is No. 8 in the national ranking, battered out a surprising win over Van Ryn, who is No. 6, at 6—4, 6—2, earning a score of clean-service aces in the two brief sets. In the second, the slim but dynamic Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., ranked No. 13, disposed of Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., No. 7, at 7—9, 6—4, 6—2. Bell tired, but never surrendered.

The final score of the nine-match series was six to three in favor of the East. As in the last encounter, Mercur and J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., National Clay Court champion, defeated Bell and White, runners-up for the National Turf Court doubles title, 6—3, 6—2.

The East now has won the annual series nine times, the West five, and two have been tied.

his youthful rival, who learned his game in Chicago, went for a time to Wisconsin University, transplanted it to Los Angeles and won the southern California intercollegiate honors for U. C. L. A.

Roland Mackenzie Among Five to Equal Par.

Dunlap and Jones were the only players to crack par, but five others equaled the "perfect 72" to demonstrate that the terrors of Pebble Beach can be conquered, the chasms hurdled and the ocean avoided, even though these hazards proved the undoing of a good share of the starting field of 141 players.

Most of the stars, with the single and surprising exception of George Voigt, New York's favorite, came through the opening test comfortably enough to indicate they will have little if any difficulty gaining the bracket of 32 qualifiers tomorrow night. Voigt, his usually brilliant iron play missing, needed 40—40—80 for his round. This was far from the form expected of the 1928 medalist, who must stage a comeback tomorrow to avoid elimination.

The group at 72 comprised the two principal threats from Portland, Oreg.—Dr. Oscar F. Willing and Donald K. Moe, present holder of the Western amateur title—as well as Roland Mackenzie, young Washington D. C.) star; the St. Paul star, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, and Eugene V. Homans, of Englewood, N. J., the Princeton ace. Johnston experienced the sensation of holding a brief lead early in the day, but was quickly supplanted by Jones.

Tolley Leads British With 75 Card.

Cyril Tolley, the big British champion, came safely through his first test with a 75, due to a fine 36 over the difficult homeward nine, and assumed the position of outstanding foreign threat. Only one stroke behind him, however, was his countryman, Eustace F. Storey, blond little favorite of the galleries, who cracked on the homeward nine, taking 41 after going out sensationally in 34. T. A. Bourn, of England, needed 80.

Bracketed at 75 with Tolley were George Von Elm, of Detroit, the 1926 champion, and two surprising contenders, Vincent Dolp, of Portland, Oreg., and William K. Lanman, jr., of Columbus, Ohio. Francis Ouimet, of Boston, another former title holder, compiled a comfortable 76.

La Barba on Way East; To Fight in Europe

Los Angeles, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Fidel La Barba, former world's flyweight boxing champion, today was on his way to New York on the first lap of a trip to Europe, where he is scheduled to fill several boxing engagements. La Barba said if any good offers for bouts were forthcoming in the East he would remain in New York, otherwise he will sail Saturday on the Homeric. His wife and his manager, George Blake, accompanied him.

Big Reception Planned For Chocolate in Cuba

Havana, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Cuba is preparing a royal reception for Kid Chocolate, foremost fighting man in the island's history, and his manager, Louis Gutierrez, on their return here Saturday from a triumphant visit to the United States.

There will be a gold medal for Chocolate, who whipped Al Singer in New York last Thursday, a bronze medal for Gutierrez, and golden keys to the city of Havana for both. The Cuban Athletics commission plans to erect a bronze tablet in its headquarters listing Chocolate's long list of victories.

Mobile Player Dying From Baseball Injury

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Artis Cody, 19 years old, amateur ball player, is in a local hospital with a fractured skull and in a serious condition as the result of being struck on the head by a pitched ball yesterday in a ball game. Physicians said today Cody had small chances of recovery.

OSMAND SCORES AT BELMONT WITH 140 POUNDS UP

Sprinting Ace Beats Balko By Neck

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Osmand is himself again—the best sprinter in training at six furlongs. He took up 140 pounds in the fall heavyweight handicap at Belmont Park today and set a crowd of 30,000 men and women cheering madly as he beat Balko, Finite and others in a fighting, bruising finish and ran the distance in 1:10 3-5—close to record time.

The huge throng, out for a holiday and to welcome the opening of the fall racing season here, gave him a riotous greeting. He was the favorite in spite of two defeats over one mile at Saratoga Springs—and fully half of those in attendance were rooting violently and at the end joyfully for the blond son of Sweeper—Ormoda, which added $3,600 to his earnings.

The striking performance of Osmond and a double for H. P. Whitney with Dustemall and Tantivy lent flavor to a fine day's sport.

Winner Responds to Garner's Urging.

G. E. Widener, just back from France where he also races a string of horses, was on hand to see Osmand carry his colors to victory and rejoice. Willie Garner had Osmand up with the leaders all the way and rode a strong, smooth finish in contrast to what many considered a poor ride on Curate earlier in the day. The big horse responded to his every call in gamest fashion and hung up time that was only two-fifths of a second behind the track record of 1:10 1-5, set up by What'll I Do, under 107 pounds in 1926.

Balko made a great fight to be beaten only a neck, while G. D. Widener's Finite was pressing both closely. W. R. Coe's much-fancied Vanity was back among the trailers. She met with some misfortunes and can do better.

The sixth race was ruined by a start so poor that the best horse was robbed of the purse. Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Chicatie was all but left at the post, while Beau Wrack, the odds-on favorite, and Iollan were off running.

Chicatie was fully fifteen lengths out of it in the first quarter, but he closed this great gap by running the last 7 furlongs in 1:23, only to be beaten a scant half-length by Iollan, the one-time jumper, which ran the mile in 1:39 3-5.

Capture Takes Handicap At Lincoln Fields.

Lincoln Field Race Track, Ill., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The Rancocas stable's good filly Capture, a consistent winner in the racing hereabouts, won the rich Joliet Handicap, the feature attraction here this afternoon. The Warm stable's Try Too, carrying top weight of 121 pounds, also a big money winner, was second, with Lightning Jones from the Knebelkamp & Morris string, third. Khara, coupled with the winner, was fourth.

Of the thirteen overnight entrants but nine started. The race was worth $5,620 to the winner; $1,000 to second; $500 to third, and $120 went to the fourth place. The winner paid $12.60 for a $2 ticket.

Capture, showing good speed and gameness from the rise of the barrier, went into a short lead and withstanding a long hard drive won by half a length. Try Too, away fast, raced closest up throughout and just nosed out Lightning Jones for the place money. The latter was away well and was allowed to drop back, but came again stoutly through the stretch drive and probably would have been up in another stride.

J. Spencer registered two victories during the afternoon, his Peach Rose winning the first number and his Willa captured the fourth race.

Jockey F. Halbert made it three wins in a row when he piloted home the winners in the last three numbers on the card. Montanaro won the Labor Day Handicap, the secondary feature on a good card. It was a gallop of a mile and a furlong.

Patricia Marian raced to the place and Canaan finished third.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOUSE GIRL, $33.14, $15.00, $8.88; CZARIST, $6.14, $5.22; MAIDEN'S CHOICE, $6.34.

HOUSE GIRL, racing close up during early stages, responded readily in the stretch and, taking the lead, drew out handily. CZARIST, reserved off the early pace, moved up stoutly on the inside entering the stretch where, after being blocked, he came to the outside of leaders and finished fast. MAIDEN'S CHOICE displayed good speed in pacemaking, but tired badly in the final furlong. JEAN BURNHAM, going in improved form, raced close up to the p.ce until reaching the stretch, where he tired.

Hull's Single Decisive In 10th

Pitcher Also Hurls Well, Fanning Side in 10th.

Game Thriller With Lead Constantly Changing.

RESPONDING to a third alarm yesterday, Fireman Calvin Hull hit and pitched the Fire Department Baseball Team to a thrilling 12 to 11 victory over the Police Nine in a ten-inning battle at Griffith Stadium. About 15,000 followers of the municipal service teams witnessed the contest and the colorful program that preceded it.

It was a free-scoring battle from the start, with the teams alternating in the lead. The husky Police sluggers came from behind early to overcome the lead amassed by the Firemen and then yielded to the pitching of Hull, while the ultimate victors were rallying in the ninth to tie the score.

Hull drove over what proved to be the deciding run in the tenth and then retired the side on strikes in the Police half. The victory was the third straight for the Firemen.

Finney Kelley, veteran of many interservice contests, pitched the entire route for the losers. His wiliness, timely hitting by the winners, and several untimely miscues by his mates proved the deciding margin of victory for the opposition.

Kelly issued two passes in the first round and Snow's single sandwiched between the two franks gave the Firemen a tally. A pass to Hook and a single by Hoffman went to waste in the first batting round for the Police.

Firemen Increase Lead to Four Runs.

Succesive triples by Hooper and Peterson after Watt had reached first on an error, a base on balls to Walters, and an infield out, enabled the Firemen to increase their lead to four runs in the second.

Ray Hooper, who started on the mound for the victors, showed first signs of weakening in the third. After Mazurski had doubled to left, Hoffman contributed a homer in the park. Elser followed with a long double, but was caught stealing.

Kelly retired the fire fighters without damage in the third and fourth and the Patrolmen added a marker in their half when Rinker doubled and Kelly singled him over the plate. The Firemen added a counter in the fifth on Hook's error and successive singles by Burthe and Watt.

Police Take Lead for First Time in Fifth.

In their half of the fifth, the Police chased Hooper from the mound and gave Bill Bunton such a hearty reception that he pitched to but two batters. Hull was called in to stop the merriment. Hooper hit Hook to start the round and Hoffman doubled to left. A second alarm was sounded and Bunton rushed to the rescue. Hiser greeted him with a home run to right-center and when Spiess doubled, Hull was hurried to the mound. He fanned Campbell and forced Weatherhead to fly to center. Three runs had counted, however, and the Police were in the van for the first time, 6 to 5.

The Firemen came back in the next round and knotted the count when Walters walked, went to third on Snow's single, and scored on an infield out.

Bluecoats Add 4 More To Total.

The Police appeared to have locked up the issue in their half of the same session, when they gathered four additional tallies. Rinker walked and Mazurski drew the same good fortune after Kelly popped to Peterson in trying to sacrifice. Hook was called out on strikes, but Hoffman walked to fill the bases. Hiser lined a triple to right, clearing the bases and scoring a moment later on Spiess' single.

Hoffman's error, Watt's single, a double by Hull, another miscue by Kelly and an infield out gave the Firemen three tallies in the seventh. The Police went out in order before Hull in their half and the Firemen failed to cut down their rivals' lead in the eighth. The Patrolmen counted one in the lower half of the latter frame without a hit. Mazurski and Hook were hit in succession and both advanced on a passed ball. Mazurski scored on Hoffman's long looper to right.

Hull Fans Whole Side in 10th To Hold Lead.

Two hands had expired in the tenth when Burthe and Watt singled in succession. Hull met the big opportunity to win his own game by slashing a single to left, scoring Burthe.

Hull, determined to save the lean lead he had given his team, fanned Mazurski to start the last half. He walked Hook and Lefty Cox was called in to hit for Stewart, who had taken over the catching duties from Hoffman. Cox watched a third strike go by and Hiser, one of the slugging stars of the early rounds, also waved in vain at Hull's slants and the annual battle was over.

Georgetown A. C. Nine Twice Defeats Laurel

Georgetown A. C. added two more wins to its long string yesterday by taking both ends of a double bill from the Laurel A. C. Nine of Laurel, Md. Lefty McIntyre hurled the opener and limited the losers to nine hits for a 7 to 1 decision. Chaconas was also effective in the nightcap, earning an 11 to 3 verdict. Chaconas also hit a homer in the initial fray.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Alexandria, Sept. 1.—The second annual field day under the auspices of the Potomac Yard Athletic Association will be held at Baggett's Stadium Saturday, September 14, and Bennie Rosenblatt, secretary of the association, is busy making preparations for the event.

The outstanding attraction of the day will be the 10-mile modified marathon race. Haskell Clark, star distance runner of Washington, who carries the club colors of the Knights of Columbus, won this event last year and is expected to run again this year. Other marathoners of note who are expected to participate are Mike Lynch, Dan Healy, Jerry Looney and Jimmy Montague, of Washington, as well as the Schreiner brothers, of this city, and several members of the Del Ray A. C.

Included in the events will be a 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, broad jump, 60-yard dash for fat men weighing 200 pounds or over, mile relay for schools and clubs and many others. A baseball game between two teams of the Railroad League will be another feature.

HISERS IN PRACTICE.

Hisers All-Stars practice tomorrow at 6 o'clock on the Riverdale diamond in preparation for Sunday's double-header with Mount Rainier in the Prince Georges County series.

Rocky Mount Winner In 2d Carolina Series

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—By the scant margin of a lone tally, the Rocky Mount Bronchos today won the second half of the Eastern Carolina League pennant chase, putting the Goldsboro Team out of the running by taking the first half of a Labor Day engagement, 7 to 6. The victory gives the "Bronks" the right to play Wilmington, first winners, for the year's flag.

A double victory for Goldsboro would have given that club the second half of the pennant by the margin of one game.

Today's games were the last of the season.

"ONE EYE" GETS GOLF ACE.

One Eye Connelly, famous boxing gate crasher while in Chicago to witness the Mastro-Shea bout, made a hole in one, playing golf. He claims it is the second one to his credit since taking up the ancient Scotch pastime.

FRIENDSHIP A. C. WINS.

Lefty Jewett's relief pitching featured as the Friendship A. C. nosed out the Shady Oak Nine yesterday, 14 to 13, at Shady Oak. Both teams hit hard, the Friendships collecting 19 hits against Shady Oak's 15.

UNLIMITEDS TOPPED BY DIXIE PIGS

Waldron's Team Advances by Downing Aztecs.

HUGH WALDROP'S Dixie Pig Nine gained undisputed possession of the Capital City League unlimited section leadership yesterday by beating the Miller Aztecs in a heated 3-to-2 struggle. At the same time, Frank Cinotti's St. Joseph A. C. Club moved into the runner-up position by virtue of a 10-to-7 decision over the Auths in a gruelling twelve-round contest.

The National Press Building Cardinals moved into a tie with the Authmen for fourth place by virtue of a 2-to-1 decision over the Brentwood Hawks. The Hawks were forced to abandon further play in the sixth, when their right field, Dutch Gerhardt, was overcome by the heat. His loss left the Hawks with but eight players. A forfeit over the Capitol's boosted the Brown's Corner Nine a few percentage points.

Adair Hero of Team's Well-Earned Victory.

Much of the credit for the Dixie Pig triumph should be heaped upon Blackie Adair. He allowed but four hits and fanned five opponents, while his aids were gathering a half score safeties off the offerings of Peewee Walker. The victors were forced to come from behind, however, to gain the top berth. Four successive hits gave the winner a pair of tallies in the fifth and a walk and two singles in the seventh accounted for the winning tally. It was Dove's bingle that sent the wininng counter over.

The St. Joseph Nine had a close call. Both Taylor and Deuterman, the opposing moundsmen, were touched rather freely at times. The Authmen came from behind and scored a pair in the eighth to tie the score and force the fighting into extra rounds. The losers had three on in the tenth with one hand gone but could not get over the run necessary to win. The victors chased over three runs in the twelfth to settle the dispute. Freschi's hitting, the pitching of Taylor and the fielding of Cinnotti and Keefer featured.

Kopp's Homer Gives Hawks Lone Run.

La Verne Kopp's home run gave the Brentwood Hawks their lone tally. Both Kopp and Larry Schneider pitched steady ball and the unfortunate mishap to Gerhardt halted what appeared to be one of the best hurling duels of the season.

THOUSANDS COMPETE IN HOLIDAY GOLF EVENTS

Service Club Honors to Brewer

Banockburn Flag Tournament Won By Dunbar.

Beaver Dam Event to Daniels; Tourneys At Other Clubs.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE local golf courses were crowded yesterday from early morn until dark with literally thousands of players participating in the competitions which were offered as attractions to club members.

At the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club in the 18-hole medal play handicap contest the winner was Lieut. Comdr. S. D. Brewer, U. S. N., with a card of 86—19—67. Maj. H. P. Burgin, 91—21—70, finished second, with Col. A. J. Cooper, 90—15—75, in third place.

There was a varied program at the Bannockburn Club, the principal event being a flag tournament which was won by R. C. Dunbar, whose final stroke carried his ball 215 yards from the tenth tee. E. J. Doyle finished second, holing out in the cup on the eighteenth green, while John Thacker, on the eighteenth green, finished third. The flag tournament for the women ended in a tie between Miss I. M. Havey and Mrs. R. C. Dunbar, each being equidistant from the cup on the ninth green.

Bannockburn Driving Event To Alexander.

The men's driving contest was won by A. E. Alexander, with 240 yards, W. A. Torrey taking second prize. The men's approaching contest was won by John Thacker, with E. J. Doyle second.

At the Beaver Dam Club there was competition for the President's Cup, 18 holes, medal play, handicap allowance, and the winner was George Daniels, 94—27—67, with H. A. Neff, 84—15—69, in second place. The Grosner Cup, 18 holes, low gross, was won for the second time by John R. Miller with a card of 38—43—81, which was the low score of the day.

The men's driving contest was won by Volney Burnett with a tee shot of 31 yards, John R. Miller finishing second with 302 yards and Jesse F. Baggett finishing third with 280 yards. The men's approaching contest was won by Lindsay Stott, with M. H. Maier finishing second. The men's putting contest was won in spectacular fashion by J. E. Collins who holed out a 60-foot putt, with several ties among players who holed out in two putts. Jesse F. Baggett won the play-off.

In the womens' events, Mrs. Albert Fischer won the driving contest with 200 yards, Mrs. M. H. Shipley being a close second with 190 yards. Mrs. Fischer also won the women's approaching contest, with Mrs. William Mitchell second, while Miss Ora Emge won the putting contest, Mrs. Alma von Steinner finishing in the runner-up position.

Kochenderfer, Hanson Win At Columbia.

At the Columbia Club a best-ball tournament was staged, played in foursomes, with full handicap allowances for partners. The winners were W. M. Kochenderfer and W. C. Hanson, with a card of 78—36—42, while A. S. Gardiner and A. S. Gardiner, jr., with 75—31—44, and Dr. William M. Simpkins and John W. Martyn, 78—34—44, shared the second and third prizes. The women's putting contest was won by Mrs. George H. Parker, with Mrs. Charles R. White runner-up and Mrs. C. Arthur Slater winner of the consolation.

The Chevy Chase Club event was eighteen holes, medal play, handicap allowance, and was won by Henry Ravenel with a card of 82—15—67. E. P. Davidson, 73—4—69, and Emmons Smith, 76—7—69, tied for second place, while Harrison Brand, jr., 85—15—70, and Walter G. Peters, 82—12—70, were close finishers.

Match play against par was staged on the course of the Congressional Country Club, the winner being M. H. Rittenhouse, jr., who was 5 up on par. J. L. Baity and E. E. Kolman were each in second place with 3 up on par, while W. W. Griffith and C. J. Giroux were 2 up on par.

Cook Leads Indian Spring Qualifiers.

A minature tournament attracted a large field yesterday to the Indian Spring Club. The qualifying round was won by Pat Cook with 36 strokes, 4 strokes ahead of Charles W. Cole, jr. The latter, however, won the first flight. The summary:

Second flight—R. Wagner, J. W. Harvey, jr., Shorey Allen, Fred C. Clark, Homer S. Pope, Dr. A. Thomas Utz, E. L. Hutchinson, H. A. Allen. Winner, Utz; runner-up, Clark; winner consolation, Pope.

Third flight—Dr. G. W. Maxfield, H. N. Graves, sr., J. R. Sherrod, Jack Harris, S. A. Bryant, H. N. Graves, jr., Campbell Clark and W. E. Borden. Winner—Graves, jr.; runner-up, Borden; winner consolation, Bryant.

Miss Florence Scott was the winner of the women's event, nine selected holes, with a triple tie between Mrs. A. W. Harvey, jr., Mrs. J. F. Gross and Mrs. L. L. Steele for second place.

The principal event at the Manor Club yesterday was the final round for the President's trophy, 36 holes, medal play, handicap allowance. The cup was won by W. A. Warthen, with a card of 157—22—135. Dr. F. M. Murray, whose score was 157—21—136, lost out by one stroke. B. C. Hartig, 160—23—137, finished third. The men's driving contest was won by D. A. Thomson, chairman of the green committee, with an average of 234 yards. In the men's putting contest there was a tie between A. C. Huligan and George F. Miller, each with 38 strokes, Dr. W. I. Green finishing third with 39, and R. F. Garrity fourth with 40. The women's flag tournament resulted in a victory for Mrs. George D. See, whose final strike landed her ball on the tenth green. Mrs. M. Myers and Mrs. R. C. Jones finished second and third, respectively. The women's putting contest was also won by Mrs. George D. See with 40 putts, with Mrs. Charles Dorin second with 41 and Mrs. Callahan and Mrs. B. C. Hartig tied for third with 42.

Two Match Play Rounds at Town and Country.

The first and second round of match play in the annual club handicap championship at the Town and Country were played yesterday, with the following results:

First round—Ralph Caplin, 28, defeated A. Sigmund, 30, by default; Howard Nordlinger, 9, defeated C. D. Kaufman, 30, 3 and 1; Isaac Behrend, 19, defeated Henry Breslau, 19, 2 up; Willard Goldheim, 22, defeated M. Mandle, 30, 7 and 6; Maurice Eiseman, 25, defeated Sidney W. Baum, 35, 5 and 4; S. L. Goldheim, 26, defeated Leopold V. Freudberg, 21, 4 and 3; Robert Baum, 17, defeated Ralph Goldsmith, 20, 5 and 4; Max Weyl, 11, defeated Isaac Goldberg, 3 and 2.

Second round—Nordlinger defeated Caplin, 5 and 4; Goldsmith defeated Behrend, by default; Eiseman defeated I. L. Goldheim, 4 and 2; Baum defeated Weyl, 1 up.

The tombstone tournament at the Washington Golf and Country Club was won by B. R. Dougherty, who had a handicap of 14 and whose last stroke landed his ball one foot from the cup on the nineteenth green. William Middleton, handicap 19, was twenty yards from the nineteenth cup, while L. B. Underwood, 16 handicap, finished in the eighteenth cup for third prize. Dr. F. X. McGovern, 20 handicap, was fourth with his ball four feet from the pin on the eighteenth green.

Owing to the fact that a women's team match between Washington and Richmond has been arranged for the 17th instant, the miniature tournament scheduled for that date on the course of the Indian Spring Club under the auspices of the Women's District Golf Association has been postponed until Friday, the 20th instant.

MASONIC PIN LEAGUE IS READY

38 Teams Compete; Annual Tourney in January.

WITH 38 teams assured and prospects of several others obtaining franchises, the Masonic Duckpin Association will open its annual campaign September 12. Several important changes have been made in the schedule this season and the largest duckpin league in the world has prospects of its greatest season this year.

At a recent meeting of the league officials and representatives of numerous teams, it was decided to stage the annual Masonic tournament in midseason, probably in January, instead of at the fag end of the campaign in May. The tourney, for which $400 in prize money is set aside each year, will be conducted this year on the two regular schedule nights, Tuesday and Thursday. Greater interest and keener competition are expected to result.

Double-Headers Four Weeks Apart.

Earlier disposal of double-headers, which have been staged in past years every six weeks, has also been arranged. The twin engagements will be scheduled four weeks apart this year, making it possible to dispose of them all before the closing months of the season. In past years interest has been permitted to drag in the closing weeks of the race and the new plan is expected to reduce this indifference to a minimum.

September 9 has been set as the date for closing team entries. Until that date, Arville L. Ebelsole, secretary, will accept applications for franchises. No teams will be admitted after that date, it was announced.

All championship matches will be rolled at the Convention Hall alleys.

Hancock Sets Record At New Boonsboro

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 2.—Roland Hancock, golf professional at Oakwood Country Club, and new State champion, yesterday established a new course record on the new course at the Boonsboro Country Club when he made a score of 67, five under par. He had a par or a birdie on every hole, with one exception.

Printer and Hospital Nines Meet Today in Series Game

| | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Naval Hospital | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Pullman | 3 | 1 | .750 |
| Union Printers | 0 | 1 | .000 |

THE Union Printer and Naval Hospital Nines clash today as the week-end leagues championship baseball series is resumed on the Terminal Y diamond at Union Station at 4:15 o'clock.

A record crowd is expected to witness the remainder of the series games this week. The Printers must win today to survive, as they have one loss to their credit to date, having bowed to the Pullman A. C. two weeks ago. The winner of today's game will meet the Pullman Nine tomorrow. Should Naval Hospital win today, tomorrow's contest may be the last of the series. Naval Hospital is undefeated to date, while both of the surviving teams have each dropped a single decision.

Bob Roberts, versatile all-round star of the Naval Team, and Cy Simons, equally as versatile a performer with the Typos, are expected to match their pitching skill today.

Seven successive victories in their successful defense of their Typographical championship last week have left the Printers bold. Although they tied the Naval Hospital in the first game of the week-day series two weeks ago, and proved easy victims for the Pullmans the following day, the Printers have not shown their real form in the local title race.

The team which played in the first two week-day series contests was not the same that battled to the last ditch to bag the Government League title and just recently battered down all pposition to gain a sixth leg on the famous Garry Herrmann trophy emplematic of the International Union printer baseball championship.

Undefeated, although tied in two engagements, the Hospital crew, which represents the Departmental League, is conceded the advantage in the championship race at this stage. The outcome of today's battle will determine whether the field will be narrowed to the Naval and Pullman Teams, or whether the three clubs will continue to battle for the title.

Naval Hospital can clinch the title by winning today and tomorrow. Should that team lose today, the final engagement will be delayed until Thursday.

Tennis Favorites Win In Girls' Jr. Tourney

Philadelphia, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The eight seeded players advanced with ease in the opening rounds of the girls' junior national lawn tennis championship tournament which got under way today on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

The match between Olive Wade, of Toronto, Canada, and Katherine Wiener, Philadelphia, furnished the fireworks of the opening day's play. Miss Wade, who is the champion of Canada, won the battle 5—7, 6—2, 6—2, in the only three-set match played.

Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, the 16-year-old defender of the national junior crown, lost only two games in defeating Betty Taussig, of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Mianne Palfrey, sister of Sarah, who shares the girls' national doubles crown, won 6—3, 6—2, from Allison Harrison, of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, in a second round encounter. California furnished four seeded players and they all won their matches. Three of the four drew byes in the first round and won their first matches in the second round.

31 Gridmen Inaugurate Davis-Elkins Training

Elkins, W. Va., Sept. 2.—Thirty-one Davis and Elkins College grid candidates reported to Coach Cam Henderson for the initial workout at Davis Field here today.

Granville Mitchell, big end from last year's championship eleven, was excused from practice on account of a slight attack of tonsilitis. Every other veteran was in togs. The session was staged with fundamentals being stressed. Director Jennings Randolph said tonight that the squad will be completed to tomorrow.

19 Virginia Gridmen Out for Initial Drill

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 2.—Gridiron practice got under way at Virginia this afternoon when nineteen candidates reported to the new coach, Earl Abel, who succeeds "Greasy" Neale. A half dozen other men reached here on late afternoon trains too late to don uniforms.

After a brief talk, the former Colgate coach turned over the candidates to Archie Hahn, former Princeton trainer, who put the players through two hours of light practice. Roy Randall, ex-Brown star and assistant back field coach, will join the coaching staff tomorrow morning and afternoon practices will be held until the opening of college.

30 GRIDMEN REPORT AT MARYLAND

Ten of 1928 Varsity Squad on Hand at Initial Drill.

THIRTY of the 49 University of Maryland football players to whom letters were sent some time ago inviting them to take up the game this fall, reported yesterday at College Park and had a light drill in tossing the ball around.

Ten of those to report were on the varsity squad last year, one is taking up football after a lapse of a season, and the others came from the 1928 freshman aggregation. However, it developed that one of the husky yearlings of last season had "flunked" and he will have to go back home.

John McDonald and Bill Heintlinemen, and Bill Evans, Julie Radice and Augie Roberts, backs, were the only five of the remaining nine letter men to get in togs. Fred Ribitzki, Harry Butz and Bill Fisher, linemen and Nick Warcholy, back, were other 1928 varsity squad members on hand.

19 of 31 Fresh of Last Season Show Up.

Letters were sent out to 31 members of last season's Freshmen squad and 19 of them, including all but two of the numeral winners, reported as follows: Jack Norris, Pat Rooney and Louis Berger, ends; Parker Faber, center; Robert Wilson, Raymond Koelle, Courtney Hayden, Ernest Carlis, Jess Krajcovio, Herbert Davis, Thurl Tower and George Norris, linemen, and Joe Settino, Al Pease, Charlie Miller, Charlie May, Paul Cronin, Ralph Sterling and James Loughran, backs.

There is a noticeable lack of weight in the squad, there being only six among those to report to go beyond 180 pounds and this, despite the fact that there were thirteen in the crowd who were 6 feet or more in height.

Some of the boys lost poundage in working during the summer, which they may get back. Two notable cases are Settino and Pease, who tipped the scales yesterday at 149 and 163, respectively, both being about 12 pounds under their 1928 playing weight.

Augie Roberts, fleet triple-threat back, still is the lightweight of the squad. His best playing weight is 143 and yesterday he scaled only 139.

Island Blossom Wins Feature in Regatta

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., Sept 2.—In the Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoe race, feature of the first annual regatta of the Chester River Yacht Club here today, the Island Blossom of the local club, owned by Stanley Evans, of Elkton, Md., capsized midway of the course. The race was won by the Magic, owned and captained by Bob Wilson, of St. Michaels, Md. The fast speedboat of John J. Raskob, jr., ran second in the handicap race in which W. H. Truslow's boat ran first.

Following are the results of the day's events:

GRID HOPES BRIGHT AT FORDHAM

Prospects Never Better—24 Veterans Available.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Twenty-four veterans and nine of last year's strong freshman eleven have been summoned to take part in the initial fall workout of the Fordham University football squad, which is to be held on Fordham Field Wednesday morning at 9 o clock. The candidates will report Tuesday morning for the distribution of uniforms and short lectures by Maj. Cavanaugh, head coach, and his assistants, Hiker Joy and Joe Kozlowski.

Not since Frank Gargan's Maroon eleven led the nation's high scoring list back in '25 have Fordham gridiron prospects been so bright as they are at this time. In this, his third year as coach of the Fordham Eleven, the major will have a large, strong and tried squad, which has grown up under his tutilage, to work with.

The mainstays of the major's team will be men who entered as freshmen in his first year at Fordham, the men who played on the Maroon's record-breaking fresh eleven three years ago and who now enter their third year under him. Playing their first year of varsity football last fall, they showed a capability for standing the gaff, and, with the seasoning they received during that campaign behind them, should be able to carry through this year's nine-game schedule with colors flying.

Quarter Back Dallaire Is Ineligible.

Scholastic difficulties will prevent Larry Dallaire from continuing at Fordham University, and robs the team of its quarter back. Dallaire has been titled the leading forward passer in this section, and was the prime factor in Fordham's strong serial game. His loss raises the list of absentees to four, Bejoin, Politis and Capt. Smith having been lost through graduation last June.

In the absence of Dallaire, Cavanaugh will depend upon John O'Shea, Frank Bartos and John Fisher to handle the quarter back post. Of this trio, the last mentioned alone played with the varsity last season. O'Shea devoted all of his time to track, while Fisher was the first-string quarter on the freshman eleven.

For the remaining back field assignments Cavanaugh has six leading veterans on hand again. Stanley Shableski, who played a brilliant game at half back toward the end of the last season, is expected to shine in the coming series. Stan plays a fine open game, and is adept at lending interference. The other veterans are Al Zaleski, Bill McMahon and Jack Leborne. For full, the major still has his dependable "Peck" Pieculewicz, who can always be counted on for a necessary few yards.

In addition to these backs, there is a particularly flashy trio of ball carriers graduating into the varsity class from the last freshman group. John Janis and John Conway, half backs, seriously threaten to garner either or both of the main ball carrying assignments, while Jim Murphy will join as a worthy rival to "Peck" and Aube for the "ramming" position.

Chicago Breaks Even With Tigers, 8-10, 8-2

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—The White Sox and Tigers split a double-header here today, Detroit winning the opener, 10-8, and Chicago taking the nightcap behind good pitching by Ted Lyons, 8-2.

Bucky Harris paraded four pitchers on the mound in the first game. Owen Carroll started and Prudhomme, Yde and Kyle Graham followed. Kramer started for the Sox and was relieved by McKain. Detroit came from behind to win.

No Family Need Be Without A Good Automobile!

Prices on used automobiles are now so low, and terms of payment so easy, that there is no logical reason for any family being without the pleasure and practical advantages that only an automobile can offer. And used cars today are GOOD cars! Mechanically they represent thousands of miles of unused transportation. Many of them are of most modern design and perfect in finish and all represent a very worth-while saving for those who do not wish to pay a premium for the thrill of first possession . . . ## ALEXANDRIA POLICE HOLD 321 IN MONTH

Liquor Arrests Lead Others Made During August, Report Reveals.

LARCENIES ARE SOLVED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Three hundred and twenty-one arrests were made by local police during August, as shown on the monthly report of the Alexandria Police Department's activities, which was made to City Manager Wallace Lawrence yesterday by Police Capt. W. W. Campbell. Arrests for intoxication led all other charges by a wide margin, 89 persons being taken into custody for that offense.

All five of the grand larceny cases reported during the month were solved, as well as four of the ten petit larceny cases. In addition, the police recovered all three automobiles stolen here and also recaptured three machines for other cities.

Thirty-seven automobile accidents occurred in August, in which 10 peopeople were injured, while 28 of the cases were settled out of court. Four accidents were reported immediately beyond the city limits, one person being injured.

The Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Electric Railway Co. is to begin the removal of its rails and ties on seven blocks of King street today in preparation for replacing the present tracks with new ones before the city resurfaces that section of King street.

After the railroad has completed its task the city will remove the present vitrified brick surface of King street from Royal to Patrick streets and Henry to Fayette streets, all of which is in a bad condition, and resurface with bituminous macadam. The city council has appropriated $15,000 as the city's share in the cost of the work.

Dr. James J. Garvey, city veterinarian and superintendent of sanitation, has been appointed veterinarian for the horse show at the Fairfax County Fair, which will be staged at Fairfax September 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Motorcycle Policeman Edgar Mayhugh resigned from the police force Saturday night shortly after receiving notice from Police Capt. W. W. Campbell, of his demotion to patrolman.

Mayhugh had been a member of the police department for more than four years, three of which he served as a motorcycle policeman. He is succeeded on the traffic squad by Patrolman Fred Kaus.

Alexandria's public schools will reopen on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, when pupils will register and receive their assignments. Regular classwork will begin on Friday morning.

Supt. R. C. Bowton, who has recently returned from taking a summer course in graduate work at the University of Illinois, will hold a conference with the teachers of the white schools Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the high school auditorium, and will meet with the colored teachers at 2 o'clock that afternoon at Parker-Gray School.

An informal reception is to be held by the Parent-Teacher Association for the faculties of the white schools Friday night at 8 o'clock in Lee Camp Hall. A committee composed of Mrs. E. E. Carver, chairman; Mrs. Llewellyn Dyson, Mrs. J. Owen Lynch, Mrs. Edward Dunn, W. C. Kidd and Mrs. Hugo Herfurth, jr., is in charge.

Petersburg police arrived here yesterday and took into custody Richard S. Colbert, 31, of 1400 Duke street, who was arrested Sunday by Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims on a warrant charging him with the theft of $69.01 from Floyd Baxter, of Petersburg, Va.

One of the largest dockets in recent months will be called in Police Court this morning with more than 50 cases, growing out of arrests made since Saturday, set for hearing. No session of the court was held yesterday, a recess being declared because of the holiday.

Members of the Beth El Hebrew Congregation of this city have begun to solicit contributions to aid the stricken Jews in Palestine. An executive committee composed of Benjamin Weil, Leopold Ruben and Raymond Blumenfeld is in charge of the drive.

Virginia Barbers Back License Law

Formal Action to Be Asked of Convention Meeting in Danville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 2.—Warm indorsement of the proposed State licensing system for Virginia barbers was heard at the opening sessions today of the Virginia Master Barbers Association with an attendance of 100 delegates. Action on the proposed license law is to be taken tomorrow and if it is indorsed the Legislature will be asked to enact it next January.

J. J. Loyd, of Norfolk, secretary of the State Journeymen Barbers Association, told the assemblage today that the Virginia public does not recognized the danger resulting from the migration into the State of barbers who have been unable to pass medical examinations in other States and who can operate in this State while infected with disease. The ratio of danger, he stated, has been enormously increased through patronage of barber shops by girls and women. This is to be the chief point of argument with the Legislature, he said. He denied that the proposed law would discriminate against Negro barbers in Virginia quoting Negroes from other States where the State license system has been found to be satisfactory.

An affirmative vote on the State license law was predicted tonight. Richmond and Norfolk are trying to secure the 1930 convention.

Charles Town Firemen Injured by Apparatus

Joseph Hoff, 36 years old, visiting fireman from Charles Town, W. Va., was injured yesterday morning when the fire apparatus brought over from Charles Town ran over his foot, fracturing his ankle.

H. L. Leonard, chief of the Prince Georges Rescue Squad No. 1, took the injured fireman to Casualty Hospital, where he had his leg placed in splints. He was later taken home. The accident occurred at No. 1 Engine House of the District Fire Department, New Jersey avenue and E street.

C. W. Woodward Given Rockville Judgeship

Gov. Ritchie Expected Today to Announce Successor to Late S. S. Riggs as Head of Montgomery Police Court.

Charles W. Woodward, Rockville lawyer, will be appointed to succeed the late Judge Samuel S. Riggs as judge of the Montgomery County Police Court, at Rockville, it was learned last night from authoritative sources. His appointment is expected to be announced today by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Woodward is a member of the law firm of Cissel & Woodward, counsel to the Montgomery County Commissioners, and his appointment, it is believed, will meet popular approval.

Woodward and his partner have been in charge of the legal side of the preparations for the construction of a new courthouse and jail at Rockville. He has been supervising the preparation of the papers for condemnation proceedings against several properties in the block west of the present courthouse which are wanted for the new site.

The name of Mayor J. Roger Spates of Rockville had been mentioned for the judgeship, and he had the backing of a number of prominent Democrats, but it is understood that Mayor Spates did not wish the appointment.

The appointment of Woodward will be a victory for a large faction in the county which has held, since the court was established, that a lawyer should be police judge. Judge Riggs was not a lawyer.

Judge Riggs died suddenly last Friday, and speculation had been rife for several days as to his successor. Among the names brought forward were those of Harry S. Beall, formerly principal of the Rockville High School; W. Ernest Offutt, Rockville real estate man, and Robert L. Tolson. The position pays a salary of $3,000 a year, with an additional substantial expense allowance.

PETERSBURG HOST TO LEGION GROUPS

Three Organizations Meet in Annual Convention; Joint Session.

CHAIRMEN ARE NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 2.—The eleventh annual convention of the American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary and LaGrande Voiture Le Department of Virginia convened here today with about 500 legionnaires and some 300 or more members of the auxiliary in attendance and a large number of the La Grande Voiture. The opening session of all three organizations was held jointly in the Junior Bolling High School and was called to order by the State commander, Nelson Overton, of Newport News. Next followed singing of "America" and the invocation by the State chaplain, Rev. Father James H. McConnell, of Richmond.

Addresses of welcome were made by Dr. E. J. Nixon, Petersburg post commander; Richard T. Wilson, mayor of Petersburg, and P. H. Drewry, representative from the Fourth District. At the conclusion of the joint session acting chairmen of standing committees of the department of Virginia were announced. B. M. Roszell, of Winchester, heads the committee on resolutions; J. J. Kiviligan, of Staunton, survey and census; Dr. E. J. Nixon, of this city, child welfare; F. Clinton Knight, of Alexandria, future activities; Ernest Acton, jr., of Portsmouth, Americanism; Ronald D. Cock, of Hampton, constitution and by-laws; Robert C. Thompson, of Abingdon, rules and permanent organization; L. B. St. Clair, of Roanoke, next convention; E. Wills Woodward, of Richmond, rehabilitation and welfare of disabled veterans; M. E. Bristow, of Cape Charles, finance, and Hugh T. Williams, of Danville, credentials.

Reports Nurses' Post.

Adjutant W. Glenn Elliott, of Richmond, in his report, showed that the Norfolk Nurses' Post No. 1 has secured for membership every available, eligible person in its jurisdiction.

The post, which has a membership of 26, 10 more than last year, is probably the only exclusive nurses' post in the United States.

A resolution, to be introduced at the convention prior to adjournment Wednesday, seeks introduction by Virginia delegates at the national convention, in Louisville, late this month of a resolution pledging legion aid in erecting a memorial in the proposed Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania County battlefield park. The resolution advocates that the memorial be dedicated to Richard Kirkland, member of Company E, Second South Carolina Volunteers, who in the Civil War crawled from behind the stonewall at Fredericksburg and gave water to a wounded Union soldier.

Another resolution, to be presented by the Fredericksburg post, asks that the National Government pay in whole or in part on demand all adjusted compensation certificates, provided the owner does not receive compensation from the U. S. Veterans' Bureau in excess of $50 per month.

U. S. Surplus Cited.

The resolution states the United States Treasury has a surplus of $185,000,000, having collected that amount more than was anticipated in tax payments, and its expenditure is not provided for in the budget.

Among the national officers attending the convention today was Lenuel Bolles, past national adjutant, of Long Island. The legion auxiliary held its session today in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The principal business to come before the auxiliary tomorrow will be the election of officers and delegates to the national convention.

New High School Opens At Shepherdstown Soon

Special to The Washington Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Sept. 2.—The new high school will open here September 9, the board announced today, and the following faculty will serve:

Principal, Keener Eutzler; assistant principal, Miss Gladys Hartzell; language and history, Miss Jeannette Hoffmaster; manual training, W. K. Whitesell, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Christine Schleuss, Martinsburg and Cletus Lowe, Shepherdstown, coach of athletics. The new building will be ready for use at the opening, which is to be preceded by a formal opening and inspection by the public September 7.

WARREN M'CONKEY WINS JOUSTING CUP

CROWD CHEERS VICTORY

Warren McConkey, 12 years old, won the Harrison Cup trophy at the eighth annual Suitland Citizen Association jousting tournament yesterday at the Community Hall. Riding against seasoned riders of many years' experience, the boy won the coveted cup amid the frenzied cheers of nearly 2,000 onlookers.

The tournament was divided into two sections, the first being for the prize of $100 offered by the Citizens Association and the second for the cup, the three-time winner of which obtains permanent possession.

J. E. McConkey, riding as the Knight of St. Ignatius, was winner of the Citizens Association tournament. To him was given the honor of naming the queen of beauty and love who presided at the grand ball last night in the Community Hall. He named Miss Isabel Phelps. The three runners-up, who named the maids in waiting to the queen, were J. J. McConkey, J. F. Love and young McConkey.

The maids in waiting named by these three, respectively, were Mrs. J. F. McConkey, Mrs. J. F. Love and Miss Clara McConkey.

The committee in charge included George F. von Ostermann, Wilton M. West, Harry West, James B. Bland, L. J. Harrison and Elmer Pumphrey.

Former State's Attorney Alan Bowie addressed the knights and Frank Small, jr., was marshal. The proceeds of the tournament and dance will be used to reduce the debt of $1,200 remaining on the $12,000 Community Building.

Supper was served by the Greater Capitol Heights Volunteer Fire Department. The Rev. Francis Buckley, pastor of the St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, made the coronation address.

H. L. Boatwright Heads Democrats in Danville

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 2.—H. Lee Boatwright, prominent Danville tobacco dealer, has been elected chairman of the city Democratic executive committee, and has accepted the post. E. J. Wyatt was elected vice chairman.

Plans have tbeen drawn for an intensive campaign here.

Lynchburg Hit-and-Run Case Before Grand Jury

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 2.—The grand jury in the Corporation Court today, after returning six indictments, was adjourned until tomorrow morning to consider then the hit-and-run charge against Emmett Casey, in connection with the death of Mrs. E. W. Crowder here the night of August 19, when she was struck, allegedly by Casey's automobile.

The charge against J. B. McElveen of owning a 400-gallon still, also went over until tomorrow.

Harry F. Sinclair Gets Auto Rides

Oil Magnate, as Chemist in District Jail, Goes Out With Doctor.

Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil man now serving a term at the District Jail for contempt of the Senate and conspiracy to obstruct justice, takes automobile trips three or more times a week with Dr. Morris Hyman, prison physician, to treat trusted prisoners at Occoquan, the District workhouse, it was learned yesterday from William Peak, jail superintendent.

The appointment of Sinclair as Dr. Hyman's asstant was made upon the recommendation of the prison physician himself, Peak said. Sinclair was made jail chemist shortly after his incarceration. The automobile is taken on business missions only, according to Peak. The visits to the Riverside clinic are usually made in the afternoon and are brief.

The statement of Peak was given in response to reports in Southeast Washington, where the jail is located, that Sinclair was taking pleasure jaunts.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS REPORTED

Girl Critically Burned In Gasoline Explosion

Special to The Washington Post.

Stuart, Va., Sept. 2.—Miss Lillian Branscome, age 19, daughter of Norman Branscome, lies in a critical condition here at a hospital after being burned in a gasoline explosion. Her father, credited with saving her life, was badly injured.

The girl was cleaning clothes with gasoline from a 2-gallon jar on the table. A kerosene lamp was being used. Miss Branscome suddenly saw a blue flame over the chimney lamp and tried to blow it out. The flames reached the gasoline and in the ensuing explosion windows were blown out and plaster brought from the walls. Norman Branscome found his daughter on the floor, her clothing ablaze. He managed to smother the flames, but not before she had been severely injured.

Virginia Fancier Raises New Apple

Freak Variety of Winesap Viewed by Experts at Covington.

Covington, Va., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—A new variety of apple was to be presented to the public today at a celebration arranged here by the Covington Chamber of Commerce.

The festivities are in honor of the development of a freak variety of Stayman Winesap, which is said after tests over a period of years to be without many of the defects of other Staymans and to be an improvement in many ways.

The "sport" tree was discovered in the orchard of B. C. Moomaw here and was purchased by one of the largest orchardists in the United States, who directed the experiments with the apple. The tree was purchased originally from a Richmond nurseryman and was supposed to be one of the well-known varieties.

Among the persons asked to attend the celebration today are Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, his brother, Tom Byrd, President of the Virginia Horticulture Society; Prof. E. C. Aucter, horticulturist in charge, United States Department of Agriculture; Prof. H. L. Lane, State horticulturist of West Virginia; F. A. Motx, Virginia Polytechnic Institute horticulturist, and W. S. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia Horticulture society.

Dr. Virginius W. Gayle Interred at Hancock

Special to The Washington Post.

Hancock, Md., Sept. 2.—The body of Dr. Virginius W. Gayle, who 50 years ago practiced medicine and conducted a drug store in Hancock, was brought here yesterday and interred in St. Thomas Episcopal Church Cemetery, following a service at the church. Dr. Gayle, who was 76, and lived at Portsmouth, Va., died at the Virginia Baptist Hospital, Lynchburg.

Dr. Gayle went to Kansas City upon leaving Hancock, some years ago, where he practiced his profession for a number of years. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Ella Henderson a daughter of the late Charles W. Henderson, pioneer merchant and cement manufacturer of Hancock.

CUMBERLAND HOLDS HUGE LABOR PARADE

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 2.—Cumberland revived its Labor Day parade today after it had been abandoned several years. The procession moved in five divisions with Irvin C. Hamilton, president of the Allegany Trades Council and president of the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, as marshal. Mr. Hamilton is a member of the Maryland House of Delegates. Motorcycle police headed the line. The Municipal Band was followed by the mayor and city council in automobiles and picked platoons of policemen and firemen. Members of the Bakers Union also marched with the first division.

The second division, in charge of Robert B. Kimble, was headed by the drum corps of Henry Hart Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The Carpenters and Joiners Union, the International Typographical Union and the ladies auxiliary of the latter marched in this division.

B. & O. Band Heads Division.

The Baltimore & Ohio Shops Band headed the third division, in charge of William C. Jones. Members of the Federated Shop Crafts, plumbers and steam fitters and electrical workers composed this division.

James Brehany was marshal of the Fourth Division, which was headed by the drum corps of Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion. Glassworkers marched in this division.

The Fifth Division was composed of an industrial display which included automobiles and floats, there being more than 30 floats in line. On one of the floats there was built a miniature bungalow by several carpenters as the parade moved. Eight carpenters and one painter were employed.

Andrew Mullan, Joseph Martin and Luther Appel aided the marshals in the parade.

Henry Hart Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, won the prize for having the largest percentage in line; the American Flint Glass Workers Union had one unit of girls dressed in white and carrying glass canes. The best float was that of the South End Rod and Gun Club, which won first prize; South Cumberland Planing Mill won the second prize, a silver loving cup.

Catholics Hold Big Picnic.

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Daughters of America joined in a mammoth picnic at the Cumberland Fair Grounds. There were field-day events, a horseshoe tournament, vaudeville program and dancing.

Annual Methodist Day was observed by the three branches of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Union Grove, near this city. The speakers were the Rev. Dr. H. M. Canter, district superintendent of the Winchester district, Methodist Episcopal Church South; the Rev. R. Y. Nicholson, pastor of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church, Washington, and the Rev. Don S. Colt, pastor of Govans Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore. Several thousand participated in the event. Those who took part in the musical program were took part in the musical program were Misses Geraldine Gaston, Virginia Schultz, Una Carleton, S. Elizabeth Jones and Ruth Dicken and William E. Bishop. There were games, sports and contests under the direction of C. J. Walker.

The Walther League of Trinity Lutheran Church held an outing on the Rice farm, along Town Creek, beyond Flintstone. Eugene Brand, Harold Dreyer and Floyd Fletcher composed the committee in charge. A vesper service was conducted at the camp site by the Rev. D. H. Steffens.

Baby's Body Exhumed And Father Arrested

Special to The Washington Post.

Stuart, Va., Sept. 2.—At the request of the authorities of North Carolina, Sheriff Frank Mays and County Coroner J. T. Shelbourne exhumed the remains of the 17-month-old son of Pete Stone, a tenant farmer, concerning whose death suspicions had arisen.

While Stone lives in Stokes County, N. C., the burial of the infant took place at Pleasant Grove Primitive Baptist Church. The coroner, after making an examination, held that the child had died from a blow which had crushed the skull. Stone has been arrested, but claims that the child fell on to a rock causing the hurt. No doctor was called, it is alleged and the remains were interred in a box on the following day.

Four Women Hurt In Auto Accident

Baltimore Motorists Are Treated at Hospital in Frederick.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Mary S. Wernig, 43; her daughter, Miss Rosalie Wernig, 12; Miss Virginia Chaney, 17, and Miss Eunice Bowers, 18, Baltimore, were taken to the City Hospital last night following an accident on the Baltimore pike, when an automobile in which they were riding was forced off the road by a car going in the opposite direction. The Baltimore party was coming toward this city.

The car going in the opposite direction attempted to pass the Baltimore car when the road ahead was not clear. The driver, in order to avoid a collision, drew to one side, off the concrete. The car upset, throwing the occupants free of the machine.

Mrs. Wernig sustained lacerations about the legs and body and a slight contusion of the brain. Miss Wernig suffered a fracture of the left leg and was shortly afterward removed to a hospital in Baltimore. Miss Chaney had lacerations about the arm and face and Miss Bowers sustained a fractured collarbone and was bruised about the body. The driver escaped with minor injuries. The car was badly damaged.

West Virginia Fireman Dies of Crash Injuries

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 2.—Injuries received when his fire truck overturned in a highway recently caused the death today of William B. Hadveck, 25, a volunteer fireman of Western.

The accident occurred when the truck was rounding a curve on an out-of-town call. He leaves a widow and a small child.

Famous Actress, Now 84, Will Declaim Over Radio

Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, for 65 Years Footlight Favorite, Is to Share in Presentation of Biblical Drama at Roanoke, Va., Thursday.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, for 65 years a favorite across the footlights, will appear here Thursday in the radio presentation of "Jeremiah," a dramatization of lamentations.

Emerging from retirement at her country home near Villamont, "The Grand Old Lady of the Stage" will take the part of Jeremiah's mother who pleads that her son not prophesy against Israel and curses him when she finds he will remain true to his calling.

The famous actress appeared first in London when 17 years old and came to the United States in 1858 with her husband, mother and sister. The quartet formed the Galton Opera Company, which performed Offenbach's little operas.

As "Buttercup" in Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pinafore," she rose high in popular favor and continued as one of the best drawing cards for producers until her retirement a short time ago. She is now 84 and has the distinction of having enacted some 500 roles.

A. Winfield Hoeny, distinguished interpreter of biblical drama, will impersonate Jeremiah in the radio play. Besides having a reputation as actor and reader, he has served as a Presbyterian minister and is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary.

The radio presentation, starring Mrs. Whiffen and Mr. Hoeny, introduces the first phases of a project which includes the establishment here of the Roanoke School of Drama and the erection of the A. Winfield Hoeny Amphitheater for the production of biblical drama.

"Jeremiah," written by Stefen Zweig, will be presented in eight episodes over Station WDBJ in a period of as many weeks. The initial broadcast will start at 8:30 p. m. Thursday. Mrs. Harry Semones is director.

FAIR AT CULPEPER LURES BIG CROWD

LEGION DISPENSES FOOD

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper Va., Sept. 2.—The largest crowd ever to attend the opening day of the Culpeper Fair was present today when the fair's gates were swung open under ideal conditions.

Tintype men and midway dancers, a parachute jumper and race horses, lowing cattle, crowing roosters furtive bookmakers and blatant barkers, crying babies and happy couples all were there. And over all a pall of red dust that created an unquenchable thirst that meant a thriving business for the soft drink stands.

Mrs. R. C. Ayler, of Brightwood, Va., had on exhibition 200 entries, all produced by herself and ranging from vegetables and flowers to baby chickens.

Culpeper Post of the American Legion had the food and soft drink concessions.

As usual, the races proved the principal drawing card, although there were rather small fields in all classes. All were walkaways for the winners except the steeple chase, in which Windover came from behind and took the lead from Burton II, ridden by his owner, Irvin Beavers. Five horses started in this race and only two got in the money. Francis Yancey rode his Rainbow in third after being unloaded by a broken girth, but was disqualified for losing part of his weight in the spill.

The Knight of Greanna and Ben Losca, the other two starters, lightened ship at the same jump and at first glance had apparently trampled their riders but both men came up from the ground in time to see their mounts heading for the barns.

Summaries:

First race, county race, half mile; horse must be owned in Culpeper, Rappahannock or Madison Counties three months before race—First, Lady Leapress, H. R. Quaintance; second, Paul Pry, P. W. Bennett; third, Benzo, H. R. Quaintance.

Second race, 6 furlongs, free for all—First, Zeebegie, F. W. Bennett; second, Rose Jester, Furr Bros.; third, Warrenton, Everhart Bros.

Third race, half mile, free for all—First, Lady Leapress, H. R. Quaintance; second, Rock Spa, Everhart Bros.; third, Mr. George, Everhart Bros.

Fourth race, steeplechase, about 2¼ miles—First, Windover, Irvin Beavers; second, Burton II, Irvin Beavers; third, Rainbow, Francis Yancey, disqualified.

Fifth race, mule race—First, Jack, Irvin Beavers; second, Jacky, Smith Bros.; third, Pat, Oliver Fant.

Special to The Washington Post.

Strasburg, Va., Sept. 2.—A. M. Jenkins, 79, retired Strasburg miller, died at his home here early this morning following a protracted illness from inflammatory rheumatism and complications. Mr. Jenkins was widely known throughout the valley. Early in life he united with the Lutheran Church and was constantly active in its work. He was a member of Spurmont Lodge A. F. and A. M. for many years. In addition to his widow he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. R. T. Harris, Exmore; Miss Frances Rebeccah Jenkins, Strasburg; two sisters, Mrs. C. E. Brown, Round Hill; Mrs. T. M. Derflinger, Bluemont; and by two brothers, W. T. Jenkins, Accotink, and W. E. Jenkins, Pocahontas, Va.

Funeral services will be conducted from St. Paul's Lutheran Church Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Crowd Attracted To Danville Show

72 Events for Horses on Bill Today, Second of Annual Affair.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 2.—Between 1,500 and 2,000 people attended the Danville Horse Show this afternoon, the affair being a pronounced success. It will be continued tomorrow when a number of saddle and jumping classes will be seen at the fair grounds.

George T. Lytle, of Camden, S. C.; A. G. Rolfe, of Richmond, and R. H. Johnson, of Charlotte, N. C., had strings of horses entered, which carried off most of the blue ribbons.

Only half of the 144 events took place today. Charles J. Buchanan, of Elizabethtown, Ky., and Claude L. Pemberton, of Indianapolis, were the judges.

Infantile Paralysis Case Reported in Lynchburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 2.—The first case of infantile paralysis this year has been reported to the board of health, the patient being Walter Evans, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Evans, 2812 Rivermont avenue. He was given blood serum and is reported to be doing well.

Health authorities said it is normal to have at least several cases here each summer, but thus far the city has been free from the malady.

BUSINESS REVIVES IN RICHMOND AREA

GOOD CROPS FORESEEN

Richmond, Va., Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Business conditions in the Fifth Federal Reserve District appeared to be better than at the same time last year, according to the monthly review of business and agricultural conditions in the district, released here today by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent.

"Following season trends, business in the Fifth Reserve District in July was less in volume than in June, but exceeded that of July last year in nearly all lines," it was stated in the review.

"The demand for credit at the commercial banks and at the reserve bank is about the same as at this time last year," according to the review. "Prospects for agriculture seem to be better this year than in 1928, with larger yields of nearly all money crops forecast for the several States in the district and prices in most cases that compare favorably with those of 1928.

"The industries of the fifth district are operating on more extensive schedules than a year ago, textile mills especially showing improvement in spite of slow movement of textiles to jobbers and retailers. Construction work in the district is about the same volume as a year ago, and labor is better employed than last summer.

"Business failures were fewer in July than in any month save one back to the middle of 1926, and liabilities, while higher than in July, 1928, were not unduly large. Debits in the banks of leading cities were more than $100,000,000 larger during the five weeks ended August 14, this year, than in the corresponding period last year.

"Retail trade in July, as reflected in department store sales, was 1.5 per cent greater than in July last year, and the business was done this year with slightly smaller stocks. Wholesale trade in four of five lines for which data are available was ahead of trade in July, 1928, the best record made in wholesale lines for many months.

"On the whole, it would appear from present indications that the purchasing power of the district should be larger in the coming fall and winter than it was a year ago, which should have a favorable influence on fall trade in all lines."

Pythias Knights Hold Tenth Annual Picnic

Special to The Washington Post.

Oakland, Md., Sept. 2.—The tenth annual Knights of Pythias picnic was held at Helbig's Grove today with several thousand in attendance. A parade took place this morning in which were numerous organizations and a number of floats. The Crellin and Gilbert-Brown Bands gave concerts.

At the formal exercises the address of welcome was delivered by former States Attorney William R. Offutt. The Labor Day address was delivered by former Gov. John J. Cornwall, of West Virginia. Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman, of the sixth Maryland District, also gave an address. The grand lodge officers, George W. Stephens, Baltimore, grand chancellor, and A. Ellwood Martak, Baltimore, grand keeper of records and seals, were introduced by Julius C. Renninger.

Danville Motion Picture Strike Reaches Crisis

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 1.—Differences existing for a week between union motion picture machine operators here and Danville Theaters, Inc., which operates all of Danville's playhouses, reached a crisis today. The union projectionists declined to man the boothe and nonunion men brought here by telegram undertook to operate them. Spokesmen for the union said that no wage controversy was involved, but that Manager Leo Garner would not renew a year's contract with the members unless they consented to a cut in the working personnel at one of the theaters.

It was reported tonight that a representative from union headquarters would come here to mediate the differences. Eight union men are involved.

West Virginia County Agent Quits.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 2 (Special).—Joseph W. Eckhardt, county agricultural agent here for the last five years, announced today he had tendered his resignation, effective September 10. He indicated he would go into another line of work. No successor has been named by the extension division.

Martinsburg Red Men Celebrate.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 2 (Special).—Red Men held the center of the stage in the celebration of Labor Day here today, presenting a demonstration of early times in costumes at a suburban park, in charge of Willis F. Evans.

ARLINGTON TRAFFIC HEAVY ON HOLIDAY

Firemen, Back From Capital, Attend Second Festival at Herndon.

ROAD WORK IS PRESSED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon, Va. Tel. Clarendon 309.

Labor Day was not celebrated in Arlington County, but everything was at a standstill. Offices at the county courthouse and postoffices were closed, as well as most of the stores. Automobile traffic was heavy throughout the county.

The fire departments, returning early in the afternoon from the parade in Washington, left for Herndon, where they took part in the Labor Day celebration.

Up to a late hour last night there had been no arrest and no serious traffic accident reported by the police.

Despite that yesterday was a legal holiday, employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. worked all day moving poles and excavating for laying of the conduit along the Wilson boulevard in an effort to rush the work to completion.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association Thursday night at the Ballston Firemen's Hall.

St. Agnes' Episcopal School for Girls at Braddock will reopen Monday, September 23. Miss Margaret Chapman again will be the principal. Registration of pupils will be held by Miss Chapman on Wednesday, September 18.

The Arlington County Republican Club will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the Rucker Building.

The Daughters of Isabella of St. Charles Catholic Church at Clarendon will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Ida Frank, at Mulhall.

There will be a meeting of delegates from fire departments of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association tonight in the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall to organize a bowling league.

There will be a special meeting of the service committee of the Arlington Rotary Club tonight at the home of the secretary, J. Hammond Brewer, jr., on the Glebe road, near the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The Arlington County school board having set Monday, September 16, as the opening date for the county public schools, according to announcement from the office of Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, there will be a meeting of principals of the schools in the auditorium of the Washington-Lee High School Friday morning at 10 o'clock, September 13. In the afternoon teachers of the colored schools will meet at the Kemper schoolhouse.

Saturday morning, September 14, at 9 o'clock, there will be a meeting of elementary teachers and principals of all white schools in the Washington-Lee High School Auditorium. At 10 o'clock high school teachers will meet.

The auxiliary of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Relief Association will meet Thursday night at the Cherrydale Firehouse, at which time reports on activities at the recent firemen's annual convention and jubilee at Falls Church will be received.

The committee of the Ballston Citizens Association in charge of arrangements of the twenty-fifth anniversary will hold a meeting in the Rogers Building at Ballston tomorrow night. The committee will complete arrangements for a card party to be given in the near future.

The community night of the auxiliary of the Ballston Fire Department, planned for Thursday night, has been called off, according to an announcement last night by the president, Mrs. Ruth Payne.

The Community Club of the First Presbyterian Church of Ballston will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the Sunday school rooms. Miss Ruth Cathcart and Mrs. Lee Douglas will act as hostesses.

The Holy Name Society of St. James Catholic Church at West Falls Church will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of Martin T. Cook. The ladies of the Blessed Virgin Sodality will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Schofield.

Lieut. Carl E. Scheffel, Theodore A. R. Taff and Harry N. Young, of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department, will represent the department at the meeting to be held at the Cherrydale firehouse, when steps will be taken to organize a firemens bowling league.

The Arlington County
